HIGH TALES

A Trip to the University of Toronto

. Garry Scott Would you believe it? Thousands and thousands of men have graduated from mechanical engineering, yet only two women have accomplished this same trick. That's right! It .is certainly not that the women are extraordinarily dense but why should a woman want to learn mechanical engineering? What they won't do! For the boys who think the University of Toronto is just another uninteresting institution - you are quite mistaken. Our tour was geared only for the Engineering buildings and Hart House (explained later). Thus it was only a short trip but very eyeopening. The boys received an idea of what they were suited for, and what they would be getting into if they chose the particular engineering courses concerned. Of course that was the purpose for which the Student Council sponsoring these two trips.

one to Toronto, and the other to OAC, On being ushered into an old building a kindly professor quickly explained what the hydaulic system was - the washrooms. Sunch fancy names they have! We were led down a secret passage and began our tour of the civil engineering building, We learned such things as how they test sails for suitability to construct a building such as Maple Leaf Gard-

We pushed on to the mechanical building and here met one of the two girls who had taken this engineering. She resembled Einstein in that she too had long hair. She showed us motors -- car, tractor, airplanes, turbines for navy ships, and we even saw an old paddle wheel used on the nearly obsolete Mississippi steam boats in the 1800's. By this time our eyes were really popping and they ushered us into the electrical building. After this we visited the chemical building. Universities, I guess, never know that type of student they are liable to get. I overheard two specimens talking:

Hic "You know, that must have been paint remover I drank a few moments ago?"

Cup - "How's 'at?"

Hic - "It took all the enamel off my teeth." Well we moved on to Hart House. This contains gymnasia with indoor tracks, swimming pool, libraries, revolver and archery galleries for any one who wishes to learn the art, record rooms and art rooms. This House even has a small theatre which seats about 500. Many dramas are played here either by University students or drama clubs all over the country. In case you are interested and you want to put a play on, it will cost you $120 a night; or, if the High School wishes to put one on, you get cut rates, $75 a night One of the most important rooms in the House is the debate room. This is where many a member of parliament got a start at double talk and at mud-slinging. Sometimes the debates really bristle. Our guide told me of the issue got out of hand.

shouted at Senator Stevens from the west, the shortest man in the upper house, "I could - I could eat you at one bite!"

"And then," said the Westerner coldly "You'd have more brains in your atomach than you've ever had in your head."

So ends our short trip to University of Toronto. And if you ever visit the University, take in the Royal Ontario Museum which is the north side of the campus. You'll enjoy it.

Despite drifted roads and blocked lanes on Saturday, March 26th, the Milton Town Hall was well filled for the excellent programme presided over by Ross Segsworth, president of the Halton Soil and Crop Improvement Association. Art Bennett, associate agricultural representative for Halton and Peel counties, announced the results of the Junior Farmer Judging competition, for which 26 young men braved the elements and heavy roads. John W. Picket, newly elected president of Haltor Juniors, was the top judge of the day, and was awarded the Halton Seed Growers' Trophy. Other trophy winners were: Howson Ruddell; who won the Halton Creum and Butter Co trophy, with the high score, in judging hay, and potatoes; and Earl Wilson, who was the winner of the Strathcons Orehards trophy, emblematic of the high score in judging small seeds, and identification of weeds and forage plants. The top winners in the various sections were as follows:

Juniors: 1st Don Taylor; 2nd Allen Brownridge; 3rd Bruce Coulson; 4th Ross Austin; 5th Sandy Barnes. Intermediates 1st Merle Gunby; 2nd Harold Brain; 3rd Lynne Coulter; 4th Andy Stull, 5th Doug Star-

Seniors 1st John W. Picket; 2n Earl Wilson; 3rd Howson Ruddell; 4th Sandy Buchanan; 5th Don John-

Bacon Display

The inter-club township bacon display was briefly but ably commented on by Finlay Stewart, of the Live Stock Production Service of the Canada Department of Agriculture. "Your bacon exhibit is equal to any we have had this year - as a matter of fact, the Halton bacon exhibit if the only one we have had this year, where there were no fourth quality sides," stated Mr. Stewart. Seventeen of the twenty carcasses on display made A grade - however, only three of the twenty made first quality. "The main criticism, we have, is that some of these hogs have too much finish. Use your scales," added Mr. Stewart.

W. P. Watson Speaks

W. P. Watson, Ontario Livestock Commissioner, an old favourite with Halton farm audiences, was the special speaker of the afternoon. In his usual clear cut, logical style, Mr. Watson reviewed the farm outlook for 1955. "Some of you are going to make money in 1955, and some of you are going to lose money," stated Mr. Watson. "It is the man who can grow good crops at a minimum of cost, who is going to make money out of his livestock," he added.

A. L. Currie, of the Livestock Marketing Service, Canada Dept. of Agriculture, with the assistance of Albert Gray, of Canada Packers Ltd., staged a Carcass Cutting Demonstration. new feature for a Halton Baton show In this demonstration an A side, and a C side, were both cut into the usual wholesale cuts for the domestic market. Certainly at the conclusion of this able demonstratin, when the audience saw the difference in the amount of fat which had to be trimmed off the two sides (7 % lbs. in the case of the A side, and 16% lbs. in the case of the C side, and with this fat worth only 7c per lb.) and as they a mock debate they had once when blooked at the identical cuts from the 2 sides after trimming (in some cuts "Why, you little runt," a senator a difference in value of 20c a pound) everyone had to admit that the hog producer who over-finishes his hogs is doing much to depress the market price of hogs and to destroy his own market. We were both startled and impressed when we overheard one Halton farmer say to his neighbour: "Well, it certainly looks as if the two factions of the hog producers who are fighting and arguing over the Sales Agency and Marketing Scheme, might better devote their time to doing something about the quality of our

The thanks of the audience to those contributing to the outstanding, programme, was ably expressed by Reeve A. R. Service, chairman of the Committe on Agriculture and Reforestation of the Halton County Council.
