White mums, snapdragons and spiraea decorated St. Paul's United Church in Brampton, for the wedding of Mildred Lorben Fenwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Fenwick, and Fraser Thomson McNabb, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McNabb of Georgetown. Rev. J. A. McDermid officiated at the ceremony, and Mr. Hank Naylor sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of flocced Swiss silk organza, the Sweetheart neckline outlined in seed pearls. The full skirt had a bustle effect, and the fingertip veil was held to a small crown embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white mums and lily of the valley.

Mrs. Ron Shearson of Georgetown (sister of the bride), was matron of honour. She wore a ballerina length brocaded taffeta gown in periwinkle blue with matching floral eiclet and carried a cascade of white and blue mums.

The two flower girls, Lynda Fenwick (niece of the bride) and Lois McNabb (niece of the groom) wore similar gowns of brocaded taffeta in shades of lilac and yellow respectively, with matching bandeaux. They carried baskets of yellow and mauve pom poms.

Angus McNabb of Guelph was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Milford Fenwick, brother of the bride, and John McNabb of Georgetown, brother of the groom.

A reception was held at the Queen's Hotel in Brampton. The bride's mother received the guests in a gown of Alice Blue lace, with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations. The groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Donald McNabb of Windsor, assisted in receiving the guests. She wore a powder blue gown with blue accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Following a honeymoon trip to the east coast, the couple will reside near Georgetown. The bride travelled in a navy linen suit with white and navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Chamber of Commerce Produces New Film

The Ontario premiere of a new educational film illustrating the dramatic role which capital plays in Canada's development was staged recently by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Arcadian Court, the Robert Simpson Company Limited.

Entitled "The Story of Creative Capital," the technicolor film was produced for the Canadian Chamber as part of its economic understanding "action" program. The film is being distributed in Canada through the cooperation of the Canadian Chamber's 760 member boards of trade and chambers of commerce and 2,300 member companies. Other outlets include: schools, service and social clubs, church, farm, civic, women's and employee groups.

In colourful, humorous, light-hearted animation "The Story of Creative Capital" tells the exciting story of where capital comes from and what it does, with emphasis on the importance of the individual in Canada's economic system. It answers such questions as: "Is everybody a capitalist? How can we go on improving our standard of living."

Billions of dollars of invested capital, the film explains, have helped to create the complex and efficient tools which have made work easier, and the individual's time more valuable through greater productivity. For example, the film points out: "In a typical 40-hour week it takes only 21 hours of work to buy the necessities of life. It takes 10 hours of work to pay your taxes. What you earn in the other nine hours means you can buy a lot of things that make life more pleasant. And, like most people, you'll have something left over for savings and insurance."
