Subdivision Control By-law

(Continued from Page 1) be justified, but "apparently in complete disregard of this, the committee propuses, without subdivision by law adhering to the 60 7 40 formula which has proved to be impractical.

The letter said that in dol means that for every 100 homes built at an average $4500 access. ment, $300,000 worth of factorwes would have to be erected "This means that for every $3,000 m a plant letter concluded.

In an earlier letter, address ed to council's planning com mittee, the builders had suggested that building permit any time to suggest amendthat $50 of this amount be allocated for a full time indus trial commissioner They also recommended lesy of $300 per lot, carmarked for a fund to be used either for building small plants on a speculative basis or larger ones for specific tenants

This, the builders com would relieve a subdivider of ing any given ratio and build ers would be encouraged to cooperate in seeking industry without disputes as to who actually obtains it and is en titled to credit for the result ing assessment

"I think when you hear the by law tonight you will had that consideration has been given to your requests" said Major Hyde. It would be im possible, he added, to have any such industrial financing plan contained in the control by law, though council might later dis. cuss this in connection with the building by law.

Cr. Fred Harrison claimed the present situation would not exist if the town's original subdivider had lived up to his agreement.

"Council gets the blame for trying to stop building building permit has ever been denied and there are still 360 agen lots in town for which permits can be issued," he stated Cr. Harrison said that if house building continues with. out more industry, taxes could get so high prople couldn't | afford to live in town "We can't give in to two or three builders and sacrifice 10,000 people who are paying Any drastic change will
