THE JOHN COULSON FARM at Hornby, 92 acres of the best agricultural land in the district, was willed to the County of Halton for reforestation purposes, when Mr. Coulson died in 1956. County and Department of Lands and Forests officials gathered at the farm to plant the first of some 40,000 trees, which will soon dot the rich fields. Above, the county's agricultural conservation officer, Fred W. Pritchard, takes a turn on the ploughing machine, while officials watch. From left, are Willard B. B. WHAT COUNCIL DID

Industrial Garbage Is Town Responsibility, Sykes Told

A garbage collection problem for Sykes Tool Corporation has been settled by the company's satisfaction. It was reported May 24 when I. L. Sykes, the firm's accountant, attended the council meeting.

A letter from Mr. Sykes was read in the court proceeding complaining that the garbage collector is only responsible for domestic garbage, but after writing the letter, investigation had revealed otherwise.

Collection has now been arranged, he said, but he felt the matter should be cited in court to let all industries know their rights.

A company claim for a tax refund for previous years when they did not have the collection service cannot be met, Mayor Hyde explained, as there is no special assessment for garbage collection, and the onus would be on the firm to know what its tax money entitled.

Mayor Hyde explained that industrial firms, like householders, are entitled to garbage pick-ups on regular days, but that some firms pay extra for special collections, while others prefer to truck their garbage themselves, with the collector arranging for covering it.

Preventing Losses In Grass Silage

J. A. F.

At this time of year many of Halton's farmers will be taking advantage of the lush growth of hay by making grass silage. The purpose of this method of harvesting is to provide high quality protein feed, for supplementing feeding during the winter on stable feedlots.

Reports from the Ontario Agricultural College show that in many cases 25 to 30 per cent of the dry matter from grass silage is lost because of improper handling. The main reason for this is the slow filling of the silage, which is a day or two before the more grain to be added. The ensiled grass is exposed to the air, and this increases the chances for spoilage. The keys to retaining the silage are to chop the grass to a fine horizontal cut, to pack it down, and to cover it with a plastic or tarpaulin which cuts down on the water in the silage, thus reducing the chances of spoilage.

That 20 tons of dry matter is lost for every 100 tons of dry matter put up. The air trap in the silage keeps plants alive and ripening. This can produce heat, smells or mold. In order to cut down the losses, the silage should be filled fast. Rapid filling speeds packing, and drives out trapped air. Increased chopping helps too, especially with late cut forages.

PROWLING BEAR SIGHTED AGAIN

The black bear whose nocturnal prowling is becoming legendary has been sighted again in the Orangeville district on the weekend.

Warning of the bear's presence was given early Monday morning by a continuous bark from dogs in the west hard wood bush on the property of Donald Huggison, Lot 6, Con. 1. Later, three dogs crossed north into the Bowen farm.

The dogs crossed back and forth several times, one resident said, seemingly trying to keep the bear out of the bush. The bear finally went through a rail fence to the north, and headed for the bush on Archie Black's property. It managed to climb the fence on Mr. Black's land, with the dogs still in pursuit, and was last seen headed straight north, entering William Lawson's bush on lot 10.

Fully grown, the bear could have been shot by those who saw it, but the risk of hitting one of the dogs was too great.
