WHAY COUNCIL DID

Will Create Position
Ass't Town Foreman

With town foreman Alf Collins recuperating in Freeport from an illness which will keep him away from his job for some time, council decided Monday to advertise for an assistant foreman.

In making the move, Reeve Sargent stressed that there is no thought of replacing Mr. Collins in the position.

Even before he took sick it was evident that there is need for an assistant, said the Reeve.

Mr. Collins underwent a successful operation in Georjip recently for removal of a tubercular gland in his neck after several weeks illness and is convalescing in Freeport.

Cenotaph Changed To New Position In Park

Objections to the position of Georgetown's war memorial have subsided with the latest move. The memorial, which was shifted from its familiar site at the busy Main at Georjip corner last month, was centre of objection for the majority of council and some residents because of its new position in the as yet nameless park at the corner of James and Charles. It was at that time being parallel to James St. On council's instruction the company which engineered the original move from the Main & Georjip corner to the new park, Charles Matthews of Langstaff, returned to town a week ago last Friday to swing the monument to face diagonally across the picturesque area directly between the two roads. The local branch of the Canadian Legion have indicated that they will donate benches and town engineer Geoff B. Ch. said floodlighting may also be included in the town's plans.
