District Resident Originated Course

Toronto dog owners are reaping the benefits of an Obedience course originated here a couple of years ago by an R.R. 2, Georgetown man, George Lucas. Classes were held here in Glen Williams by the local group and the identical course has since been adopted by the German Shepherd Club of Toronto. A picture feature in the August 4 Star Weekly showed how, at the obedience school, the dog and master learn to work together.

So great is the demand for these courses, which cost only $10, that the club has restricted entries to pure-breds. Some district people and their dogs were enrolled in the course when the Star Weekly pictures were taken, however, none were identifiable in the pictures which appeared.
