Arrival in Pakistan

IF YOU WERE a young couple, securely established with home, good job, good friends and two small children, suddenly faced with an opportunity to pull up stakes to go to live in West Pakistan for two years... what would you do? That was the dilemma in which Jim and Florrie Warren, of Edith St., found themselves in the summer of 1959.

The start of the dilemma was when the government of Pakistan sent a letter to the Ontario College of Art in Toronto, in which they expressed a desire to have a Canadian industrial designer come to their country, all expenses paid, in order to set up a new department for industrial design at their National College of Art in Lahore. They asked that the letters be distributed to industrial designers for their consideration. Jim Warren, one of many applying for the job, was accepted.

And thus began a period of agonizing indecision for the Warrens. The challenge of an interesting new job in a fascinating far away land topped the scales in favour of the move to Pakistan. After several hectic weeks of packing and storing clothes, furniture, renting their house, and getting the necessary papers and immunization shots prior to departure, the early September day came all too soon when Jim and Florrie, with children Tina, three years old, and David, six, boarded a jet from Malton airport with destination Lahore, West Pakistan. Their car and the bulk of their personal effects had preceded them by boat.

THE PLANE HAD short stopovers at London and Lebanon, before its arrival at Karachi, a port city on the southern coast of West Pakistan. By this time the Warren family were pretty travel-weary. They stepped out of the plane into an atmosphere of stifling heat and brownness. The land, buildings, dust swirling around everything, and even the people, were brown. Here they caught their first glimpse of veiled Muslim women, before a government official greeted them and took them to the Hotel Metropole to stay for the night. A white quite comfortable in other ways, the hotel lacked one important detail which would seem quite essential to us, in such a hot climate. There were no screens for the windows. The heat made it impossible to keep them closed. But as soon as she opened them, Florrie was taken aback by the sight of hundreds of huge black mosquitos circling and whirring, and meaning to head right for their open windows. The strangeness of the birds, coupled with the strangeness of the country and people, made it hard to fight back pumps of homesickness and disappointment.

Morning finally came, however, when they boarded a plane for the final leg of their journey to Lahore, which is situated near the northeast border of Punjab, in the province of Punjab. As the plane circled for a landing, relief and pleasure started to lift their spirits. Thank goodness, there were green trees, grass and flowers in Lahore. The city, about the size of Toronto, looked beautiful from the air.

Stepping from the plane, once more the Warrens were struck by what seemed a veritable wall of trop-

NUMBER OF VETERANS AT CENOTAPH ON 11th

Although Remembrance Day was held on Sunday, November 12th, in Georgetown, the dead of our wars were not entirely neglected on the actual day and the actual hour.

A number of the vets attending the Remembrance supper had decided to observe a two-minute silence there, and a small group, gathered at the memorial prior to 11.

Among the group were the president of Branch 120, Dave Capperud, and Mayor Ernest Hyde.

Urges Grace As Part Of Family Daily Meals

The regular meeting of Esqueving Women's Institute was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Humphreys on Thursday evening, November 9th, with eight members and three visitors present. The meeting opened with the Ode and Mary Stewart Collect. Roll call was answered by each one telling "How long I have resided in this district." Mrs. M. Patterson, a guest at the meeting, read the Scripture from John 3: 18-21, and told the story of a young chap in Ireland, Tom Moorehouse, who, years ago, wanted to come to America to preach, and eventually did so, taking the service for a friend, the great Evangelical preacher Moody, for several evenings and always using the same text: John 3: 16, which he claimed had no ending, he was well liked by the congregation. He returned home to Ireland, but came back again to the same church two years later, and again took as his text John 3: 16.

He returned again to his home in Ireland, and died at the early age of 23. The great Moody said at the time, that Moorehouse had been a greater preacher than he himself would ever be.

The secretary read the minutes, and correspondence, and the Treasurer gave her financial statement. A cheque was received from the Millon Fair Board, for the W.I. display at the fair.

Institute members will again gather for the Yellow Jackets banquet in the Township hall on Saturday evening, December 9th.

Members were reminded to bring in the jars for retarded children, at the Christmas meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lawson, when it is hoped to have District President, Mrs. Harry Wilson, as guest speaker.

Mrs. Walter Lawson, convener of Historical Research, although not able to be present at the meeting, had sent along her programme, and Mrs. Fred Armstrong read current events prepared by Mrs. Lawson and also read a paper, which although not historical, in some homes does show a change in times. We believe this article touches on the lives of many of us today, and feel it might suggest to some of us, to take a moment in our busy life, as we are taking the privilege of using parts of the article, written by Ruth Honderich in the Presbyterian Record. — In your house do you say Grace before meals?

"Bless, O Lord, this food for our use and us in Thy service, and keep us ever mindful of the needs of others; for Christ's sake, Amen."

Is this by chance the grace you said at breakfast this morning? Or in this busy, hectic life of ours, do you at your house say grace at all? Life seems so hurried for all of us. In many homes the man of the house has been up, eaten and gone before the children are out of their beds. He is not home to lunch, and often not back for his evening meal until after the others have eaten. Mother meanwhile doing her utmost to keep spirits calm... feeding the highchair baby, gulping a few mouthfuls now and then of her own rapidly cooling food, pushing the drowsing school-goers out the door, and reminding dad, if he still happens to be around, to be home in time for some evening appointment.

Weekends with all the family at home, brings no relaxation for her, though the man of the house may eat in more leisurely fashion and in greatly improved spirits.

Grace before meals? Just no time for that these days, you will be told. Fine, 50 years ago, when the pace was slower, it takes only a few seconds, if your house has grown lax, why not try it?

Children enjoy the rhyming graces, and many parents encourage the use of these.

The very tiny child will enjoy saying: Thank you, God, for food so good, And help up do the things we should.

Mrs. George Atkinson recited the poem "In Flanders Field" by John Macrae, and Mrs. Herb Reid read a poem, written by a mother of three sons, proving that there are worse things than death.

Mrs. J. C. Murray and Mrs. Fred Armstrong assisted the hostess with lunch. Mrs. Herb Reid moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Humphreys and her assistants and to all who had taken part in the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lawson and Jamie, visited in Collingwood over the weekend with Mrs. Lawson's mother, Mrs. Andrew Ransier.

Happy birthday in Danny McClean who is 15 on November 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Blunt of Toronto visited with the Grants on Saturday evening.

Sunday evening, the Old Fashioned Hymn Sing at St. John's Church was enjoyed by those present. The Rev. J. E. Maxwell opened with prayer and under the capable leadership of Mr. Tom Warnes, the congregation sang the hymns of their own choosing. Guests were present from Georgetown, Norval and Toronto.

60 Cases Crowd Magistrate Court

Charges under the highway traffic act dominated the court docket, Monday, November 6th when a total of 60 cases were scheduled to come before Magistrate Kenneth M. Langdon, 21 of them involving motorists.

Of the twenty one, 19 were upheld by the court while in the other two instances the charged failed to appear. Warrants were issued for their arrest.

Seven charges under the town by-laws, all concerning dog tags, were judged resulting in 5 dismissals, 1 withdrawal and 1 conviction, while of six charges under the Liquor Control Act only two convictions were registered and the remainder dismissed.

Two Liquor License Act cases were remanded to the Nov. 20th court, and two convictions under the Criminal Code resulted in $50 fines or a month in jail. In three other Criminal Code charges, one was remanded in custody, and two were remanded to future courts.

Loblaws Seeking Status Of Department Store?

Indications that Loblaws may be seeking a change in store closing hours was given in a letter read at Monday's council meeting from the grocery chain's solicitor.

The firm has asked if there are any local closing by-law which concern Department stores.

Recently council has been dealing with a similar request from Zeller's Stores which indicated it might locate in town if it could operate on a 6 day, 2 open night basis.

Most stores are governed by a by-law which allows Friday open nights and demands all-day-Monday closing. Each store classification has majority rule, but the catch is that no mention of department stores is made in the by-law and council has made no firm decision as to what constitutes such a store. Loblaws was not in business in town when the by-law became law, but has been assumed to be a grocery store to date.

Mayor Hyde said that Loblaws apparently want an interpretation of the town by-law and his suggestion that the town solicitor write to the firm was okayed by a council majority.

dehydrated? YES!
Water condensate and impurities accumulate in all stored oil. Pumped into your tank in this condition, without treatment, the water and impurities in the oil will cause tank corrosion and system fouling.
To eliminate the risk of messy and costly tank leakage, and to aid in the dependable performance of your heating system, every one of our trucks is equipped with the exclusive HY-TEST 303 DEHYDRATOR & FILTER. Every delivery of HY-TEST 303 passes through this dehydrator and filter on its way to your tank, assuring you of the purest, most water-free oil ever delivered. A special ingredient in HY-TEST 303's premium additive emulsifies any subsequent condensation in your tank causing it to pass harmlessly through your burner and become evaporated. Result: Smooth, trouble-free performance and infinitely longer tank life. Lots of peace of mind for you.

"... and Mary, that potato dish was simply marvellous!"
She's right! ... potato dishes are marvellous and what's more they are not fattening. One medium potato supplies only about 100 calories. This is a small percentage of the average daily requirement of 2,400 calories per day for the moderately active woman or the 3,000 calories for the moderately active man.

CLIP AND SAVE THESE TESTED POTATO RECIPES

SUPPER POTATOES 4 Medium potatoes, raw and sliced 1/2" 2 Tablespoons salt 1 Medium onion, sliced 1/2 Cup creamed mushroom (20% fat) 1 Teaspoon salt 1/4 Teaspoon sugar Few grains pepper 1/2 Teaspoon Worcestershire sauce Peel potatoes in fat until golden, turning several times. Add onion and saute until transparent. Add remaining ingredients, cover and simmer for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Uncover and continue cooking until potatoes are tender and most of liquid has evaporated, about 30 minutes. 4 servings.	POTATOES and SOUR CREAM (Chezarien style) 5/8 Cup sliced raw potatoes (1 1/2 lbs. whole) 1/2 cup 1% Cup boiling water 1 Teaspoon salt 1/4 Teaspoon creamed butter 1/4 Cup sour cream 1 Teaspoon salt Pepper Cook potatoes in boiling salted water 3 minutes. Drain. Add butter. Cover and cook over medium heat until potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes, stirring gently to prevent sticking. Add sour cream, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 4 simmer 5 minutes. Sprinkle with pepper and serve at once. 4 servings.	MASHED POTATO and MEAT PIE 4 Medium potatoes, boiled 1/2 Cup milk 2 Tablespoons butter 1 Egg, slightly beaten 1/2 Teaspoon salt 1/4 Teaspoon pepper Few grains garlic salt 1/2 Cup grated cheese 1 Cup diced cooked meat Prepared as for Mashed Potatoes, combining all ingredients, except cheese and meat. Spread mixture over bottom and up sides of a greased 9" pie plate or "AA" 8" x 8" baking dish. Press meat half way down into mixture. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) until meat is heated through and cheese melted, 15 to 20 minutes. Garnish with parsley or diced green pepper. May be served with hot chili sauce. 4 servings.
