Visit Many Eastern Points En Route To Son In Ceylon

When a Check Lane farm couple decide to see the world, they don't do it by halves. Last year, Mr. and Mrs. Lytle DeVries started planning a visit to son "Be" and his wife who live in Ceylon. They were also anxious to visit their homeland in Holland, and it was decided to dispose of their farm animals, take a rest from farming, and start in again on their return.

Leaving town on November 18th, they first travelled west, stopping with friends and relatives in Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. In Calgary they visited with Mr and Mrs. E. Poulsen before her marriage. Mrs. Poulsen, who was Kathy Ankersmit, lived for a few years here, with her uncle and aunt, and worked in the Bank of Commerce. They were amazed to see how Edmonton had grown in the years since they first settled there on arrival from Holland.

Heading for the States, they visited Los Angeles, San Francisco, and with former Georgetowners, Mrs. A. G. M. Bruyns and Dr. and Mrs. Alex. Bruyns at Bakersfield. They met up later with Mrs. Bruyns in Holland where she had gone for a visit. Returning to Vancouver, the travellers flew to Tokyo and during their week in Japan were much impressed with the modern cities and progress in agriculture. Next a week in Hong Kong, which they describe as a beautiful city—then Cambodia where they were guests of Bob Bruyns, brother of Dr. Alex, who is with the Netherlands consul and also is district manager for KLM. Fabled Bangkok, Thailand, was just a day stop, and they wished for more time but wanted to get to Ceylon to spend Christmas with their son. During six weeks on the island, they had a fine opportunity to see every nook and corner of this country where son "Be" has worked for an aerial survey firm. Mr. DeVries was impressed with the tea plantations and the peculiar nature of the soil which does not erode and allows planting up mountain-sides. Going by boat, they visited Bombay, Aden and Port Said. The Nile delta is the most fertile land he has seen, thinks Mr. DeVries. Then Cairo, a plane to Rome, Naples and Amsterdam for five weeks in the homeland. It was Mr. DeVries' first visit with his two brothers in thirty years. Mrs. DeVries has two brothers and two sisters, whom she had visited in 1947. Then on to other relatives in southern England, a few days in Madrid and Lisbon, and home by plane to Montreal where they found themselves in the tail end of a Canadian winter—a transposition after months in hot climates. Along the way they took many coloured slides, and the coming years will find the couple renewing their wonderful six months as they view their pictures and recall the incidents of their trip.

A Challenge to Canada Bishop Officiates as 42 Anglicans Confirmed

(An Editorial in The Globe and Mail, Toronto)
Australian Immigration Minister Downer announces that since 1946 his country had accepted almost 250,000 refugees. Now, as its contribution to World Refugee Year, it proposes to bring in 6,000 more during 1960—twice Australia's normal annual intake in this category.

How do Canada's efforts compare with this? Our immigration statistics do not always distinguish between refugees and ordinary immigrants, so that an exact comparison is impossible. However, in a speech at Hamilton last November, Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough gave the number of persons officially classified as refugees who entered Canada from 1946 to the end of 1958 as 230,000.

This general total includes, among others, the "displaced persons" of the postwar years, the Polish veterans, and the exiles from Hungary after the 1956 revolution. In addition, Mrs. Fairclough stated that "many thousands" of persons who were actually refugees had entered under "other classifications."

Perhaps it would be safe to put the total number admitted to Canada at about 250,000. This is approximately the Australian figure, but it should be remembered that Australia's population is around 10,000,000 while that of Canada approaches 18,000,000. If Canada had accepted refugees on the same scale as Australia, our total would be in the neighborhood of 375,000.

It is when we compare the respective contributions of the two countries are making to World Refugee Year that we have cause for real embarrassment. Australia is prepared to bring in 6,000 during the year. The Canadian government's contribution to date has been the movement of 100 tubercular families—perhaps 400 persons in all—from the European camps to new homes and new hopes in Canada. This is a good beginning, but it should be only a beginning. Unfortunately, the Dominion Government seems content to rest on its oars and leave any further movements to be financed by the provinces or by the citizens. Private organizations and individuals are anxious to help—indeed World Refugee Year has received a tremendous response across the country—but they get very little encouragement from the Immigration Department. As the months pass, the danger is growing that our contribution to World Refugee Year will be only a token one.

Bishop W. E. Bagnall officiated at a confirmation ceremony on Sunday afternoon in St. George's Anglican Church, when a class of 42 candidates was presented for the ancient ceremony of the "Laying On Of Hands."

The ceremony drew an overflow congregation, many of them relatives from out of town for this impressive occasion. Rev. Kenneth Richardson assisted in the service and Rev. John Rathbone, Glen Williams, was bishop's chaplain. The vocal choir, men's and boys' choir and junior girls' choir marched in the procession; John Knight was crucifer, Frank and Robert Evis, servers. Bishop Bagnall, also, dedicated two memorial gifts, a white pulpit antependium, presented by the W.A. in memory of Archdeacon W. G. O. Thompson, and a crucifix, presented by Mrs. Chris Sargent in her husband's memory.

Those confirmed at the service were Carol Ann Barber, Bonnie Bell, Ellen Birchn, Jane Bradley, Louise Brinson, Lynn Cuthbert, Janet Chamberlain, Margaret Higham, Suzanne Kidd, Valerie Kitchen, Cynthia Lambert, Linda Morrow, Sharon Morrow, Lillian McCulligan, Judy Nash, Carol Rayner, Lynne Ritchie, Pat Sargent, Carol Shortman, Carol Stevens, Gail Stinger, Virginia Terry, Sheila Wallace, Mrs. Irene Handel, Mrs. Eric Holmes, Mrs. Erwin Lewis, Mrs. Basil McGrath, Mrs. Gordon Spence, Jr., Stephen Arthur, James English, David Francis, Ronald Guyette, Dieter Hachmann, Paul Hodgman, Brian Kaye, Alan Peterson, Steven Petto, Michael Pratt, Gregory Street, Sean Tost, David Underhill and Ernie Trimble.

Look what I get for stepping on spiders!

And what do you know... it's washday! But who cares with electricity to chase those washday blues. In homes with automatic electric washers and dryers... mothers have more time for little boys with nothing to do.
More time for the children... more time for all the things you like to do... that's the joy of owning a modern electric washer and dryer. When your washday disposition is "weatherproof" you'll find your nerves are "shatter-proof." In fact, you'll find that a great many of life's little problems "come out in the wash" when you own an automatic electric washer and dryer.
To get more out of life—get the most out of electricity.
