Local Girl Describes Experience Centenary World Guide Camp

by Dawn Fiebig

During this past month, Canadian Girl Guides have been plying hostess to Girl Guides from all over the world, in one of the largest Girl Guide get-togethers in the history of Girl Guiding. A Centenary World Camp was held at Doe Lake, north of Huntsville, from August 8th to 19th. The general theme of the camp, which was held in commemoration of the founder's one hundredth birthday was "World Friendship."

The flag raising ceremony on Friday, August 9th was a solemn thrilling moment, never to be forgotten by anyone who witnessed it. At a given moment, three Guides from each of the forty-one countries in attendance, in full dress uniform, broke the flag of their country.

On Saturday, August 10th, despite the rain, the official opening of the camp was held, the only change in plans being that everyone was forced to wear raincoats. With Mrs. Rankine Nesbitt, Chief Guide Commissioner for Canada, and also camp chief, were Countess E. Bernadotte, vice president of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, and Ellen L. Fairclough, secretary of State.

For her speech, Mrs. Fairclough who officially opened the camp, said that great things have small beginnings and that world peace could never be without the individual friendships such as would be made at camp. The countess remarked that through all her travelling, she realized that people of all nations are alike, no matter how different their environment may be. As darkness closed in, the large ceremonial campfire was lit by a Canadian Guide, while a representative of each country placed a faggot from her own country on the fire. Perhaps the most impressive was the faggot from Mexico, which burst into brilliant flames of red, green and white, the colours of their flag. A general singing ended the campfire, and the Guides returned to their respective quarters with a warm, glowing feeling.

For eleven exciting days, these girls did their own cooking over charcoal burners, and slept under canvas. Each patrol of eight was supplied with two wall tents, for sleeping, and one fly tent, which was a kitchen and was supplied with everything needed, such as dishes, pots, soap, dish cloths, tea towels, etc.

Much of the time was 'free' time, time which the girls were allowed to spend their own way. This was mostly spent trading or just talking with girls from overseas, though occasionally time was taken out to write home or to friends. But always there was something going on: movies, square dancing, singing or likewise.

Almost every unit (four patrols) had the honour of having as their guest for a meal, sometime during the camp period, either Mrs. Nesbitt or the Countess, who preferred to be called "Paki." Naturally, everyone was nervous at the thought of entertaining such an important person, but, when the time came, it was found out that they were warm and friendly, just like any other Guides.

Saturday, August 17th was visitors day at the camp, and everyone then, was invited to the giant campfire in the evening, when every country put on a short performance of "one type or another." During the day, the guests were able to see fashion shows and folk dancing from many countries, and allowed to see through the whole campsite.

On the Sundays of the camp period, the Guides were able to attend the church service of their choice, and in the evening a Guides Own, was held in the beautiful outdoor chapel.

Then, on the closing night of camp, there were very few Guides, (or Guiders) who didn't break the Guide Law which states "A Guide smiles and sings under all difficulties." For tears ran freely at the thoughts of leaving all the wonderful new found friends. But the next day, everyone departed their own way saying "write soon, and I'll be seeing you at our Cabana (or chalet) next year!"

But I believe, that even if every person from this camp could gather at Doe again, we could never relive the eleven gloriously "fairy tale" days.
