LEGION NOTES

By Leslie M. Clark

Last Friday night the Legion in Georgetown held their regular Armistice Night supper, with the hall filled to capacity. Each year this is the most looked for event in the Legion's busy schedule, and again proved no exception. An estimated crowd of 250 was present. The dinner opened with Grace and a toast to Her Majesty, proposed by Padre Rev. K. Richardson. A wonderful turkey dinner was served by the ladies of the W.A., who each year do this very necessary and much appreciated job. The president of the Branch then took over, and after welcoming the guests to the supper, introduced the head table, including the Mayor and Mrs. John T. Armstrong, Zone Commander and Mrs. Leslie Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hall, Mr. F. Sandy Best, M.P., the president of the Canadian Legion in Ontario, Mr. Fred O'Brecht and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Day, secretary, and head of the W.A. branch padre Kenneth Richardson, and Mr. and Mrs. Rex Helop, honorary president of the branch. The provincial president, was a guest at the Helop's home during his stay in Georgetown. The other honorary president and his wife were unable to be present, due to Mr. Crichton being out of town.

The toast to the Fallen Comrades was proposed by the zone commander and the gathering stood during the last post and reveille. The toast to the Legion was proposed by Jack Armstrong, mayor of Georgetown, who also introduced the provincial president, and officially welcomed him to the community. Mr. O'Brecht, in his response to it, gave an interesting, humorous and informative half hour address, which kept everyone in the room highly interested, and told a number of interesting things to all the branch members.

He spoke of the recent visit of Her Majesty, where he was present and also of the even more recent visit of the Dominion president and provincial presidents to Ottawa, on the occasion of the annual submission of the Legion brief to the federal government. He told of the interview of over an hour that was held with the Prime Minister and his cabinet and the very concrete proposals that were made. Mr. O'Brecht also remarked on the remarkable fact that most cabinet ministers were members of the Legion and those who were not, he strongly advised to become members as was the P.M. He also spoke of his pleasure at being in Georgetown, and thanked the local Legion for arranging such wonderful hospitality for him during his visit. Mentioning the various problems confronting us in the future, he also spoke of the world situation as it stood today, urging us all to try and further the Legion's proposals to further the cause of educating future generations of scientists so that the free world may compete equally against the state controlled science education program of the USSR.

A vote of thanks to the ladies was proposed by first vice president James Yates.

After the dinner a most enjoyable dance was enjoyed by all present to the music of the Modern Aires.

We like the story we hear about Pat Chamberlain walking with a limp on Sunday in the parade. It seemed he tripped on a tack. Imagine, a grown sergeant falling over a wee defenseless tack.

After that very well attended parade on Sunday (which you can read about elsewhere in the paper) the president, writer and other guests were invited out to the local armories as guests of the regiment, a gesture we really appreciated. It has been our feeling for a long time that the two groups should get together and we think that this is going to be the case. Incidentally, Earl Lince and Ken Murray propositioned boss man Garvin about a turkey shoot between the two organizations, and we expect to see it go through. We already are under the impression that there is going to be a real ladies "shoot-out" at the affair. More details later.

Incidentally, the dart players won top honours at Streetsville on Saturday, and we will give you a full report next week of what transpired and who played. Harry Bottoms got us the details, but we haven't the space in this column this week.

Hear a couple of the boys found out the hard way the truth about parking tickets - ha ha, what do you say, Vern think you and Joe are going to appeal? ... And what did everybody think about Branch 120's guided missile "Futrik" in that demonstration last dance the other night? And for years he has been claiming he couldn't dance!

Much to our relief, we finally located the copy of the Legion brief to the prime minister, so now that we have it, any one interested can have a look at it if they wish, as long as we can have it back.

Our sincere appreciation to Mrs. Grieve and those who helped for their terrific job on such a big day as last Saturday's poppy day.

PREDICTS BRIGHT FUTURE FOR CANADIAN TEXTILES

"Never before in the Canadian primary textile industry, and seldom in any industry, have events moved so quickly and surely in a direction calculated to bring about a reappraisal of our whole position," G. H. Dobbie, of G.H. Ontario, president of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association said.

Speaking at the final luncheon of the Association's three day 35th annual conference at the Seignior Club, Mr. Dobbie said "the situation faced by the textile industry and three events that have taken place within the past year will have the most profound effect on our future."

The three events, the speaker said, were the publication of the preliminary report of the Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects, publication of the report on the textile industry by the Canadian office of the National Industrial Conference Board, and, finally the decision of the minister of finance to ask the Tariff Board to conduct a complete review of Canadian textile and clothing tariffs.

As a result we are now facing, as in the clothing industry, major examination. This is likely to be the most crucial period in the history of these industries," Mr. Dobbie said.

"There has gradually emerged into the public and government consciousness the fact that these large and essential industries need more serious attention and more immediate remedies than have been considered before."

Mr. Dobbie noted that close to three quarters of a million Canadians are directly or indirectly dependent on the primary textile industry for their livelihoods, that the industry, unlike much Canadian manufacturing, is almost entirely Canadian-owned and is operated with the best interests of Canada and Canadians in mind, that capital investment at stake is about three quarters of a billion dollars represented in more than 740 separate establishments.

"It is obvious that our industry represents a contribution of no small importance to the total economy of a nation in which, as was pointed out in the Gordon Commission report, manufacturing must play an increasingly important part," he stated.

"Canadian manufacturers found comfort in the recognition accorded by the report to the importance of their industries.

"Of more direct importance to Canadian textile manufacturers was the second major event of the past year: the publication of the report of the Canadian office of the National Industrial Conference Board on the Canadian primary textile industry, which had been ordered by the Gordon Commission.

"Here again was an exhaustive impartial report prepared by an internationally recognized business research organization at the request of the Gordon Commission. It has, logically, become the standard reference on our primary textile industry.

"The Canadian primary textile industry had been accused in certain quarters of inefficiency, over-expansion, lack of imagination, etc. We for the best of reasons, vigorously denied these allegations. They simply were not true.

"Now we have the carefully-documented wholly-impartial NICB report which shows this industry to be - by any standards - efficient, forward looking and by no means over-expanded in relation to the market it should have the privilege of serving. Through this means damaging misconceptions about our industry have been swept away.

"I am sure that I speak for the entire Canadian primary textile industry when I say that we are grateful for the close scrutiny under which our industry has been placed. It has accomplished more to establish what we know to be the true facts than we could ever hope to do by ourselves. We now have an objective authority for those statements we have made many times in the past.

"Last month the government announced a Tariff Board inquiry into imports of textiles into Canada. This we welcome, but Tariff Board hearings involve a great deal of work and are time-consuming. We only hope that action will come soon enough to save some of those Canadian textile enterprises that, through no fault of their own, now find themselves on the edge of bankruptcy.

"It is plain that the Tariff Board inquiry and any action, or lack of action, that follows will have a profound effect on our future. For this reason we welcome the indication that the federal government is interested in our problems, and we intend to cooperate to the fullest extent.

"It will take a long time for the Board to review and report on 160 different tariff items. The urgent need is for the job to be done with the greatest speed.

"Some sections of this industry need immediate relief from problems that have already been well documented to the government. It is obvious that Great Britain, the United States, and most of all Italy and Japan, will not restrict shipments of goods to the country while the inquiry is underway.

"The events of the past year have been encouraging. If they reach what undoubtedly is their logical conclusion the Canadian primary textile industry can look forward to a much brighter future," Mr. Dobbie concluded.

SEASON TICKET BUYERS ASSURED PLAY-OFF SEATS

This year the Georgetown Raider hockey club are making it possible for their followers to get a discount on home games admission and have first choice of a reserved seat when play-off time rolls around.

The club is selling season tickets for 12 home games to those interested for $7.50. Each ticket holder will be allowed to purchase two reserved seats for the playoffs. Tickets can be purchased from Ed Pries or members of the executive.
