SILVER-WOOD

Costumes, Contests
Make Hallowe'en Fun

Hallowe'en parties can be a lot of fun, and the one held in the Stone School on Hallowe'en night will be long remembered. The president, Mrs. H. Marchington, of the Silver Wood Women's Institute welcomed the guests, she was dressed as a pretty Dutch girl, complete with long golden pigtails. As the guests arrived there was much merriment over some of the costumes; a very realistic ghost and an extremely "big hunter" had everybody guessing for a long time. In fact, when prizes were handed out for the best costumes, the judges picked the ghost as the best lady and it turned out to be Mrs. George Burt, the Big Hunter, complete with animal hide, was judged the best man, and it turned out to be Mrs. John Glynn Her son Peter was the small hunter Little Laura Henderson was thought to be the best little girl, being dressed as Little Miss Muffet, and a boy in pantalettes was best in his class, and he was Ross Burt.

The evening started off with a peanut scramble, and then passing of the peanut, little Terry Corbett being the last one left in the ring, and therefore the winner. Hilarious fun was caused by six men wrapping their lady partners in toilet tissue, the first to finish being Mr. Clare Wilson, having his partner, Mrs. Gordon Kidney almost a complete cocoon. The lights were put out, the circle drew closer, and a particularly gruesome tale was told and bits and pieces passed around with many squeals and much laughter, and when the lights came on, it turned out to be a sponge for the poor man's brains, grapes for his eyes, macaroni for his veins, a fig for his ear, corn for the teeth and a rubber glove filled with water for his hand.

A contest which nearly all entered was passing a life saver from one person to the other, each person holding in their mouth a toothpick on which this lifesaver had to be slid, without the aid of hands. It was fun. And then the sides had to step on a piece of cardboard, picking up the second piece and going half the length of the room, and back. Much cheering, much confusion and much fun.

CHARADES were entered into by several Mr. Gordon Kidney was acclaimed the best actor. He portrayed very realistically his reaction when in a dentist's chair. The men then had to use paper and ribbon and feathers and make hats for the ladies. Mrs. Wm. Bond made a very fetching number for Mrs. H. Corbett, and they were the winners.

Then during the preparation of a delicious lunch, Mrs. Bert Corbett told fortunes in her clever witch's costume, with a background of corn stalks, and while this was going on, three clever people silently entered and amidst much laughter, they passed around the room, shaking hands with all present, a duchess who was dressed and acted as to the manner born, a professional hockey player and a very disreputable hobo. After going the rounds, they as silently disappeared.

Mrs. H. Marchington and her committee, Mrs. Pearl Burt, Mrs. George Henderson and Mrs. Bert Corbett deserve a lot of credit for giving the neighbours and friends a very happy evening; collection at the door was in aid of the Georgetown Community Swimming Pool.

Every week more than 1,500,000 eggs are received at the warehouse of just one supermarket chain in Montreal.
