WORDS OF THE WISE
One fact stands out in bold relief in the history of man's attempts for betterment. That is that when compulsion is used, the end is not gained. Only through moral suasion and appeal to man's reason can a movement succeed. — Samuel Compere.

Lucky Draw Winners Chosen at Legion Party

Santa Pays Annual Visit to Veterans

To the accompaniment of carols and recorded music, the annual Legion Christmas Tree took place last Monday night. It is believed to have been the biggest ever held.

Gob Collier was again looking after the arrangements, and as always he and his committee did a superlative job.

Parents and children were welcomed by president David Capperault, who then with a few remarks, introduced the guest of honour, Santa Claus.

A number of the committee then helped Santa distribute the several hundred presents.

At the end of the evening, the M. C., Les Clark, announced the winners of the lucky draw as they were picked out of the drum by children sitting in front of Capperault and others.

Those winning the prizes were: Perkins, 9853, 2nd prize; Gord Harley, 819, 3rd prize; Mrs. J. Kemshead, 1226, 4th prize; Mrs. E. Walker, George St., 435, 5th prize; A. Pollock, 1204, 6th prize; A. Dickering, 954, 7th prize; Mrs. J. Kemshead.

A number of presents were not claimed. These can be obtained by contacting Mr. Collier. A number of presents also were mixed, inasmuch as a few girls received boys' presents. These may be exchanged also.

Those attending the Christmas Tree were:

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

One was a blond angel, the other had the black curly hair and snappy brown eyes usually associated with the French Canadian race. They were twins, but no more identical in nature or demeanor than their color.

I was to learn later, riding the train between Edmonton and Toronto for me as like slipping into a comfortable old shoe I like the VIP coach because I can reserve a seat and settle into a good book without any interruptions. This trip was to prove the exception.

I hadn't noticed until after we pulled out of Toronto station that the children were along. They sat straight and silent, clad in bright red velvet dresses fringed with white crocheted collars their short legs sheathed in red tights and each tiny foot encased in a white fur topped galosh. They looked like foot-stomping bun-nyes as they swung their legs and gave a nod to the window.

When the CNR conductor came along he conversed with them in French, patting each child on the head and then turned to punch my ticket. "Are you going to spend their holidays with their grandparents? Kids sure get around these days." he inquired.

He was hardly out of sight when the children began chattering and looking towards the end where the word "Men" was lit up like a sign, then to the electrical sign at the other end. "Women!" The only word my high school French could dissect from the chatter was "men" as I pointed to the "Men" sign and said "Yes, I am coming rather intelligently than I thought you would be for this scattered down the train in the first section."

When they returned they snuggled in with me on either side. That afternoon French phrase was no longer French, evidently though they had long since passed of their terror of the "men" sign. As I looked by the reflection in the windows they were quiet. Why hadn't I studied more as to the bilingual directions on the packages of my morning cereals, or the telephone call in Montreal last night? I might have been around

She soon discovered the children had been instructed to meet their grandparents at the clock in the centre of the station's main lobby.

I only waited long enough to see loving arms encircle my biggest charges beneath that famous lamp-post, then I rushed by and loudly hailed a taxi which can be understood in almost any language.

WORDS OF THE WISE
The love of liberty is the love of others; the love of power is the love of our eyes.
William Hazlitt

Wood is an excellent building material in that it is easy to work, and mold for. It is durable, has beauty of figure and high insulating value.

We looked about hopefully. No one rushed up to the young ones as I had pictured rather than to their heart. The faces that hung over the banister dividing passengers from relatives, were as strange to them as they were to me. I didn't bear streamers down the stairs, the girls and I for the first time in hours, they were not included in any language. If they were terror-stricken was speechless? What in heaven's name was I to do with two youngsters who couldn't speak a word of English? In many of my languages I could not find a word to search for an address. I had then I remembered that these are several French-Scottish in the big town and I finally selected the telephone number of one I recalled in a bilingual ear. The young lady said they would send someone at once to the station.

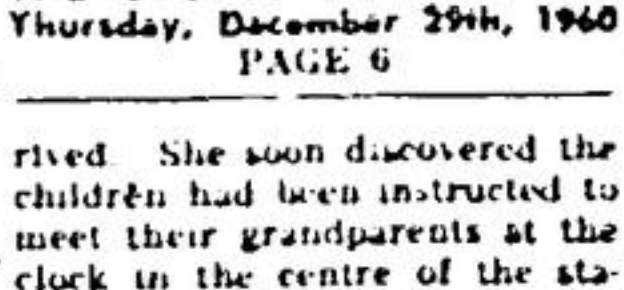

While she was waiting, I turned the table on their past misadventures and made them read again and again, "Don't panic" in my old-fashioned address. If I had only read it, what they would be constantly challenging between the necks, something about "pendule" over and over again, my troubles would have been over before the interloper at
