FARM NEWS

CROPS REQUIRE SOLUBLE PHOSPHORUS

Research work by the Departments of Soils and Agricultural Engineering on the heavy soils near Cayuga in Haldimand County are beginning to reveal worthwhile information. This work was initiated in 1952, primarily as a result of requests from Haldimand and Haldimand counties. The use of phosphorus fertilizers is widespread in Ontario. For efficient use of fertilizers it is essential, states Prof. N. R. Richards of the Dept. of Soils, O.A.C., that the proper form and method of application be used. The first roots should have access to plenty of phosphorus in order to obtain the young seedlings' early requirements. To supply plenty of phosphorus near the roots, fertilizers are usually applied with the seed, or banded near the seed, at planting time. Superphosphate and rock phosphate are the two common forms of phosphorus fertilizer used by Ontario farmers. On neutral or alkaline soils, superphosphate is the most suitable because it solves too slowly to be immediately effective. This was illustrated by the uptake of phosphorus by plants from a neutral and an acid soil, in the greenhouse at the Dept. of Soils, in Guelph. In this test, both Haldimand soil with a ph. of 6.0 and Burford soil with a ph. of 7.0 were utilized. The Haldimand soil gave the larger response to phosphorus fertilizer, for both barley and sweet clover. Complete treatment with superphosphate was the only treatment that gave a significant response of both crops in both soils. Two rock phosphate materials, one from Africa and the other from Florida, USA, were also used in field experiments on Haldimand clay near Cayuga. African rock phosphate
