Dear Sir

H. N. Martin's letter in last week's Herald provided very interesting reading, but to congratulate our council for an achievement in the negative is beyond me.

During the past year I have followed council activities through the medium of your paper and our council achievements could be summarized as follows:

1. Pettiness over Personalities Heslop controversy
2. Promises instead of Performance Roads Issue
3. Fiction instead of Facts, Lever Report
4. Ice Cream signs not industry.

Oh yes, and a tax increase. What an achievement! What a council!

Yes, I do belong to the Delrex locale. However, I am not in the least bit interested in Mr. Heslop, but I am a disgusted taxpayer.

A few weeks ago Mr. Hyde made a statement regarding his responsibility to the businessmen of this town. Could that responsibility include keeping industry out?

How much more profitable it would be for a businessman to pay perhaps an additional $1,000 in taxes each year, because of the lack of industry and be in a position to save himself about $10,000 in wages — quite an investment. Brampton can get lots of industry, yet its neighbour — well?

This I will say for Mr. Heslop, he did put Georgetown on the map, but now that I think of it, so did some of our councillors — through Pierre Berton's column.

Yours, thoroughly disgusted
R. McNEILLY

LONDON YOUTH IS ROBIN HOOD

A former young local resident is a modern Robin Hood, according to a story in the London Free Press.

Johnny Smith was one of a group of young men who travelled to northern Ontario on a rattlesnake shooting expedition. Disdaining modern weapons they used bows and arrows and succeeded in bagging three rattlers. Their prey proved a tasty meal later, when they skinned them and fried the meat with frogs legs.

Their pictures appeared in the Free Press. Johnny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold (Mike) Smith of London and grandson of Mrs. John Cordaro of town.
