LEGION NOTES

by Les Clark

Well, Legion Notes are bound to be a bit of an anti-climax this week, after last issue's "deluge" of news. In fact, we have always had a lot of lee-way in the amount of space we use in the Herald, but we really didn't expect to end up with the better part of two pages. The news was fairly timely, tho', and we hope everybody enjoyed it. Incidentally, many thanks to the new members who have been coming over to us and saying that they enjoy reading our weekly wanderings. We enjoy writing it too, and naturally, working on the paper, it is a fairly simple matter to get a weekly column. Unfortunately, we have a bad habit of either not having the time, or being too lazy (our friends insist it's the latter) to write it out before setting it on the linotype machine, so as a result it comes out highly "spontaneously" and is not always grammatically correct. But if we waited to draft it out in advance, and then correct it before setting, let's face it, it wouldn't make the Herald very often.

As mentioned before, this column would like to incorporate in its text some week, a little about our new members, nationality, interests, anything interesting about their service, etc. And we would appreciate the cooperation of new members. Don't hesitate to come up to us and give us the facts. Our members would all be interested to know you, and personally we would like to meet you. Up until two years ago, we prided ourselves that we knew each and every member of the branch. With the way it is growing, that it no longer true. But we'd like to see a weekly description of our new members. It would help them to know, you and vice-versa.

Operation membership rolls on at a steady clip, with each week new members coming in. Our total membership now approaches the 450 mark (the treasurer hastens to say 380 odd PAID UP). . . . But certainly it shows that the boys are really cooperating on the drive. A point that interests us is the type of new member we are getting. It has turned out that a good many of the boys coming in, are really taking an interest and want to get in the thick of things. That is a wonderful spirit, and speaks well for the future of the branch.

This Friday is the annual election of officers for Oakville Legion, and a number of boys are going over to it to help conduct it. We always like visiting Oakville, because it's a chance to see a lot of people that we don't run across too often, but that knew many years ago as a member of the Lorne Scots regiment in Niagara camp.

It seems incredible that the local branch amateurs will soon be here, and that the election of officers is only a few short weeks away.

On the whole, we predict a fairly quiet election this year. . . . in our experience around the branch, it's been a good yardstick of what is going to happen, by the amount of criticism heard in the rooms. At present, we should judge that the amount of complaining is just about as low as we've ever seen it. In fact, we can think of a number of years ago, when running for office, we would have been very happy to have had such a contented group! Seriously, the last year especially has been very productive in all things Legion. All our major improvements as well as our various big nights. The other night, after the meeting, an old friend, Bob McMenemy laughingly put it this way "the boys are really happy around here these days, aren't they?"

they? The treasurer read out the financial report (a deficit) the president asks if there are any questions, and the meeting fights to see who will move its acceptance! . . . Guess they realized the said deficit was a highly temporary one.

Our congratulations to Dennis Wright for the number of new applications he has been bringing in. There's a man who really has been taking our words about helping the membership drive seriously (or posingly making an all-out effort to win that car.) We would judge he has brought in at least half a dozen in a short period, and is still going strong. A point of interest is that we saw two of the applications and were surprised to find that we now have a couple of very "well decorated gentlemen" added to our midst, one the holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the other the holder of a DCM, and the MM.

Our genial secretary asks me to remind you to have your Xmas Tree tickets in by Friday at the latest. This is urgent.

Ralph Hawes, our genial friend who lives next door to the Legion, was remarking to us the other night how the Legion has grown since the short time he's been in town. We suddenly realized that that 'short time' is about seven years, which makes Ralph something of an old timer around the place. Congratulations are in order, incidentally, to him on the wonderful showing his daughter made at the Music Festival, where she was a Gold Medalist.

Ralph brought up a good point in our conversation, in that he would like to see the boys welcome the new members a little more, especially on their first visit. As he so rightly pointed out, when you drop in to a place for the first time nothing helps so much as a friendly hello and if the chap is alone, it wouldn't hurt any of us to make ourselves acquainted and introduce him around. It leaves a wonderful feeling of 'belonging' to the newcomer.

It's funny how people that you knew in the service completely drop from your ken, and then suddenly you hear of them again. That is exactly what has been happening to us lately. Recently we had a phone call from Johnny Wilson, a member who you will remember and who is now with air transport command. It seems Johnny's commanding officer heard him mention Georgetown, and asked if he knew Les Clark. It turned out to be Weir Klassen and John "Jake" McCutcheon. Jake had been also on our squadron, and was best man at our wedding. He is presently stationed at Downsview with 436 and Klass is going to Capodicheno airport to supervise the airlift from that end. Capodicheno is certainly no strange place to him, as it was used during the war by our squadron 525, as a staging post to the far east and middle east. To complete the circle the other day we had a call from an old buddy from the same group, Whitley Kelso, now a TCA pilot, who was staying with another ex air force type, now resident at the former Cousens farm, Harry Clark Strange how people you haven't seen in years suddenly pop up like that.

Get your float ready for the Santa Claus parade on December 22nd.

FARMERS UNION SEES EUROPEAN TRAVEL FILMS

The Ontario Farmers' Union Local 138 held their regular monthly meeting at Blue Mountain school on Thursday, November 29th. The presiding officer Elwood Snow called the meeting to order. Low notes were read by Lloyd Marshall.

Highlight of the evening were European travel movies by Mr. and Mrs. John Cordaro with appropriate comments on the various scenes pictures. After the meeting the ladies served a tasty lunch to those present. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Cordaro who replied with a promise to return at some future date with some more movies.

Cameron McHenry explained to the guests that the purpose of the United Farmers' Union was to seek ways and means for better markets and better prices for farm produce. And the success of the farmers' Union depended largely on the amount of effort that was put forward by the farmers themselves. No one knows the problems of the farmers but the farmers themselves. Only by banding themselves together and making a determined effort will the farmers get results.

BURLINGTON COUPLE ARE 25 YEARS WED

A couple who were married in Georgetown 25 years ago, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday when a number of relatives and friends attended a party at their home, 76 Seneca St., Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilvert have lived in Burlington since their marriage which took place in Knox Presbyterian Church manse. Rev. Dr. Howard performed the ceremony.

Among those attending Saturday's reception were Mrs. Wilvert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bryden, 14 Arletta St. and her brother William Bryden, Mabel Sowerby and Marion Kalin from town; Mrs. M. McCutcheon and Janet, of Brampton; Mr. and Mrs. George Pendley, Huttonville. Other guests were from Hamilton, Brantford, Simcoe and Burlington.
