FARMERS' ATTENTION

Wanted: A number of progressive farmers in Western districts who would like to set out a commercial block of Red Raspberries either for your local trade or for shipping to recommended city dealers. Recent Ontario-Quebec production figures, prices at 40-60¢ per quart and dealer reports would indicate short supplies every where.

To encourage a limited planting of new high yielding patches, a well known nursery is sending a special representative of many years experience in commercial production to personally interview and educate interested farmers in raspberry culture. This should result in higher unit yields, longer patch life, less hand labor and when translated into dollars at normal prices a relatively high ratio of profit is assured.

Because of the present shortage of good planting material, bookings can only be made for Fall Planting, 1959, limited to one acre 100% Plant Guarantee. Continuous cultural and marketing service. This is a rare opportunity to increase your income. If genuinely interested in berry growing as a sideline to farming, write Box 400, Campbellford, Ont., on or before August 18, giving location of your farm. Our specialists will call later and completely analyze the business, soil requirements and preparation, up-to-date cultural practice, home markets and surplus shipping, cost of planting, estimated yields and profits per acre. Late replies cannot be covered.

Trudy Scott is Acton Popularity Queen

A Limehouse girl, well known locally, Trudy Scott, was crowned Miss Popularity Queen at Acton on Saturday, August 1st to reign over the Minor Sports civic holiday celebration held there the following Monday.

The pretty 17 year old high school student vied with three other finalists for the title, the final choice being made by a panel of five judges. Her three attendants accompanied her on the Popularity Queen float during the Monday afternoon parade.

Another Limehouse resident, Gloria Latimer, was among the final four as were Marjorie Gough and Elke Macke of Acton. The girls were chosen by the students of Acton high school.

CHEQUE ARTISTS FLEECE TWO DOWNTOWN MERCHANTS

Two Main St. merchants were victimized by a bad cheque artist last week who pocketed $16 at the expense of McClure's Home Furnishings and Ovenette Bakery.

The culprit used a familiar "modus operandi," purchasing an article in the store and offering a cheque in excess of the value so that he would receive a substantial amount of change. Both the cheques of course "bounced" when the businesses attempted to cash them.

Herald in Commons Library Reminds Travellers of Home

Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Editor:

This is our second trip to the Parliament Buildings, the first one was spent walking around outside until it was after five and too late for an inside tour.

As we drove towards Parliament Hill we were just in time to see the changing of the guard. This is being done this year for the first time at 10 in the morning. The guards wear scarlet tunics and busby hats like those at Buckingham Palace.

How I wish I could describe in detail the beauty that meets your eye as you mount the top of the steps in the beautiful rotunda. It is a series of gothic arches, beautifully carved like church doorways. There is a corridor to the right where the elevator goes part way up to the tower, then a walk of 26 steps to the second elevator which arrives at the top where the clock is located and where one can view Ottawa and take pictures.

Descending by elevator again we were once more in the rotunda and took a tour, first to the House of Commons where the business of government is conducted. On the way, the corridors were lined with offices of the various members of parliament. Our guide told us that there are two and one quarter miles of corridors.

The ceiling of the commons is pure Irish linen, painted, and the carved trim is done in gold leaf. We viewed a memorial to nursing sisters who gave their lives in the war. It is done in Italian marble. Next we went to the senate chambers and before entering we were shown some beautiful paintings of British kings and queens. Queen Charlotte, Alexandra, Victoria, Edward VII, King George and Queen Mary. Now up to the senate itself. Deep red carpet covers the floor, ceiling white with gold trim, and the coat of arms of each province. It was here that Queen Elizabeth opened parliament, a fitting setting for the first lady of our land.

Next we filed down another long corridor lined with portraits of the men who have guided the destiny of our country in the past, and on to the library. Inside, the whole room seemed to vibrate a golden colour. There are 300,000 books in this circular room in blocks like terraces reaching the ceiling. They are grouped in tiers of gothic arches. In the centre of the room is a life size statue of Queen Victoria.

It is quite impossible for me, to describe with any accuracy the beauty of the library. I would like to have stayed much longer. However, move on we must, so on our way again, and at last we were back at the rotunda. I found a few minutes to chat with our guide, and he informed me there was a reading room where most of the papers published in Canada are kept for six months. I asked if he had the Georgetown Herald.

"Come with me," he said, and we were conducted to the reading room. It is much like the reading room of an ordinary library with benches and papers in folders in the centre. Our guide, Mr. Fred Holmes, asked the attendant for a copy of the Herald, and sure enough, there it was, right on hand in all the provinces, with public notices. Almost without number, there was the Herald. Don't let anyone tell us we aren't important. Back to Lansdowne Park to find a good place to park during our Witness Assembly and we were lucky to get close to the huge stadium and under the shade trees in front of the band shell. Last night the stadium had thundered to the roar of stock car races. These were over and now began the task of putting on a new face. Hundreds of our brothers and sisters, pails in hand, began the clean up task. Loads of lumber began to take shape into huge cafeteria benches, etc. The green was tastefully arranged with potted plants. A platform was erected for speakers and orchestra. The heathers toiled all night, many of them with just an hour's sleep, but by noon next day all was in readiness for the opening sessions which would be an inspiration and source of joy to all attending.

All day long the grounds have been filling up. We have been meeting brothers and sisters we have met before. They come by plane, bus, car, truck, any way they can get here. Money is no problem as long as they have enough food to eat and gas for the car. To meet together again, spiritual food, knowledge of the word of God and an understanding of his purpose for mankind, training in the ministry, so as to handle the word of God, is the all important purpose of this assembly of Awake Ministers. And just as the Israelites journeyed to the feast of the tabernacles to worship their god Jehovah and learn of his laws, so do his ministers today, that they may have accurate knowledge to preach the good news of the kingdom that Christ taught us to play for when he said "Thy Kingdom Come."

This first day of sessions has given us much food for thought. Over 6000 were here. I met a brother whose daughter lives at Theoford Mines and he showed me a piece of ore like mineral from the asbestos mines. It seemed to be covered with long cracks, from which protruded little bits of white feathery asbestos. I picked off several small pieces as a souvenir.

More news next letter.

EQUITY

Question: If your equity is about 1/2 the total value of the property, is it required to show the mortgage holder on the policy?

Answer: A fire insurance policy doesn't require that the mortgage be named. However, it's a common business practice for the mortgagee to insist on being included.
