

Parents Are Cautioned To Keep Thin Plastic Away From Children

A caution to parents. Those polyethylene bags which serve as food keep, dry cleaning and laundry dustproof and serve many useful purposes in the home, should never be left near children.

As with so many products of recent scientific progress, thin plastic should be treated with wisdom and caution. Just as electrical fixtures, refrigerators, parent medicines and cleaning fluids, which have been such a boon to comfort and health in recent years, have become a normal, useful part of every household, so will plastic if the same reasonable precautions are taken to ensure the safety of children.

Remember, none of these scientific discoveries are menaces in themselves. It is only through carelessness or lack of information on the part of parents that they become dangerous.

No plastic material ever attacked a child. Instances of suffocation by plastic in every case have been due to misuse by an adult. In some instances, mothers have reused plastic material originally intended to protect dry-cleaned clothing as crib-mattress or pillow cover. In others, plastic bags were actually given to children as playthings or left around the home where they could obtain them.

Here Are The Facts:

Danger to children lies in the fact that this material is completely airtight. If placed in an infant's crib, the thin fabric may be attracted to the baby's face by static electricity and cling there, cutting off air in lake and causing suffocation.

No far in Canada, 10 deaths due to suffocation attributed to plastic have occurred in 1959.

A small figure, thus especially true compared with the countless thousands of child deaths due to auto accidents, drowning, electrical mishaps and poisonings and even smothering by soft bedding particularly pillows. However, it does indicate that an additional hazard has joined the ranks one which will bear watching in equal measure.

Mr. Hilton revealed Stelco's plans to 120 Company sales representatives attending a four-day conference in Hamilton. Their meeting marks the formal observance of the Company's 50th Anniversary Year.

Stelco's program of educational assistance has four provisions:

First is the awarding of undergraduate bursaries valued at $1,000 each to 14 Canadian universities from coast to coast.

Second provision is for grants of four, one-year, $2,000 fellowships worth $2,000 each established to encourage research in metallurgy.

Third, the Company is also establishing a chair in metallurgy at McMaster University to be known as "The Steel Company of Canada Chair in Metallurgy."

The objective of Stelco's bursary plan is to give financial assistance to capable students who might not otherwise attend university. The Company will grant 14 bursaries each year, each worth $200 to run a maximum of four years for any one student. After four years there will be a maximum of 56 bursaries outstanding with a total annual value of $56,000.

The Stelco bursaries will provide $500 each year for the student and a similar amount.

Kid Hockey

Well, fellows, Saturday, Jan. 16th saw us finish the second round of our Saturday morning hockey schedule. The competitive play on all teams is very keen at this point and although there is a fair gap in points from first to last place in each league, anything could happen from here on.

Remember, fellows, every team gets into the playoffs so look out for the under dog there.

I think here that a word of thanks and appreciation should go out to those coaches and managers who have been obtaining extra practice time for their teams and getting them a keen interest on the part of these men who help the boys on the road to success in their hockey careers. Also on the problem of getting parents out to see their boys play hockey.

There are a few who are very dependable and you see their smiles and hear their cheers every Saturday morning but there are others who take for granted that their boys are in good hands and couldn't care less whether he's a good hockey player or not.

They don't stop to realize that when he takes into the arena with him and sees "Dad" with his dad or Bill with his Mom, or John with both, he feels it inside. We have four weeks in the regular schedule in the American league and five weeks in the Junior A and NHL. I predict that in the next five weeks the same familiar faces will appear. I would like to be proven wrong this time and see the arena packed just one morning.

Richard Marchmont, 84 Once Mill St. Grocer

Richard Marchmont, a former resident of Georgetown, died at the home of his grandson in Toronto at the age of eighty-four. Mr. Marchmont lived in the Glen Williams and Georgetown districts practically all his life. His wife, the former Fanny May Norton, predeceased him several years ago.

For many years he worked in what is now known as "The Old Paper Mill" and then in the Alliance Mills where it is believed that he was the first man to "fire the boiler" there. In later years he operated a small store on Mill Street where he sold fruit and vegetables, and groceries. His delivery cart was a familiar sight in the town for many years. During World War II he acted as night constable while the regular constable was in service.

He leaves daughters Ethel (Mrs. M. Vary) Toronto, Florence (Mrs. J. Larson) Cooksville, Gladys (Mrs. W. Plaster) Hamilton and a son James of Toronto. Six grandchildren are also left one of whom is Claude Reid, 110 Mountain Road Georgetown.

Rev. Morgan McFarlane conducted the funeral service at the Harold C. McClure Funeral Home 34 Edith St., on Monday, January 11th. Interment was in Glen Williams Cemetery. Pallbearers were James Marchmont, Russell Vary, Albert Williams, Bob Ferry, Elgie Vary and Claude Reid.

HEAVY SNOWFALL

A heavy snowfall on Monday night made a more normal winter scene in the district, replacing the "icy wonderland" which caused widespread damage last week.
