Swimming Pool This Year?

Good news in this issue of the Herald is that the Lions Club has decided definitely to go ahead with a swimming pool.

This has been discussed for so many years by various groups in town that it is hard to realize that this year may see the pool in operation.

The Lions realize that no one organization can complete a $50,000 project without support from other organizations, and even more important, support from every individual.

There is some money in the bank to start with,

Interesting Reminiscences

A letter from Mr. Frank Barber, now residing in North Carolina, is of particular interest this week to those who remember the Georgetown of 25 years ago or more, and equally interesting to newcomers who know little of the town's history.

We are hoping that Mr. Barber will supply more information of the type used in his letter. He has a faculty of making little incidents tell a story, and the only regret we have is that he didn't continue for a few more pages, recalling the days of the old horse-drawn fire wagon and the hand pumping.

It is still our fond hope that an historical society will come into being in Georgetown, seeking more of and the site is being purchased. The fund will get a boost with peanut day proceeds and other money-raising events, but there will be many thousands of dollars which will have to be raised by generous giving.

It is not too early for each Georgetown to examine his budget and see if he can't earmark an extra dollar or two for the pool. And we know that the Lions Club will appreciate all the help possible that other clubs, church and social groups can give to put this project over the top.

this information from men like Mr. Barber who can supply the facts.

We seem to have gone a long way from the days when youngsters could fish in a pond on Main St. and people went boating in the flats beside the Harley-Kay plant.

We'll be going a lot farther in the next few years as the town keeps growing, and the bigger we get, the more we lose sight of the past and its memories. Perhaps Mr. Barber's letter will be the spark that starts someone off collecting facts in an organized way and putting them on paper for posterity. Meanwhile, Mr. Barber, we'll be waiting to again hear from you.

Death of Bert Gilmer last week was a great shock to the community. It is especially sad when a man dies in the prime of life leaving a business position which can no longer benefit from his knowledge and experience. We did not know Bert intimately, and in fact often only spoke to him once a year when he would stop at the office to pay his subscription. It gave us a lift, for he always had a nice word to say about how we had improved the paper, or how he liked some certain news items. And we know that a man who went out of his way to be pleasant in this way, must leave many happy memories with others too. A reader chides us for confusing a sermon title from the Miracle of Lazarus to the Miracle of Bazaars. Perhaps it isn't a bad simile at that, for there is something miraculous in the quantities of things which appear at the numerous bazaars every year. An attendant at the annual Chamber of Commerce meeting remarked that this was the first time he knew just what the Chamber did. So that no one can say it again, the report of president John Gunn is printed in this week's issue, giving full details. Pearl handled shoes are the latest thing in the editor's household. Charlie, age 3, has taken a great fancy to some pearl handled knives and the other day, showing his dad a new pair of shoes, showed how he treasured them by calling them his "pearl handled" shoes. When we asked a Florida traveller on Sunday if he had seen as fine a day during his time away, we got a rather evasive answer. If we could guarantee a few weeks of weather like that, maybe the trek south would be reversed. A merchants' association is something like the weather. Everyone talks about it, but no one does anything about it. With Georgetown growing daily, merchants would be wise to get together and do some cooperative planning for the future. Roxy Theatre manager Bill Leslie is planning to attend a conference in Buffalo, N.Y. next Monday when officials of Metro Goldwyn Mayer will be hosts to small town theatre exhibitors. He will be accompanied to Buffalo by Henry Deveau, manager of the Acton Roxy. Several Georgetown ladies who are interested in spinning and weaving have visited the Heliconian Club in Toronto during the Ontario conference of guilds. A special visitor was Berta Frey of New York, a teacher and designer for fabric houses. Delegates attended from several Ontario towns. Retirement of Sir Winston Churchill as British prime minister recalls an unusual souvenir brought home by a Georgetown soldier. Wonder if Bob Hardman still has that chewed cigar handed to him by the great man himself? Fishermen are already starting to plan their May expeditions to favourite trout ponds. More hospital talk tonight, as the Chamber of Commerce investigates further the possibility of a local hospital.

DELREX SUBDIVISION MAIN ST. DISPLAY

Several Georgetowners saw the topographical map of Georgetown last week at the Canadian Home Show in Toronto.

The map, prepared by Rex Haslop for use in his exhibit at the show, reveals details of the Delrex subdivision where construction will soon be underway.

It is of general interest to everyone locally, and arrangements have been made to have it on display for a week or two in the show window of McClure Home Furnishings on Main Street.

TEACHER ATTENDING CONVENTION IN WEST

A Georgetown district lady on the Toronto public school teaching staff, is in California this week attending the International Council for Exceptional Children.

Miss Jessie McKay is representing Toronto elementary school teachers at the conference which is taking place in Long Beach, California.
