service, CORRECT POSTURE WEEK which has been an annual event for several years. The American Government has officially recognized this week as posture week. The help of school teachers and school authorities of government legislatures and Mayors, of members of Congress have made it more than a meaningless phrase.

i.e.—Honourable James I. Olliver, member of representatives for Iowa who addressed congress on Monday, March 26, 1956 commending the Chiropractic Profession for its contribution to National Health. The reason for this special week is to bring before the people the importance of correct posture and to acquaint them with the fact millions of dollars in expenditures for health could be saved by better posture. Better posture taught to children in their formative years and better posture practiced by adults.

A lighter side to the evening was a skit "Dangerous Dan McGrew" by the St. George's men. While Stan Finlay read the Robert Service poem, a group of characters pantomimed the action. The cast included John Wolfe as Lady Lou; Jim Sargent, Dangerous Dan; Ed. Wilson, the
