WHAT COUNCIL DID

Council, Planning Board Disagree On Maple Ave. Zoning Action

Criticism of a Planning Board decision turning down rezoning of a property on Maple Avenue was expressed by several councillors at Monday's council meeting.

The decision concerned a property backing the Georgetown Dairy, on which council had given an option to sell for $2500 to Al Norton, who plans to erect a commercial building. When Mr. Norton first approached the council some time ago, it was thought the property was in a commercial zone, but it was later discovered that it is residential in the proposed town zoning. Council then asked Mr. Norton to submit his proposal to the Planning Board, which declined to make a zoning change.

Cr. Ern Hyde argued strongly for the Norton building. Council has said only recently that a house can be built in the backyard of a town property, and cannot stop semi-detached houses, he said, but in this case is being "sticky."

Cr. Garfield McGilvray expressed the opinion that the town needs commercial assessment, that Maple Ave. is a busy street and can see no advantage in keeping that portion of it residential. Reeve Stan Allen agreed, saying that the envisaged all Guelph Street as commercial someday.

Cr. Fred Harrison drew a strong objection from Deputy Reeve Doug Sargent when he asked: "Is this the same planning board that sold Normandy Blvd. down the river a few months ago for a gas station, when 96 residents petitioned against it?"

The deputy reeve, who is also a planning board member said he had been against the gas station personally, but that it had been a democratic vote and he did not like the reference.

Mayor Armstrong said that he has expressed a personal opinion that he is uncertain how effective the town could be in a court of law in refusing any building permit until the zoning by-law is passed.

The planning board, he pointed out, only operates to pass on recommendations to council. If council wishes to take other action, it is free to do so.

A request to purchase a vacant lot on Normandy Blvd. by Mr. Miller of Brampton was turned over to the property committee.

The lot had originally contained a sewage pump house which has been subsequently removed.

Cr. Alfred Sykes suggested that if council is considering selling any more town property, it should be surveyed and listed, then advertised publicly for sale.

Sunday construction work? Definitely against unless it is a man privately working on his own home.

Scouts Net $300. in Annual Apple Tag Day

The local Boy Scouts enjoyed one of their most successful Apple Days in recent years, Saturday, October 19th, selling twenty five bushels and collecting a total of $319.30. After expenses the money was split among the three troops, each receiving $78.75. The money will go towards their summer camp fund.

The amount was particularly good since Glen Williams Scouts who in past years totalled their receipts with Georgetown, had their own Apple Day and collected approximately $86.

Nick Ferri Night Tuesday Brampton Regents Visit

If the respect due to a certain twelve year veteran of the Georgetown Raiders is properly shown the local arena will be packed come Tuesday night when the Raiders honour their long time player and more recently playing coach Nick Ferri, who this year hung up his skates to take a coaching job with the Brampton Regents.

Nick will have his team here for an exhibition game, the first one this year for the revamped Raiders who are grabbing players at the flick of a press clipping including Sundridge star John Wood, and a complete new forward line as well as another goalie to share duties with Fred Lawrence. The new players' names cannot be made public until the signings are completed and the other clubs which were negotiating with these players notified.

As soon as football season is over Bill Gingham, of the Brampton and not creating a nuisance for his neighbours.

This was council's opinion after the question of construction companies working that day was brought to council's attention by Bernard Cassell, representing East Georgetown Ratepayers.

Mayor Armstrong said it is council's policy to prohibit commercial building on Sundays and this policy will continue to be followed.

The carriers were also taken on a tour of Ottawa and Hull before returning home the next day.

Feature Spot on 7 On Toronto TV Show

Television viewers who watched the program "Open House" on Channel 6 last Friday afternoon at four, probably recognized one of the "interviewees" as Miss Gladys Fraser, proprietor of Georgetown's famous Spot on 7. Miss Fraser was chosen by the CBC as the example of one who has found the perfect way to keep busy after retirement. Formerly on the teaching staff of a Montreal high school Miss Fraser has made Spot on 7 known all over southern Ontario and lists many dignitaries and members of parliament among her guests.

Cooking as a pleasure-giving hobby more than a means of support. Miss Fraser regards the preparation of fine cuisine as one of the highest arts. CBC cameras filmed her at her work several weeks ago for the Friday afternoon showing which though only two minutes in length took close to five hours to shoot. She is also scheduled to appear some time in the future on a live CBC television program.

Parable of Talents is Layman's Sermon Topic

"Everyone has five talents and should use them to the best of his ability," said Ernie Barnes, Ballinford, as he spoke at a special layman's service in St. George's Anglican on Sunday morning.

Mr. Barnes, a member of the St. George's congregation, used the parable of the talents as his text and cleverly interpreted it for his listeners. The talents human beings are endowed with, he said, are time; energy; wealth; influence and life itself. Every man has them all, in some measure, and it is his duty to use them, not to bury them in the ground as the one-talent servant did.

Harvey Dewhurst and Jim Sargent read the lessons at the service; Lloyd Kynnerley the state prayers; and J. L. Lambert other parts of the service. Rev. Kenneth Richardson also participated in the service, which is an annual event for the men.

WHAT COUNCIL DID

WARD VOTE SUGGESTION LACKS COUNCIL SUPPORT

A request by East Georgetown Ratepayers association that Georgetown voters be asked in December to give an opinion on a return to the ward system of voting found little support at council meeting Monday.

Sid Hardie, new president of the association, brought the matter before council after introducing the new executive, elected at a meeting last week.

Only councillors to comment of any length on the proposal were Reeve Stan Allen and Cr. Harry Hale. The reeve said he does not think the town is big enough yet for ward voting. Georgetown is still of a size where a councillor knows every part of town, and he feels decisions can be made better on a town level than by partisan voting.

Cr. Hale said that he had been approached by some College View residents on the same matter. Councillor Hale wrote a motion on the matter which passed around the table, but failed to find a seconder and discussion dropped on the question.

Street signs were also requested by Mr. Hardie, who suggested council allot $200 to place signs in the Sunbeam area.

"We need them, but we can't afford them" said finance chairman McGilvray, explaining that the road budget has already been exceeded this year and it is impossible to consider street signs.

"They will be a must" when we have mail delivery and that time is coming soon," commented Cr. Walter Gray, who said the last estimate received for street signs had been $6,000.

Cr. Ern Hyde suggested that next year council should start budgeting on a 4 year plan for the signs.

"Perhaps other subdividers would place street signs at their own expense the way Delrex has done" was Cr. Fred Harrison's suggestion, while declining to write subdividers to ask this, the mayor said the news would no doubt appear in the local press, and perhaps a subdivider would take the hint.

A third matter brought up by the ratepayers group, presented by Bernard Cassell concerned heavy traffic on Sunbeam area streets, which he claims are being damaged by heavy machinery.

While council was sympathetic with the problem, the mayor said he knows of no law which can restrict such traffic.

"It's a problem of every growing town" said Cr. Harrison, pointing out that while subdividing is taking place, it has happened elsewhere in town, too, he said, and the problem will right itself as an area is completed.

The mayor said the town solicitor will be consulted about any legislation possible.

Spreading in the area is a problem, and the public are doing their best to check this, Cr. Harrison said. Some of the speeding complaints he said, might be exaggerated by mothers anxious for their children who use the streets for playing.

Mayor Armstrong said he is particularly concerned about Shelley Street when school comes, out and suggested that the police patrol at these times. Besides watching traffic, he thought a kindly word to children to walk on the side of the road would be effective.

Cr. Harrison expressed the opinion that the town is duty-bound to put sidewalks on streets when a school is constructed in an area. He wrote a motion to this effect, but it failed to find a seconder and was not presented.

Cr. McGilvray said he thinks it would be difficult to speed in the subdivision and that tricycles, wagons and children create almost as much a menace to motorists as the cars do to children.

Three Fly to England Attend Father's Funeral

A sad occasion took Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Whitlam, 33 Normandy Boulevard to England by plane when they received news of the sudden death of his father.

Mr. and Mrs. James Whitlam had been home in Bradford, Yorks., only six weeks after spending the summer here and in Acton with members of the family. He was a foreman dyer, employed in the John L. Tankard factory in Bradford.

Mr. Whitlam leaves his wife and two children, his son Ronald and daughter Mrs. William Buchanan of Acton. Mrs. Buchanan also made the trip overseas to the funeral. He also leaves a brother Joseph, in Acton, a brother Frank in Bradford, and a sister, Mrs. Clifford Greaves, who lives near Sydney, Australia. There are seven grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Hughes, Durham Street, had as week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gribben and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Graham, Toronto, and Mrs. William Gribben of Belfast, Ireland.

Bill Armstrong, who is living in Montreal, was a week-end visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Armstrong, 11 McNabb St.

Special Services, Family Night Mark St. John's 118th Anniversary

Large congregations attended the 118th anniversary services held in St. John's United Church on Sunday. Three services were required to accommodate the congregations. The church was beautifully adorned with flowers and the redecorated Sanctuary looked lovely for these special services of praise and worship.

Unfortunately Mrs. Fernie Caird of Toronto who was to have been one of the guest soloists was ill with the flu and could not attend, but Mr. Jack Paterson of Toronto was in attendance and with his rich baritone voice sang solos at the morning and evening services. At the morning services Mr. Paterson sang "The Lord is My Rock and My Salvation" and at the evening service "When I Survey The Wonders Cross."

The choir under the direction of Mr. Norman Laird sang at the morning services "He Smiled on Me" and at the evening service "No Man is an Island." The Junior Choir sang at the 11 o'clock service a beautiful children's anthem, "O Saviour Sweet" by Bach. Carol Hallett very effectively sang the solo in this anthem.

The guest speaker for the three services was Dr. James M. Finlay, minister of Carlton Street United Church in Toronto since 1953 and for many years minister of throughout the province because of his radio ministry. Dr. Finlay is a warm, fervent friendly minister and his messages were a great inspiration to all who heard him. At the 9.30 a.m. service Dr. Finlay spoke on the subject "Christ is Lord." At the 11 a.m. service Dr. Finlay again spoke and this time on the subject, "Faith Made Visible." "Friends of God" was his subject for the evening message.

At the evening service of worship members of sister congregations attended the service. The minister, Rev. M. G. McFarlane who conducted the service of worship welcomed the visitors, especially mentioning one of his brother ministers, members of Knox Presbyterian Church and members of Knox Young People's Society, and members of First Baptist congregation.

On Tuesday evening the annual family night was held in connection with the anniversary celebration. A Pot Luck Supper was held at 6.30 p.m. After the supper a programme was presented which included a time for members of the Sector Plan committee to present the Budget for 1958, which was approved by the official board of the church. The every member visitation of the church will take place again this year on Sunday, November 17th.
