THEY'RE IN THE WINNINGS (AND THAT AIN'T HAY)

Calgary Stampede Another Thrill for Travellers

Calgary, Alberta. Servant there and his address. It turned out that we knew this Brother, and I was told to write my letter and send it to headquarters where it would be forwarded for me.

This I did with my credentials and in a few days back came the address of a sister who very kindly gave us rooms for the 3 nights we stayed at Calgary. At the door we were met by our hostess who made us acquainted with her husband and over another cup of coffee we told our trip to Vancouver. The husband of our hostess turned out to be of Jewish faith, and here was a wonderful example of two people with different faiths and beliefs, each with a deep respect for the belief of the other.

As we talked I thought of the Hebrews of the so-called old testament and the example that many of them gave to the world in their hospitality. I thought of Abraham who was called the friend of God. Lot his nephew. These men believed in hospitality also and God was pleased, unknowingly both these men were privileged to entertain the Angel or Messengers from God himself.

Next morning, we rose, refreshed and ready for what the day had to offer. Our hostess had directed us to a bus stop where we could take a bus for the Stampede. After a few minutes wait, a car drove up with several cowboy dressed people and inquired: "Going out today?" We explained we were waiting for the bus for the Stampede. The answer was a shock. You are going to have a long wait, then, the busses went on strike this morning! The jinx that had plagued us on our trip to Vancouver had beat us to Calgary also, so gratefully, we piled into that car which carried us downtown where the bands were playing while waiting for the parade of Indians which came every day during stampede week.

We wondered just how far we would have to walk to the stampede grounds and many were the excuses I made during the day for a drink in order that I could sit and rest and gather strength for a little longer. All about the route were banners with cowboy faces and bronco bustin' riders, etc. At last we entered the grounds. They have a large exhibition hall patterned after the ones at the CNR but with two floors. I expected booths with much display of Indian handicraft run by Indian in national dress, but while there were a few booths run by the Indians there was little except leather goods and jewellery.

One booth caught my eye—leather hand tooled bags and items made in Mexico. This is what I will buy with my $15, consolation money from the CNR. So adding another $5 I bought myself, not the bonnet as suggested by Mr. Bell but a hand tooled leather handbag that I show to my friends as a gift from the CNR.

Our next few steps outside the exhibition hall took us to where they were putting on an outdoor show of cowboy music and dancing. Then right beside us, a breathtaking feat, a lumberjack climbed a 100 foot pole with only a leather strap and spikes in his shoes. He climbed it in about 30 seconds, stood upright on the top and did a Charleston. Then not content with that finished up by standing on his head. Whee, what a feat. Next was the leaping ponies. Two ponies went up a 50 foot ramp and leapt into a tank of water below.

The announcer told us the names of the ponies and what they would do. As the first pony stood on the platform, it suddenly changed its mind. The announcer explained that the pony was shy and that she could be persuaded to jump if she had a little applause. Everybody responded and the pony once again stepped to the diving board. Once again she drew back for another round of applause then decided to do her act. Next came time for the grandstand show. We learned that each night there is a different show. They had done the bronco busting the night before, so now I have an excuse. I just don't know how it is done. One night was chuck wagon races. I have seen it over TV but it is nothing compared to the excitement of the actual race from the stampede grounds.

In the centre opposite the grandstand are barrels placed at various points. Each team has outriders. Two men stand at the rear of the wagon waiting to lift a heavy stone onto the wagon. At the signal, up goes the stone and into the race go the chuckwagons. They must make a figure 8 around the barrels, then out onto the track and many of those barrels have a rough time. In the excitement the outriders have to catch their horses which by this time also have their own ideas of the race and just can't wait to be off. Several times the luckless outrider was only just starting when the wagon

Mums, Ferns Decorate Church for Wedding

Saturday, July 15, St. Paul's United Church, Milton was the setting for the marriage of Mario Jane Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Marshall, R. R. 1, Milton, and Mr. Arnold Thomas Alexander Howden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Howden, R. R. 4, Milton. Rev. J. L. Graham officiated at the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with two standards of white mums and fern. The organist was Mrs. George Newell, R. R. 1, Milton, and Miss Jo Hayward and Mr. Thomas Hunter sang as duets "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Floor Length Gown
Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of white organza over silk taffeta. The bodice was tight fitting down to the waist and the skirt was gathered softly with a panel in the front featuring appliques of lily of the valley. Her finger tip veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and rhinestones. For her bouquet the bride carried a cascade of white gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

The bride was attended by her four sisters, Miss Linda Marshall, maid of honour, Miss Jean Marshall and Miss Joyce Marshall, senior bridesmaids, and Miss Shirley Marshall, junior bridesmaid. All the girls were dressed alike in shrimp, street length gowns of organza over taffeta, white band hats and gloves and carried cascades of white mums and shrimp rose buds. The girls wore pearl necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride.

Attend Groom
Groomsman was Mr. Howson Ruddell, R. R. 2, Georgetown, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Mr. William Marshall, cousin of the bride and Mr. Bruce Eyre and Mr. David Howden, nephew of the groom.

The reception was held at the Agricultural Hall, Milton, and the bride's mother received the guests wearing an azure blue lace over taffeta dress accented by beige accessories and a corsage of shasta roses. The groom's mother assisted wearing a powder blue chiffon over printed silk and corsage of pink roses.

Motor Trip
For going away the bride chose a "Shocking Pink" linen suit dress with white accessories and a white gardenia corsage. They left on a motor trip for Ottawa, Montreal, New Liskeard and Harbour Beach, Michigan. Following the trip they are now living at R. R. 1, Milton.

Guests were present from Milton, Campbellville, Burlington, Georgetown, Ancaster, Toronto, Guelph, Harbour Beach, Michigan and New Liskeard. Among the guests present was Mrs. M. Ramsay, grandmother of the groom.

When Miss Leslie scored tops two weeks ago, Mrs. Mueckart jokingly said she would have to work hard at the next week's competition, since she had already taken two of Miss Leslie's prizes. Fortune must have been listening in, for he turned his wheel accordingly.

Bowling Coincidence Three Times Winner
The old adage about fortune striking in threes rang true again last Tuesday night at the weekly gathering of the Georgetown Ladies' Lawn Bowling League.

However, it was a timely combination of good luck, skill and pure coincidence repeating itself for Mrs. George Mueckart, of 14 Young St., when she won the high score prize donated by Miss Elizabeth Leslie for the third year in a row.

The forces of coincidence became apparent when the system followed by the lady bowlers is explained. Each week the high scorer is required to bring a prize for the high scorer in the following week.
