Reciprocity Begins at Home...

We have heard merchants complaining recently about business being bad. A seasonal thing, we would hope, for if any town should be a good business town Georgetown is it.

There are few towns of 10,000 which have less retail outlets than we have, and those who are in business in town should prosper, providing, of course, that they carry the right lines of merchandise and display and advertise them wisely, and keep their stores attractive inside and out.

At a time when stores throughout are a slight slant, we could put up a sign for the time honoured Buy at Home, and not only live shopping public, but to merchants themselves.

We have been trying to get people to know that many merchants are here about the town not just to buy and gain gratuity of the same fact.

No Place for This...

An irate resident phoned our city last week to report a disturbing sight.

According to her story, she had passed a sign on the highway referring to "Buy Canadians," and as well as phoning the herald, had reported it to the police. When we checked a few hours later, the offending sign had been removed.

Perhaps it was a television commercial of children, perhaps a point of view someone who should know better. Whatever the inspiration, it is something you can do without in Georgetown.

As the irate lady said: "We are all now Canadians, of one generation or another."

And how true that is!

The blending of races and cultures is

We don't pretend to be perfect, either, but we have always realized that our daily living comes from town and district, and that a large share of our expenditure should be retained in the same circle.

The commercial world could not exist if Buy at Home were carried to its extreme, we realize, and it would be a parochial world indeed if no one went out of their own trading area.

But we do think that Buy at Home should be close to 100 per cent among those whom it will most benefit.

Every merchant will this week assess his own purchasing and try to divert a larger share among his centres; we think any temporary business recession might be substantially offset.

Please, let us at home profit by the advantage of this year.

A PRETTY LIVELY GHOST

Controversial Corner

By Ian Cass

JESSIE CAMPBELL & THE CBC

After an invasion of reporters last week, Jessie Campbell, the part of popular stars and CBC officials whose marriage has founded as many duos as frequently fail, was over the weekend last week with two choices only, to continue a life of unbearable personal relationship and its aftermath, or say to one of them to enter deliberately into manufacturing evidence which supports the plea that they have had sexual intercourse with a third party. The law was emphatically in favour of the latter. For this year may have a divorce. And in too many cases it is a question of proving the evidence of their no divorce.

The attorney general of the federal government seems to be quite happy to continue along these lines. Other Canadians, as recent events prove, are not so happy. If the CBC program has increased public opinion against this horrible situation once again, the CBC has performed a useful public service.

DOMINION DAY AND THE BILL OF RIGHTS

The subject of the much publicized Bill of Rights, presently under debate in parliament, is a logical subject to follow the previous one which concerned those with few rights. Mr. Duff, entwined with his expert eye, fixed on that which will appeal to mass emotion. Like my other good politicians, once Dominion Day is the day on which to introduce this bill, which may have much appeal, but which contains little controversy and little meaning.

However, I suppose I should not be too hard on our parliamentary. This is a hell of a political contest, by the way. In the first place, the CBC, and in particular the dubiously named Miss Campbell, has been accused of being a prima donna, and said and done has prompted the CBC to issue a series of professional oaths. The CBC has been forced to take the word of the woman who has been accused of being a prima donna, and in the second place, the CBC has been accused of being a prima donna, and in the third place, the
