Criticizes P-C's for Extravagance Liberal

"Extravagance is not an unfair word to use in describing many things of which the Frost government has been guilty. I need only mention the highways and the hydro," stated Mrs. F. S. Greenwood, past president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, at the Halton Liberal Association social evening held last Friday in Trafalgar Memorial Hall. She also mentioned the failure of the Frost government to stand by their promises to pay 50 per cent of educational costs.

"I am convinced that the election of a Liberal government under the leadership of Marquhar Oliver, a most experienced administrator, will bring a great new era of responsible government to this great province," said Mr. Anderson, pledging himself if elected to support health insurance, large education grants and more financial support for hospitals.

Mr. Anderson gave those present a short biography of his activities since coming to Canada from Scotland 40 years ago. He has been councillor, deputy reeve and reeve of Oakville, serving a total of twelve years, and is a past zone commander of the Legion. Mr. Frank Fitch, president of the Halton Men's Liberal Association introduced the Liberal candidate, Mr. William Anderson, Oakville, who spoke to the assembled group of 200. Mr. Main Johnston, of Oakville, also spoke.

Georgetown, Milton, Acton and Oakville were all well represented at the gathering. After the speeches, cards were played and lunch served.

Establish Par 38 For Lady Golfers

Mrs. J. N. Carlson, Port Credit, the head of the pars committee of the Canadian Golfers Union, played nine holes to the North Halton Golf and Country Club Friday afternoon, in order to establish a par score for the course for ladies. She established 38 as the official par. Mrs. Carlson said that although the holes were not particularly long, the play was made quite difficult by the hazards. The president of the Georgetown Lady Golfers, Mrs. John Bell and the captain, Jean Mackenzie, played the course with Mrs. Carlson.

After the game, a number of the lady executives entertained Mrs. Carlson at a buffet supper in the club house lounge.

Urges Dairy Farmers To Have "Open House"

"Seeing is believing" is an old slogan which should be put into practice more often by the dairy industry according to a new Dairy Farmers of Canada pamphlet called "The Open House." The pamphlet, written by O. J. W. Shugg of Dairy Farmers and J. W. Lawrence of the National Dairy Council, gives hints on what to do and what not to do in "open house" events on the farm and in the dairy plant. It is pointed out in the pamphlet that while processors, manufacturers and distributors of dairy foods have practiced the open house technique to some degree across Canada, dairy farmers have not "opened" their farms to the public to any marked extent.

Mr. Shugg, who wrote the farm section of the pamphlet, believes that local associations of producers might well contribute to public enlightenment by holding "open house" events in connection with the national promotion "June is Dairy Month." He goes further and suggests that in markets which lend themselves to the idea, local associations of producers and distributors for instance, might organize a joint effort which would introduce to the public the "straight through" techniques and problems of producing and handling milk.

Some specific suggestions are made for the guidance of associations planning the farm open house. What type of farm? An inside or an outside show, which? Who shall be invited? These and other problems must be solved before a successful open house can be expected. Mr. Shugg acknowledges that few producers want strangers around at milking time and suggests that a good case can be made for the type of open house which does not clutter up the barn at milking time.

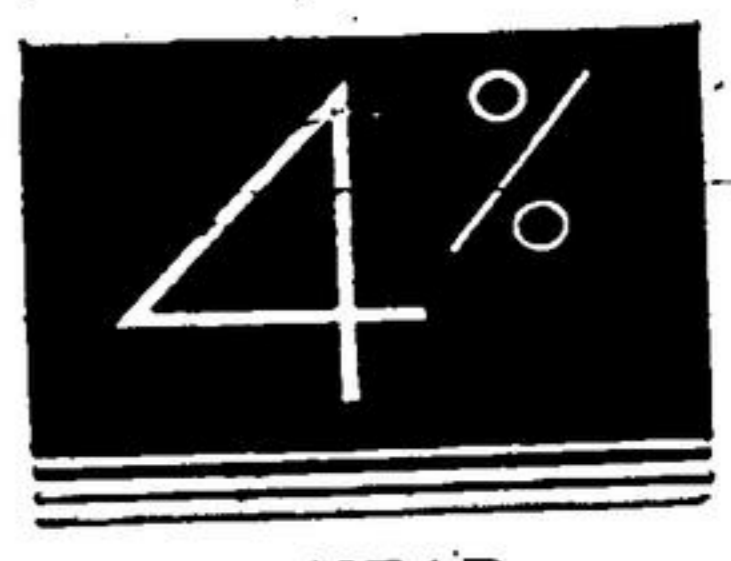

Mr. Lawrence, who organized many open house events for one of Canada's largest dairy organizations, has found it an excellent way to win friends and extra sales. His experience has been that the public is intensely interested in the processes which protect the quality of dairy foods. Committees of various kinds from the plant personnel are necessary to handle the plant event and Mr. Lawrence has outlined the function of each.
