Come to the Fair

Saturday is one of Georgetown's big days. The park will be thronged with people as Esqueing Agricultural Society presents the annual Georgetown Fair, an attraction which never dims as years go by.

Fair attenders will first visit the hall display in the armoury, where flowers, homecrafts, artwork and collections by public school children, displays by ladies' institutes, vegetables and baking vie for honours. The hall display is one which is always eye-appealing and each year seems better and better as new decorating ideas are used.

En route to the grandstand the kiddies will want to stop at the midway. Jaded grown-ups shouldn't be too critical either, for on more than one occasion we have heard it said by youngsters "It's better than the Exhibition."

Grandstand spectators will watch harness racing and livestock parade, while entertained by emcee Vince Mountford, fresh from his stint at the Canada Packers booth at the CNE. Commercial displays will be featured at various places in the park, and there is a multitude of refreshment booths, plus pony rides, games of chance and all the trappings of a fair.

"Meet your friends at Georgetown Fair" has been a popular slogan . . . and besides the entertainment which the fair provides, it is a thrill in itself to meet again visitors who flock back for the big day.

Town Can Be Beauty Spot

Discussion in council about sodding along the highway through the main part of town had one councillor to say he was sure residents along the route would cooperate and keep the grass trimmed after it is planted.

We hope they will, for nothing detracts from a town more than ragged, weedy borders which are all too common in many Ontario towns.

On occasion we have driven north to take Huron, and one town in particular always stands out as an example of beauty. Harrison. The highway through town is complemented by well-kept lawns, and each householder makes it a point to spend a few extra minutes on the important border between sidewalk and road.

On and off the highway, next summer let's resolve to maintain that border strip. Georgetown can be just as much a beauty spot as any other town, with a little work by everyone.

Local Pastor Elevated

After only a brief four month stay in Georgetown, Father Anselm Spacey has left the local Roman Catholic parish for the larger position of provincial superior of the Capuchin Fathers.

Congratulations are thus in order, and his new position particularly impresses for the Capuchins hold their elections by ballot and Father Spacey was the choice of his fellow priests to be their leader for the next three years.

We had hoped that his stay here would be longer, for his wartime background in central Europe and his connections with the Czech government before the communists took over, would undoubtedly have led to interesting information both to his church people and service clubs which might have availed themselves of his services as a speaker.

Perhaps in later years he may be back among us, and meanwhile we wish him well in his new post, while extending a welcome to his successor, Father Thomas Van Laer, who is the outgoing provincial superior.

Pot Pourri

Mrs. E. R. Robinson tells us we are somewhat out of date on a Then and Now item in which we said daughter Brenda, now Mrs. Gunther Frey lives in Ottawa. Mr. and Mrs. Frey have been living in Munich, Germany since the spring and will be making their home there for the next year or two . . . Sometimes our credit lines on Herald pictures get dropped, and last week we omitted to mention that the picture of the Girls Pipe Band was taken by local photographer J. A. Goudy . . . Still in hospital in Guelph, but progressing well, is lawyer-councillor Leroy (Andy) Dale. Mr. Dale underwent an operation in August which has kept him confined to hospital and away from business and the council table since . . . World's a small place dept. . . This summer Mrs. Bert Gilmer and Mrs. Jack McMaster of Warton travelled west. So did Mr. and Mrs. Val Stein. Neither knew of the other's trip until they met in a Vancouver hotel . . . Driving through town on the newly surfaced highway is a real pleasure these days. The wider roadway means that cars turning at

Queen or John streets don't block all the traffic behind. Now all we need are traffic lights at the dangerous John corner to complete the improvements . . . Georgetown's name has been spread abroad by the 30-mile speed limit. A reader who also subscribes to the St. Marys weekly, gave us this clipping recently:

"One thing we would like to know and about which we are going to write the Ontario Department of Highways is the 30-mile an hour zone which extends from the village of Norval all the way to the town of Georgetown and well beyond on No. 7 Highway. If this type of speed zoning is extended there perhaps should be a thirty-mile an hour limit from St. Marys to Stratford. We don't want to be silly about this, but each time we have driven past the Georgetown area it has seemed to be a very ridiculous thing. It certainly cannot make passing motorists and tourists think very highly of this near-Toronto community of Georgetown which seems to be suffering, besides growing pains, a swelled head perhaps?"

Mrs. W. Devenport Channel Isle Native

Ill since May, Mrs. William Devenport, 67, died in Scarborough General Hospital, September 2nd. She was the mother of Mrs. "Bus" Hale, 3 College Street.

her marriage Ethel Maud Larner, was a native of Guernsey, Channel Islands. With her husband, she came to Canada forty years ago, and lived in Toronto until his death four years ago. Since then she had made her home at West Hill. Surviving are her children, Mrs. A. Tyler, West Hill, Mrs. W. L. Teed, Sudbury, and Margaret, Mrs. "Bus" Hale, Georgetown, 5 grand children, a brother George Larner, London, England, and two sisters, Mrs. William Solway, Johannesburg, South Africa and Mrs. James Devenport, Guernsey. Requiem mass was held at St. Joseph's Church, Highland Creek, September 5th, and interment was in Mount Hope Cemetery.

NORVAL LADIES SEE PICTURES OF EUROPE

The regular monthly meeting of Norval Women's Institute was an evening meeting held at the home of Miss Prairie Maguire. In the absence of the president Mrs. W. H. Smellie, 1st vice president, conducted the meeting. Arrangements were made for the fair display and exhibits and committees were appointed to look after this.

Miss E. Dundas of Toronto showed coloured pictures of her trip to Europe. At the close of the meeting Miss Dundas was thanked for showing her pictures and sharing her trip with the members. She was presented with a bouquet of gladioli.
