PREMIUM PICTURES ARE FAMILY HERALD TREASURES

Art, if it is pleasant as well as artistic, has a charm which endures amazingly. New proof of this, provided by the Family Herald, leading Canadian farm and rural weekly, indicates that a picture does not have to be from the brush of one of the great masters in order to hold a continuing place in the sentiments of those who have acquired it.

Established in 1870, as the Family Herald and Weekly Star, the publication gave away large numbers of colored picture reproductions as premiums toward the end of the century. The subjects were not such as might be expected to arouse general enthusiasm in the present day, as a few of the titles suggest, including: "The Thin Red Line," "Little Sweethearts," "The Wonderful Heroine," and "Mother's Treasures."

The Family Herald has been astonished to learn how many of these pictures have been kept and that they are still admired by those who received them.

Late in 1956, a letter came to the Family Herald from a subscriber in Ottawa, asking whether anyone might have a printed picture entitled "Fallen from the Nest" which had been given out around 1900. Since none of the pictures are now in the possession of the Family Herald, the subscriber's letter was published in an effort to bring her interest in the picture to the attention of some reader who might still have a copy of it. The letter appeared on the Family Herald's "Voice of the Farm" page, which is devoted to letters from readers and is very widely read. The result of the letter's appearance was overwhelming.

Within a short time, the Family Herald received another letter from the enquiring subscriber with the request that it also be published. Already she had received upwards of eighty letters in response to her query, added to which were three phone calls from local residents. Every one of the ten provinces of Canada was included in the addresses of the writers, and each had some information to offer about the picture. Many had four or five of the premium pictures still in their possession, and from a subscriber in New Brunswick, the enquirer had received a perfect copy of the one she sought.

Her second letter — of thanks for the response, and apologies for not being able to answer them all — was also published.

The letters have revealed that the old premium pictures — though not a very admirable art form to present day, popular taste — are far from extinct and forgotten. Many are still hanging in their frames on the walls of long time readers treasured by the household.

In October of 1956, the Family Herald and Weekly Star became simply the Family Herald, and adopted the rotogravure printing process, and the use of full color printing, though retaining all the familiar features beloved of its readers. All the cover pictures, popular with readers even in black and white, now appear in full colour, with other pictures appearing in full colour inside the magazine.

Following the appearance of the correspondence about the old premium pictures, another subscriber — this time of Nova Scotia, wrote to tell how she cuts out the new full-color, Family Herald cover pictures and hangs them on her walls, or frames them as gifts. "Now," the subscriber from Nova Scotia remarks "we get a weekly premium picture, instead of a yearly one."

4-H HOMEMAkers ON ANNUAL BUS TOUR

Thursday of the current week will see Halton's 4-H Homemakers off on their annual one day bus tour. Mrs. Mabel Borgstrom, Home Economist, aided by a number of local leaders, will be in charge of the party.

Their itinerary calls for them to spend some time in one or both of the big stores of the T. Eaton Co. Following this they are to be guests of that firm for their noon-day luncheon. In the afternoon those 16 years and over will visit the Hospital for Sick Children, while the balance of the party will divide their time between the parliament buildings, and the Royal Ontario Museum.

It should be an interesting and worthwhile experience for Halton's 4-H Homemakers.

J. Murray Mahon President Children's Aid Society

J. Murray Mahon was named president of the Halton County Children's Aid Society when that group held its annual meeting in St. Paul's United Church, Milton.

Sydney Childs was named vice-president, Mrs. J. I. Whitham, secretary and William Deans, treasurer.

Guest speaker Jack Finlay, managing director of the Children's Aid Society of Hamilton, reviewed the problems of child placement. He defined the best approach to the problem as "what would I want for my child if it was beyond my possibility to provide it in the confines of our home."

Outlining the problems, he referred to the difficulty of parents' decision to allow children for placement; the need for a family circle; the emotional problem of actually separating the children and parents; and the need for continuing efforts of the social worker after placements have been made.

The speaker also stressed the need for good public relations programs on the part of societies, emphasizing that the work of the society is as much in the field of prevention as any medical service. "It is economically sound to keep the child in his own home as well as being sound social work practice," he stressed in pointing up the importance of the preventative work of the society.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. D. O'Sullivan and thanked by W. J. Cheesman.

Dr. H. V. Cranfield, retiring president of the society, in his address, reviewed the recent action of the Department in placing older and handicapped children and noted the success of the campaign. He noted the Halton society had joined in the action of the department, emphasizing the strength of the nation depends on family unity.

Director G. F. Thompson visualized the need for another social worker soon, in presenting his report, pointing out the population of the county had grown from 28,000 when he began the work to its present 68,000.

In reporting on the wards of the society, the director cited the problems of the unmarried mother, and broken homes as the two main reasons for child placements.

Speaking on the problem of broken homes, the director noted that "in many cases the parents lack maturity and an ability to handle finances. They're simply not big enough for the job."

Donations from Orenda and Avro Employee Welfare Agencies were praised as making it possible for the society to extend its family welfare services.

The director reported 57 applications for adoptions with 21 placements being arranged or an average of three applications for every adoption. Dealing briefly with the adoption of older children, he emphasized "Each child must be considered on its own. It's a terrific adjustment not only for the child but also for the family."

Added to the list of Honorary Life Members of the Society were J. M. Denyes and Dr. H. V. Cranfield.

Retiring directors were Robert G. Mason, Mrs. M. J. Brown, Don C. McCready and Robert Marshall.

The treasurer's report, presented by Mrs. R. Powell in the absence of W. Deans, indicated a total budget of $43,606.51, with an operating deficit of $1,721.98. Largest expenditure was for board, clothing, supervision, school supplies, medical, dental and hospital expenses for children in foster homes totalling $33,036.51.

The following directors were appointed for 1957: Acton, Mrs. J. E. Whitham, Mrs. A. J. Orr; Bronte, Rev. W. Sheryn; Burlington, Mrs. Stewart McLaughlin, W. J. Cheesman; Georgetown, William Deans, Rev. A. J. Calder; Milton, J. W. Higgins, E. W. Foster; Oakville, Mrs. Hugh Pullen, Mrs. F. C. Bowden; Esquewaux township, Mrs. Leslie Willis, Mrs. Wilfrid Bird; Nassagawyes township, J. Murray Mahon, Omar K. Van Sickle; Nelson township, Mrs. Velma Norris, Mrs. E. B. Clements; Trafalgar township, Harold Biggar, A. Walsom; county council representatives, Sydney Childs, Herbert C. Merry.

Rev. Lorne Graham gave the invocation prayer at the opening of the meeting and Mrs. M. Galloway was pianist. Mrs. Velma Norris expressed the thanks of the Society for the use of the church and to those who assisted.

Lunch was served by the Mr. and Mrs. Club at the conclusion of the meeting.

Many Prizewinners in Hunters & Anglers Draw

An electric blanket, Coleman stove, pop cooler, spinning rod, lamp, and electric clock were the prizes given away at the Georgetown Anglers & Hunters spring draw made at the club cabin last Thursday night.

Shirley Bludd, daughter of Ralph Bludd, 3 Churchill Cres., was the winner of the electric blanket on ticket number 299. The president of the Anglers & Hunters, Don Thompson, made the draw for the first prize. Vice-president Bill Schenk drew number 856 on the Coleman two burner camp stove which went to Cliff Cook, Terra Cotta.

Jack Puckering was host for the night and made the draw on the third prize, the portable pop cooler, won by Vic Torrance, 56 Queen, with ticket 492. The last three draws were made by non-members. Wally McDevold, nosed number 1375 to send the hollow glass spinning rod to Jim Peardon, 21 Byron St. and Everett Cole drew 776 on the table lamp won by Ab Whitney.

The final prize, an electric clock went to Eric Clarke, 8 Campbell Gate with ticket 1063 drawn by Andy Crichton. Prior to the draw films were shown by Art McAllister. The meeting concluded with the serving of a light lunch and coffee.

GLEN WILLIAMS

Golden Wedding for The Ambrose Hancocks

A very happy occasion for Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Hancock Jr. was the celebrating of their Golden Wedding anniversary on Sunday, April 21st. Mr. Hancock came to Canada in 1906, then returned to England and married Annie Charlotte Salvige of Highbridge, Somerset, and in June, 1907, brought his bride to Canada. They settled in the Georgetown district. Mr. and Mrs. Hancock took up farming on the 3rd Line, Chingacousy, at Mt. Pleasant and later moved in 1913 to the farm formerly owned by Robert Groat. They are still living on this farm, R. R. 4 Georgetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Hancock have a family of four sons and three daughters. One daughter Florence died in 1932. Their family, able to be at home for this happy occasion, were: Mrs. Helen Stayner and Carla, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hancock and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McCutcheon, and family of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Hancock and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hancock and family, Glen Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hancock and boys, Mr. and Mrs. George Gilmore and family of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hancock of R. R. 1 Terra Cotta. There are twenty grandchildren and one great grandson.

A buffet luncheon was served at noon and again in the evening with the beautifully decorated anniversary cake centering the table. Many lovely cards, gifts, and flowers were received by Mr. and Mrs. Hancock who enjoyed a very happy occasion with the family.
