WHAT COUNCIL DID

CRITICIZE CONSULTANT FOR LOW WATER ESTIMATE

"It wasn't an estimate at all, it was a poor guess" said Cr. Alfred Sykes at council meeting Monday, commenting on a $10,000 over-expenditure on the new waterworks plant.

"In my experience, consulting engineers never estimate high enough," said Mayor Armstrong after Reeve Allen conveyed the news.

The revee said that original estimates of consulting engineer Roberts had been boosted $50,000. Total cost of the system will be somewhat over the $300,000 already debentured for. An okay will be sought from the Municipal Board for debentures to cover the extra cost.

Council considered a $600 guard rail over the creek on Elm Street, but withheld action until other dangerous spots are investigated also. The mayor said guard rails are also needed at the John Street culvert, on the new Maple Avenue and at Chartes and Young Streets.

Scoutmaster Ralph Bonham reported on a tulip planting at the war memorial and said the scouts would undertake cleaning the plaques, also. He suggested too that the memorial be lighted at night, and council will consider this.

A meter repair bench, worth $400, will be purchased, so that the town can test and repair meters, rather than the more expensive method of sending them away.

John Henley, Bairstow Crescent, appearing for a second time to complain about poor drainage on property near his home, was told that this is private property and council could do nothing other than bringing it to the attention of the health unit if it is creating a nuisance. The clerk was asked to notify the health unit inspector.

Ian Cass, president of Valley Hill Ratepayers, reiterated his opinion that further delay in installing Swanek storm sewers would make the job more costly, when he was told that council will take no action until a reply is received about marketing the town's present debenture issue.

A. M. Nielsen complained, in a lengthy letter, that he had been ordered to move back a sign in front of his highway office which is too close to the sidewalk, but that he had checked and found 18 other highway signs are also out of place. The town engineer said that a check by his department found only one of these needed moving and that others were either on private property or had been in existence when the building by law was passed.

LIMEHOUSE

KEEPING HEALTHY IS NOVEL W.I. ROLL CALL

Sixteen members of Limehouse Women's Institute answered roll call with an idea on how to keep healthy, when they met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Brown. President Mrs. Frank Brown was chairman.

Mrs. Ed Sanford read a poem commemorating armistice day and members observed two minutes' silence.

A profit of $19 was reported for the memorial hall building fund from a euchre party held at Mrs. Sam Gibbs's home. Another euchre is planned this Saturday at the home of Mrs. Paul Spitzer. The ladies are also working on their annual bazaar and bake sale, which will be held a week from Saturday at Mrs. S. Kirkpatrick's home.

Three sick members were remembered with fruit boxes during the last month. An invitation to attend an open meeting in Milton of the Sunshine Club for retarded children was discussed, and it is hoped some members will be able to attend.

Current events, local, national, and international were well prepared by Mrs. C. Meredith and read by Mrs. Kirkpatrick. Mrs. A. W. Benton presented a splendid paper on the motto "Medicine, Yesterday, and Today." Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants Mrs. English, and Mrs. H. Stull and a social half hour was enjoyed.

GEORGE WEBSTER SETS BOWLING SINGLES MARK

George Webster is new singles champion of the industrial bowling league.

He bowled a 368 game last week, one point better than previous record holder Bill Anderson to get his name in the hall of fame! Harry Brandford's 893 still remains the season's best triple.

Four closely grouped teams, separated by only one point, hold best positions in the league standing. Silver's is followed by Kentner's Kay's and Legion No. 1 in that order.

Last week's top bowlers in singles were Shel Law, and C. Handy, 319, George Webster 307, in triples, C. Handy 805; G. Webster 777; S. Law 772.

George Webster also had the high average so far this season, 237.
