

Display Night Concludes Activities at Night School

As a fitting closing to the night school term, a display was held Friday, February 24th. While the turnout was disappointing, the appreciation of the work was not.

The various displays of sewing showed everything from beautiful clothes to women's tailored suits. Accessories to the suits were provided from the millinery and jewelry classes.

To grace the home, an exhibition of oil paintings was also on show some painted by students who had never held a brush before this term.

Becoming practical, the students also showed the progress acquired at typing, bookkeeping and welding during the year.

Also showing the beneficial effects of their training, the men and women from the 'Keep Fit' classes went through their paces.

Little Theatre Group Born With 'Dirty Work'

Auspicious Debut For Drama Club

The debut of the Georgetown Little Theatre drew a large crowd of first-nighters on Friday, Feb. 24th, to watch Bill Johnson's classic play 'Dirty Work at the Crossroads.'

The locale of the three act play was a peaceful village on the banks of the Credit River, at the turn of the century. So lively was the action that the three-hour duration seemed but half that time. The play was presented on two successive evenings at Wigglesworth School.

Based on a familiar tried but true theme, 'Dirty Work' casts Vera Macdonald as the brave but pitied heroine Nellie Lovelace, who constantly evades the clutches of evil Munro Murgatroyd, a part well taken by Bruce Mackinson. Murgatroyd's forsaken wife, sultry Ida Rhinegold (Mary Geobel), pops up at the most inconvenient times to further complicate his plans to obtain Nellie, her mother's farm, and the riches from a railroad to be routed across the property.

Although Nellie almost succumbs to the pleas of the villain to accompany him as his wife to "magical" Toronto, she is saved, and her mother's anguish abated when strong-silent Adam Oakheart (Gordon Hunt), gives his own translation of a letter of compliance written by Nellie to her wicked suitor. Foiled, Munro leaves the scene for more prosperous territory, and Adam, deeply heartbroken, also leaves home and his love, leaving Ida behind with only the protection of faithful Mookie Maguggins, superbly portrayed by Paul Baker.

After the death of Nellie's mother (acted by Anne Cartwright), the poor, lonely girl opens a boarding house, and after almost a year, attracts Mrs. Upson Asterbilt, a wealthy dowager, with a shady past, performed ably by Norma O'Shea. Her daughter Leonie and their french maid Fleurette (Patricia Barkhouse and Marie Barratt), accompany her to this life of "quiet retreats."

More of the villain however — Hot on the trail of the lovely misgrided Leonie, comes immanent Munro, little realizing that he is returning to Nellie's abode. Trailing him, is his "faithful" wife, bent on a share in the booty of his latest escapade.

Mrs. Asterbilt, fully aware of Murgatroyd's intent, threatens to cut off her daughter's inheritance, but crafty Ida brings blackmail proof, in photograph form, that this pillar of society was once incarcerated for sexual impropriety in the wicked town of Terra Colla. In the deep of night, Adam returns, hoping to catch a glimpse of his beloved Nellie, but is just in time to pick up the murder weapon after Mrs. A. knives Ida, and tumbles her into the pure waters of the Credit River.

Murgatroyd, discovering Adam with the dagger in hand, finds his opportunity to be rid of our hero, and has him arrested, then, with perjured court evidence, sees Oakheart locked away in the local jailhouse.

Ten years elapse, and ever faithful Nellie marries Adam in jail, with the permission of Mookie, (who is now town Sheriff), and bears him a daughter, Little Nell (Carolyn Hallitt). Her wealth from the sale of property to the railroad is wasted in legal aid for Adam—but all in vain. The charitable railroad officials employ Nellie as crossing guard, and let her live in her former home.

Adam is to be hung! — This shocking news comes to Nellie when Mookie brings him to the train for the execution. Fearfully, Nellie implores Mookie to free Adam under the pretense of escape, and she preserves him in the fruit cage. Then Mookie returns with a letter from Leonie Asterbilt, pleading Adam's innocence and

Traffic Accident Cure Sought by Scientists

Can Scientists find a "cure" for traffic accidents — which kill more Canadians in the prime of life than any one disease?

Researchers engaged in a five-year project at Harvard Medical School are hoping they can. Their project, known as the Fatal Highway Collision Project, is described in the current March issue of 'Science' magazine.

Ian Scanders reports that the researchers function like "very special detectives," conducting exhaustive scientific investigations of all fatal traffic accidents in an 800-square-mile area around Boston. The project is now in its third year.

Director of the project is Alfred Mosely, a psychologist. Other members of the team include a pathologist, a criminologist, men with degrees in traffic, automotive and medical engineering, a lawyer, a social worker, a physician and statisticians.

"For 60 years," Dr. Mosely explains, "we've been killing with automobiles and nobody knows why. We're trying to diagnose the disease."

At every fatal accident, Mosely's men look for every possible clue, examining the dead and injured, the vehicles involved, the road and its surroundings, the traffic conditions, the lighting, the weather — anything that might help them explain the precise cause of the mishap.

Team members then try to reconstruct the accident, even to checking back on the victim's home life, health and state of mind.

Dr. Mosely's men are finding mechanical failure to blame for accidents more often than has been commonly supposed. In one case, a driver whose car had killed a pedestrian said his brakes had unaccountably failed. The brakes had worked perfectly when police tested them 15 minutes after the accident. But Dr. Mosely's men dismantled the brake system and found a tiny loose tack that seemed to have blocked the hydraulic line for a few seconds. The driver was exonerated.

When the researchers have finished their project three years from now, they will recommend ways of reducing traffic fatalities. Some of their recommendations are likely to include adoption of standard traffic signs throughout the U.S. and Canada, compulsory driver training in high schools, compulsory safety belts, compulsory periodic tests for drivers, more drastic penalties for careless drivers, periodic mechanical checkups for motor vehicles, and safer designs for

Spinn'g Demonstration Enjoyed at Institute

A demonstration of spinning was given by Mrs. A. M. Baxter as a feature of the meeting of Georgetown Women's Institute on March 1st in Knox Church hall. Mrs. Baxter was program convenor for the day, and the program also featured a contest conducted by Mrs. Kenneth Kiteley.

Mrs. Wellington Wilson presided, with members naming a Canadian woman in the news for roll call. "Thank you letters" were read from "Hulton Centennial Manor" and from Mrs. Robinson, Edith St.

It was reported that the District Annual will be held in Georgetown in May and the presidents' conference at the Guelph OAC on May 4th and 5th. Mrs. Wilson was delegated to attend. Hulton summary only will be held in Milton Union Hall on March 24th and there will be a demonstration of hooked rugs.

A donation was given to mental health and a report of the Local Council of Women meeting by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Frank Petch. A definite goal for the year is planned: this Friday in the United Gas store with Mrs. Bert Palmer, Mrs. S. Robin, Mrs. Ern Thompson, Mrs. A. M. Baxter, Mrs. Kenneth Kiteley and Mrs. Harry Bailey on the committee.

The motto was well given by Mrs. Kiteley "Friendship is the only cement that can hold the world together." Mrs. Petch read a letter from the Institute in Westham, England. A pot luck supper is planned at the April meeting.

Mrs. V. Rawson moved a vote of thanks to those helping with the program and lunch and a social time ended the meeting.

1960 Polio Free Year Health Unit Reports

Not one case of polio was reported in Hulton County last year, Dr. A. F. Bull, Director of Hulton County Health Unit, told County Council at their February meeting.

He went on to tell of the great reduction in deaths from infectious diseases in the last few years. Sixty years ago 20% of all deaths resulted from infection, now only 1% of deaths are from this cause. However, the increase in mental illness has more than compensated "without doubt," Dr. Bull stated, "mental illness is the most significant health problem of our day."

Dr. Bull then asked for an additional $10,000 in the budget to set up a mental health programme. He pointed out that in hospital construction, a bed is counted as $20,000. So the whole mental health budget would represent half a bed.

The total contribution asked from the County is $127,355, including the $10,000 for mental health. The total expenditure for the year is estimated at $249,710.

Latimer Speaker at Scout Fathers Dinner

On Thursday, February 23rd at 8:30 the Scouts and their fathers sat down to turkey and the trimmings, with about one hundred present. Mr. Vern McComber, capable master of ceremonies, proposed a toast to the Queen, and a toast to the church. Rev. J. Fleming replied on behalf of the church.

Mr. Allan Proutie thanked the ladies very graciously for their preparation and serving of the meal.

The speaker for the evening Mr. Doug Latimer had a very attentive audience. His subject was safety and he provided the scouts with books and pamphlets on the subject.

The group was also treated to several renditions, during the evening, by the High School jazz orchestra. This group with continued practice and effort should make their mark in the entertainment field. Everyone was enthusiastic in their applause for these boys. They provided a fitting finale to an entertaining evening.

Business Meeting for 1st Georgetown L.A.

Ladies of 1st Georgetown auxiliary combined business with a work meeting on February 21st when they preceded their monthly meeting by preparing vegetables in preparation for a father and son banquet the next night in St. John's United hall.

President Mrs. Cyril Engleby opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. E. Bone dict read minutes in the secretary's absence and Mrs. Shel Law's report showed Varieties Night had been a successful event.

The father and son banquet held on February 21st and 22nd catered to 221 boys and their dads.
