Sugar and Spice

Dispensed by BILL SMILEY of the Windsor Echo

When the MPP for Bruce asked a question in the House recently, people got indignant all over the place. All he wanted to know was why deer could be shot out of season on the property of some exclusive hunt clubs in the province.

What a smudge of indignation arose! The premier was indignant at the suggestion that there was one law for the rich, one for the poor, in his domain. Anyone who broke the game laws would be prosecuted, he declared roundly including John Foster Dulles, owner of one of the sanctuaries named. 'Nobody could say fairer than that, now, could they?'

Spokesmen for Mr. Dulles, who just happens to be U.S. Secretary of State, were almost in tears with indignation. Mr. Dulles, they declared, was the soul of gentleness, had never shot a deer out of season, had never shot a deer in his life. In fact, they implied, if any crazy deer came around Mr. Dulles, trying to get shot, he would beat it off with a club.

Owners of another of the private preserves, Canadian subsidiaries of a mighty U.S. motor firm, were equally indignant and equally righteous. Why, that island wasn't used for hunting at all, their public relation department retorted, with throbbing sincerity. It was just a sort of school, where the brighter production men could do their homework with no other interruption except that of those darned deer which are practically a plague on the place.

There is a little doubt that the Minister of Lands and Forests was also indignant, though reports that smoke was seen ascending from his ears have apparently little basis in fact. Nobody was really breaking the law, you see, because, uh, well, they were shooting out of season, but, uh, everybody sort of knew about it; and, uh, well, they stocked the place with their own deer, and it was, uh, kind of traditional, and, uh, maybe some of the deer came from the mainland, but we just never, uh, looked into it, and, uh, I'm sure nobody was trying to break the law, and, special rights - old charters - no harm done. And so on.

There was thunderous indignation, in large, messy globes, from opposition newspapers. There was phony indignation from Yorkton-baiters, who were delighted at the idea that Mr. Dulles might have broken the law.

There was nigging indignation, directed at the Member, among those who believe that a dollar makes more sense than a deer, in or out of season. "Why doesn't he mind his own business? Look at all the taxes those big shots are paying. If they want to shoot a deer on their own property, what's the difference." Quite, and if I want to strangle my grandmother, what's the difference, as long as I bury her in my own cellar.

Of course, there was the honest indignation of the Member himself. There is no indignation more honest than that of a member of the Opposition, as he stands there, fighting for the Little Man, head wreathed in halo, one hand on his heart the other clutching a harpoon.

But of all the shades of indignation, none was quite as purple as that expressed by some of the more expert among district poachers. "Howda ya like them millionaires?" they roared at the dinner table as their children munched on fresh venison. "Just because they got money. Take the food out of a man's mouth. Oughta be a law."

I quite agree. There oughta be a law. In fact, there oughta be two laws, one for the rich, the other for the rest of us. There's far too much equality in this country. First thing you know, a cat will be able to look at a king.

It's nothing short of shocking that a wealthy man of culture, who wants to pamper his connoisseur's palate with a venison filet mignon, should be subject to the same law as a rude poacher, who feeds his kids on deer meat, when they'd rather have pork, just because it's handier and cheaper.

It's high time something was done about it. The sooner we get two distinct sets of laws, one for the rich and one for the poor, the happier our rich will be. And we want our rich to be happier. I'm getting sick and tired of everybody saying "what's the use of being rich if you're not happy."

LIMEHOUSE

SHOW PIONEER RELICS AT INSTITUTE MEETING

Mrs. Jack Roughley was hostess for the February meeting of Limehouse Women's Institute with 13 members attending and Mrs. Frank Brown presiding.

Historical research and current events was the theme for the meeting and roll-call was taken by showing an article from pioneer days and giving its history. Mrs. S. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. A. Benton were convener.

Donations were voted to the Sunshine Club for retarded children, Navy League and a penny round-up for a mental health program. There was discussion about committees for the bazaar and fall fair, and appointments were postponed until the next meeting. Mrs. Sam Glsby will continue as school garden convener.

The W.I. planned a euchre which was held February 20th and is planning a box social for the gardens fund at a later date. The flower and fruit convener reported three members remembered with fruit boxes during the months, and cards sent to bereaved members.

The motto "Plant only happy memories, for they bloom in our winter" was prepared and read by Mrs. James Noble. Two minute reports were given by conveners. Mrs. Harry Brown described varied and appetizing ways for serving eggs. Mrs. Ellenby, convener of community activities and pub-

FARM NEWS

BEATY'S PRESIDENT CANADIAN JERSEY CLUB

J. E. W.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club held in Montreal recently, Maurice C. Beaty, prominent Trafalgar farmer and well-known owner and operator of Lindale Farm, was elected president of this national organization. Liddale Jersey herd over the past twenty-one years has achieved international recognition and it is indeed fitting that the popular owner should have been selected to head up this important national breed organization.

Mr. Beaty is the third Haltonite to be selected in recent weeks to head up National farm organizations. Some two or three weeks ago, Joseph H. Willmott, well-known popular Hampshire breeder, also of Trafalgar Township, was announced as the new president of the Canadian Sheep Breeders' Association. The third Haltonite to receive this signal honour is M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, of Burlington, who is the new president of the Canadian Horticultural Council. All three of these men have over the years proven their worth as leaders in their respective fields of endeavour and it is certain that they will make the same type of contribution in their new spheres.
