Alan was presented with a cup, donated by Halton Women's Institute, with Mrs. Chester Service and Mrs. Featherstone making the presentation. Second place Brenda Reading, Burlington, received a dictionary. The speaking contest, sponsored by the Principals' Association, was arranged by Harold Henry, Georgetown, Donald Ross, Oakville and Mr. Connelly, principal at Maple Grove, who was chairman for the evening. Judges were Mrs. L. L. Skuce, Milton, Mrs. R. N. Dobson, chairman of Nelson Township school board, and Casey Wood, editor of the Oakville-Trafalgar Journal.

Other entrants in the competition were Carolyn Buehn, Georgetown, Ella Jany, Afton; Gail Cooper, Linbrook; Wendy Urquhart, Nelson; Pamela Cairne, Oakville; Dennis Brannen, Nelson; Janet Weatherstone, Oakville; John Kennedy, Nassagaweya; Lois Ingles, Nassagaweya; Penny Norton, Glen Williams; Roderick Dodds, Burlington; Joy May, Trafalgar; and Nora Beatty, Trafalgar. School Inspector L. L. Skuce spoke during the evening, complimenting the principals on their sponsorship of such an important educational endeavour. Mr. Connelly explained that 78 boys and girls had competed in the various preliminary contests, and said that each year there has been more interest in the contest which is designed to draw attention to something which has often been neglected in the school program. While the judges were making their decision, there was a musical program which included a song by the triple trio from Chapel Street School, Georgetown, piano solos by Lynda West, Maple Grove and Gwen Houghton, Oakville, and vocal solos by Harry Burne, Milton and Lynn Merritt.
