

Victory Loan Conversions Now Over Two Billion Dollar Mark

With total conversions of Victory Loan bonds now well over the two billion dollar mark, a cargo of paper the equal of a thousand king's ransom will begin moving out of Ottawa any day now.

Altogether, by the time the Canada Conversion Loan programme concludes in mid-September, the new bond shipments from the capital will be sufficient to replace six billion dollars worth of Victory Bonds.

The record cargo will travel on press by rail and air, in closely guarded packages addressed to agents of the Bank of Canada from east to coast. Each package will contain bonds of the new $6.4 billion Canada Conversion Loan in denominations ranging upwards from $30 to $1,000,000. While the shipments will be directed to the Bank's agents in major cities, many of the new bonds will find their way to smaller cities and towns where a great many of the estimated two million Victory Bond holders live.

Officials say that the cargo of bonds will weigh roughly 65 tons. Never before in the history of the Bank of Canada has there been a bond cargo of such staggering size.

Presses at two Ottawa banknote companies are working at maximum capacity to complete the printing of the new issue. Using paper made for the Bank of Canada alone by means of a special formula, they print basic supplies of every denomination. As the bonds come off the press, they are trucked to the Bank for signing and packaging.

Not for another month will the Bank know the precise quantities needed in fifties, hundreds, five hundreds and on up, as owners of Victory Bonds convert their holdings. There is the added complication that while most holders will take advantage of the four and one half per cent interest rate that goes with the 25-year bonds, some will convert to the shorter term at a lower rate.

Meanwhile, across Canada and particularly in the smaller centres branch bank managers have expressed surprise at the "walk-in" business which has greatly exceeded their expectations. Literally hundreds of local people, most of whom had owned the Victory Bonds since they had purchased them during the war, went to their bank or investment dealer office immediately they heard of the conversion loan programme.

Many of these people are past middle age, officials say, and are attracted by the high interest rate to reinvest in the 25-year bonds. Quite a few were delighted to learn that they could "eat their cake and have it, too", by taking their cash adjustment to make some immediate purchase and then having the value of their bond intact in the new issue.

4H WOMEMAKERS PRESENT SKIT AT INSTITUTE MEETING

The regular meeting of the Limehouse W.I. was held on Thursday, July 8th in Limehouse Memorial Hall with the 1st vice-president Mrs. E. Sanford presiding. All of the members joined in singing "The More We See Together" upon the meeting after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The roll call was responded to by fourteen members with My favourite meat recipe and the business portion of the meeting opened with a unanimous vote to send donations to Care and the Scott Mission summer camp. Mrs. George English who is the convener of Home Economics and Health had charge of the program. Two minute reports were read by the conveners prior to current events given by Mrs. Paul Spitzer. The 4H Homemaker girls were present at the meeting and presented a skit "Let's Cook It Right". They also had a display of hat boxes, garment bags, etc which they had made during their project of Clothes Closets Up to Date.

Each year the W.I. presents any girl completing a home making unit with a silver salad fork, and this year the award went to eight of the members. A copper planter was also presented to Mrs. Jack Noble in recognition of work as secretary-treasurer for the past six years. Mrs. Sanford made the presentation. Mrs. Noble expressed her thanks to the ladies and said that she had enjoyed working in that capacity.

The meeting was brought to a close with The Queen, after which a social half hour was enjoyed and tea and tarts served by the committee.

Percy Property Deeded For Metropolitan Conservation

When the 375-acre A. H. Richardson Conservation Area in Pickering Township is officially opened August 6, it will become the third such area to have been acquired from conservation-minded citizens who wished to have the lands preserved in their present state.

The two others are the 190-acre Heart Lake near Brampton and the 240-acre Boyd property near Woodbridge.

All three are administered by the Metropolitan Toronto & Region Conservation Authority.

The Richardson area originated with the deeding of a 100-acre woodlot by the late Arthur Percy to Ontario County on the condition that it be preserved in its pristine beauty for future generations. The County transferred the land to MTRCA, and with this 100 acres as a core, the remaining 275 acres were added to it.

The Boyd area was purchased 33 years ago by Dr. Edmund Boyd who protected this piece of valley land, built roads, preserved the forest and reforested suitable areas.

Heart Lake was purchased by the late Colonel Allan Taylor when he built a home on its shore in 1926 and preserved the property in its pristine beauty during the ensuing years.

The three men, Percy, Boyd and Taylor were conservationists. They acquired the lands, protected and improved them, and when the opportunity came, were prepared to transfer them to a municipally-controlled conservation group for the use of future generations.

Thus, instead of being absorbed by encroaching urban expansion, these areas are being retained as oases of peace for those who toil in the nearby city.

And herein is food for thought for those who own properties with a conservation potential — that, having developed these properties, protected their woodland, and dreaming that they be retained for the future, might follow the example of Messrs. Boyd, Taylor and Percy.
