AN EVENING WITH BARRIE BAND

The Barrie Collegiate Band under the direction of Mr. Allen Fisher and sponsored by the St. Thomas Evening music club, came to St. Thomas last February 7th. They played to a good audience including groups of band students from other schools.

The band has been in existence for twenty years and has won 42 trophies in Canada, United States and abroad. All the musicians are high school pupils and most of them have a five or six year background in piano and know how to read music, a help in learning to play their instrument in a shorter time than if they did not have his experience. Most of the band members are taught at school.

A regular classes and practice periods although private lessons are taken by about five per cent. Some of the members have their own instruments, while the rest belong to the band itself. After the intermission, the conductor, Mr. Fisher gave a description of the instruments for the sake of the student observers and gave the prices of each, for the benefit of the parents. He commented on the support given by the Barrie school board after a measure of success had been achieved. The band leader then stated that a school must not get discouraged with their first efforts if they do not sound like symphonies after a year or two. It takes about four or five years to train a band in order to obtain this effect. Mr. Fisher also explained that the band that was playing for us was not the one that went to Holland this summer. He said "We have suffered graduation and have lost the cream of the top off the bottle and are now trying to make new cream from the skim milk of this year."

In a year or so Barrie is planning to start an alumni band for graduates who wish to keep up with their musical work. I was sorry to hear that our Citizens Band in Georgetown had folded from lack of support. It is too bad that we do not have more spirit in our community. The boys' band has been doing quite well and I hope that they do not go to the same doom. It would be wonderful if more towns would follow Barrie's example.

When the curtain was drawn, all the musicians stood as the conductor walked on stage. I was impressed by their attractive, neatly pressed uniforms. They wore red blazers, black bow ties, white shirts and blouses, white trousers and white socks and shoes. The audience stood with them while they played "The Queen," following which Mr. Fisher said a few words of introduction.

The first numbers were of a classical nature by Bach, Beethoven and Mendelssohn. The music was beautiful. I was impressed by their attractive, neatly pressed uniforms. They wore red blazers, black bow ties, white shirts and blouses, white trousers and white socks and shoes. The audience stood with them while they played "The Queen," following which Mr. Fisher said a few words of introduction.

ROSS NORTON, VIOLET GOUGH PLEDGE VOWS, ACTON CHURCH

Violet Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gough, St. Catharines became the bride of Ross Harvey Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Norton, Limehouse on Saturday, January 24th, in Acton Pentecostal Church.

Rev. Ronald Hall, Georgetown and Rev. R. Reid, Acton, officiated at the ceremony. Accompanied by Mrs. Ida Hall the organist, Robert Gough sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the registers. The church was decorated with pink and white mums. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of pleated nylon tulle and lace over satin. It was fashioned with a fitted waist of lace embroidered with opalescent sequins, the collar was of mandarin design and the skirt with an apron of lace and tiers of tulle and lace. The veil swept from a headdress of sequins. She carried a white bible with streamers of red sweetheart roses.

Joan Chartier was maid of honour wearing a blue crystalette gown with matching hat and gloves and carrying a colonial bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums. Alan Bowen of Acton was groomsmen and the ushers were Jim Bailey, Georgetown and Doug Subject of St. Catharines. A reception followed at the Jack O'Lantern dining room. For their wedding trip through the State of New York the bride chose a royal blue suit with black and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Norton are living in Georgetown.

WHAT COUNCIL DID

Seek Tenders for New Police Cruiser
Tenders have been asked by the town for a new police cruiser. The cruiser, recommended by the police committee to replace the present 1957 vehicle, was approved by a council majority, with Cr. Ern Hyde dissenting, at Monday's council meeting. Mr. Hyde contended that the trade-in value should be checked against the cost of putting the cruiser in all shape.

Mayor Armstrong said he believes a policy of trading every two years would work out best in the long run, as it would establish a set procedure to follow, and other councillors agreed to handle such matters. "We haven't done that with our town trucks. The police car isn't a beat-up machine and we might save money by repairing it" was Cr. Hyde's comment.

Requested by the Bell Telephone Co. for permission to erect telephone poles on the highway, council decided to ask if cables could be buried and requested an interview with a company engineer. Cr. Harrison opined that buried cables cost the town more money when such things as storm sewers are installed.

"It seems ridiculous to grant a company a free privilege and have the town pay later" he said. Five engineers, applicants for a town position, will be interviewed at next Monday's council meeting.

First readings were given to a $200,000 debenture by-law to build Georgetown's fifth public school.

A motion by Harrison and Gray met no support in seeking to have an engineering firm provide a $400 report on replacing overhead railway bridges on the highway and the 9th Line. Instead, council decided to ask the highways department for a report on the "white bridge" and the county for a similar report on the 9th Line bridge.

The discussion led to a brief exchange of heated words between Crs. Harrison and Hyde when Cr. Harrison said he was asking for a recorded vote so if a life was lost it would be on record who favoured bridge improvements.

"I take a dim view of putting the onus on a councillor for a child being killed on the white bridge" said Cr. Hyde. "Unless the bridge collapses through our negligence, I don't feel any more responsible than if a child were injured on the 9th Line, Ewing St., Maple Ave., the subway or any other danger spot in town."

"I would feel responsible if a danger was brought to my attention and I didn't try to do something about it" said Cr. Harrison.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. George Galbraith and family on the death of Mr. Galbraith's brother Charles at his home on Monday.

BANTAMS MEET HESPELER IN OMHA HOCKEY SERIES
The local bantams dropped their final game before entering their division hockey playoffs on Sunday night when they fell 1-0 to a husky Hamilton club.

Probably the roughest contest of the exhibition series, it was dotted with a rash of penalties, many of them fighting majors and had to be called before regulations time because of the outbursts. Hamilton had it all over the locals in the weight department and took advantage of the difference as it got rougher.

The lone goal came in the middle period off the stick of Gannan after he took a pass from Gervais. Georgetown opens the playoffs against Hespeler Saturday night in Hespeler in the first of a home and home series total goals to count.

Included in the Georgetown lineup were Vivian, Marchmont, Cooper, Morrow, Scott, Adams, Dixon, Campbell, Korzack, Kemthead, Lane and McNiven.

INDIGESTION
That old alibi to indigestion disturbances. "Must have eaten something which did not agree with me" is not always the truth. Those who chronically complain about digestive troubles and jump from diet to diet without relief are not necessarily suffering because of the type of food they eat. A little honest self analysis would make for more understanding.

Chiropractors examining patients with similar case histories often discover deeper causes of over indulgence or poor eating habits. Correct diet should not be undervalued as in health. But indigestion sufferers who carefully watch dietary habits and are still troubled should have reason to suspect that the trouble begins elsewhere.

The digestive organs with their complicated, but wonderful system for deriving nutritional values from the food you eat, depends on a good supply of nervous energy to activate it.

Poor digestion coupled with headaches "or being off food," can indicate something wrong with the nervous system. Scientists have long proven that mental disturbances, anger and fear can upset digestions. In the same manner, a physical condition can impede the working of one of the many nerves supplying the digestive organs with its working impulses.

Many times, a physical examination by a Chiropractor, will trace chronic indigestion, to pressure on the pneumogastric nerve, indicating misplaced vertebrae. Indigestion sufferers, especially if they honestly know that they have not over-indulged in heavy eating, would be well advised to have a thorough examination.
