Mrs. Patrick J. Bolger, whose husband was once an insurance salesman in Georgetown died at her home, 39 Salem Ave., Toronto on April 17th.

The Bolger family lived in town several years ago, in what was known then as the terrace apartments, where the Jack O'Lantern Service Station is now located. He was Prudential Insurance man here. They moved from here to Toronto.

Mrs. Bolger, who was the former Teresa Catherine Phelan, leaves her husband and six children, Reginald of Kirkland Lake; Eileen, Sister M. A few years ago the Bolger family were all in Georgetown for a happy occasion when son John, after his ordination to the Roman Catholic priesthood, officiated at his first mass in Holy Cross Church, which was followed by a reception in the parish hall.

Solemn requiem mass was held in St. Anthony's Church on Friday morning and interment was in Mount Hope Cemetery.

On Thursday and Friday evenings, April 19 and 20, the Young People's Society of the Norval and Union Presbyterian Churches presented their first play-night. Capacity audiences attended both evenings.

On Thursday evening the plays were presented in the Norval church and on the Friday evening in the Union church.

The first play, "The Old Bull," was directed by Mrs. Eric Leslie, and had the following cast: Roy Thompson, William Hunter, Jamie Cunningham, Frances Leslie and Marlene Dixon.

The second play, "The Perfect Gentleman," was directed by Mrs. Owens MacDonald, and had the following cast: David Anderson, Isabel Ostrander, Jean Anderson, Shirley Fendley and Robert Crawford. During the intermissions entertainment was presented in the form of old time music by Harry Grunskil, Wilmer Little and Anne Davis.

On the Friday evening Mrs. William Cromar gave four readings and recitations which the audience enjoyed immensely. Also on the Friday evening a festival duet was sung by Misses Diane McKane and Iwen MacDonald. After the final performance roses were presented to the two directors and fitting words expressed by the society's president, Miss Isabel Ostrander. Plans are already underway for 1957.
