THEY SNUB THEIR SOUTHBOUND COUSINS

YOU CAN KEEP your 'Call of the Wild' as far as this trio is concerned. They're the three Canada geese who have a full-time job floating round on the pond of Mr. and Mrs. Art Scott, Maple Ave. and turning the heads of passing motorists. Nature says they'll join their cousins as they fly over in a V bound for the southland, but the loyal trio have defied the migration law for three years now and their owners hold little doubt that they will, give an answering 'honk' at each fleeing flock, but hold their ground when it comes to making that choice between staying and leaving. Their wings are not clipped so they can depart civilization whenever they feel like it. Said a spokesman for the feathered Canucks: "The 'what if we don't join the thabatical to the thouthland. They can have their wanderlust, we're thabstified with our thourroundings. It means thwimming around with those thtick up thwans, but then thath the way the old egg thrambles."

Kitchener New Home For Mr. and Mrs. Hardman

On September 1st at 4 o'clock Bolton United Church decorated with white gladioli and double ring ceremony, when Irene Luella Jane (Jean) Moffatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Moffatt was united in marriage to Wilfred Albert Hardman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hardman of Georgetown.

Rev. E. G. Knowles performed the ceremony with Mrs. Sadie Small at the organ and Murray Stewart as soloist, singing the 23rd psalm and 'Nuptial Benediction'.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length, peau de soie gown with fitted waist and full skirt ending in a slight train. The long sleeves were pointed over the hand and the neckline was scooped. Her shoulder length, tiered net veil was held in place by a headpiece of small peau de soie flowers and seed pearls and she carried white gardenias, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Jim Schild, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were also sisters, Mrs. Ken Thompson of Pennsylvania, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Shannonville, Hillsburg, Georgetown, Brampton, Weston, Willowdale Schomberg, Toronto and Barrie.

make work project for hundreds of construction and manufacturing firms.

But the labor department has been receiving complaints that some of the new schools are being equipped with machines and tools purchased outside the country. As a result, Mr. Starr recently wrote to provincial education authorities to point out that the terms of the agreement call for the use of Canadian-made equipment.

MOST IN ONTARIO

Ontario has made the greatest use of the program and has had applications approved totalling $268.9 million with a federal contribution of $174.2 million. This includes $124.5 million in new schools and $11.9 million in additions and alterations to existing schools. Some 89,000 additional students will be accommodated under the Ontario program.

Use of the federal subsidy by some of the other provinces is as follows:

Prince Edward Island — Total cost $12 million; federal share $900,000; 1 new vocational school, 1 addition to a trade school and 4 minor projects, providing room for 800 additional students.

Quebec — Total cost $25.4 million; federal share $11.3 million; 1 new technical institute, 8 new trades schools, 31 additions, providing for 4,200 students.

Saskatchewan — Total cost $10.2 million; federal share $8 million; 1 new school and 7 additions and alterations to provide for 3,600 students.

British Columbia — Total cost $16 million; federal share $11 million; 4 new schools and 5 additions to provide for 3,400 students.

Expect Canadian Equipment in Schools

By F. Tassington

OTTAWA (Special to The Herald) — The government's austerity program has not affected the agreement to pay 75 per cent of the cost of constructing and equipping technical and vocational schools in Canada.

But labor minister Michael Starr recently found it necessary to remind provincial ministers of education that the federal government expects the schools to be provided with Canadian-made equipment and tools.

To July 15 this year, the government approved new schools and additions to existing schools for a total cost of $304.6 million. Of this, the federal share is $225.5 million. The money will build 207 new vocational and technical schools, additions to 149 more, plus some 80 other minor alteration projects. The new construction will provide added training accommodation for 121,000 students.

The agreement under which the federal government raised its contribution to such schools from 50 to 75 per cent expires March 31, 1963. A labor department spokesman said the agreement will not be extended beyond that date, largely because the program will have achieved its purpose.

But there has also been criticism of the program on the ground that municipalities and

Facilities Inadequate Move Acton Court Cases

During October and November all court cases will be held in Oakville, councillor J. Doby of Acton told the North Halton Urban Board last week. "This could result in all our policemen being out of town at the same time," he contended. "In addition, we have to pay mileage, plus a day off," stated Mr. Doby.

Milton and Georgetown members wondered aloud if their towns would be similarly affected.

Councillor Doby understood that the magistrate felt the facilities in Acton were inadequate. "I think a magistrate might accommodate himself to some inconvenience," commented Councillor C. Manoffy. "We don't seem to have any say in these magistrate's decisions," he added.

Delegation

Acton felt a delegation should go to the Attorney General's office and present their view. At length it was decided to take the subject up with the individual councils, before sending a delegation.

Urban Board Garbage

"I walked over Milton's garbage disposal area tonight, and didn't even know I was on it," said Councillor H. McNeilly of Georgetown. "This could never happen in Georgetown," he added quizzically.

Mr. McNeilly felt that the fact Milton itself operated the garbage service was responsible for the cleanliness.

Chairman Norman Pearce of Milton quoted their costs at just over $3 per capita, not including the initial cost of equipment.

Councillor J. Kimmerson of Georgetown felt it was uncommittal for a town to do it themselves. "How can $3 per capita, which is about $18,000 cover it when you have four full time men working on garbage?" he demanded.

Profit to Town

Mr. McNeilly contended that a private contractor must make money to stay in the business, and felt that the profit might as well be the town's.

Milton Clerk James Culligan pointed out that they have very few complaints now about banded up garbage cans, dumps or poor service. "We feel our residents are getting service unequalled anywhere," said the clerk. "We have twice weekly pick-up winter and summer, and we pick up everything, even old washing machines, beds, anything," said Mr. Culligan. He felt that by tendering, the town loses control, in which case the contractor sets up rules and regulations which may not be convenient for the citizens.

Bride's First Communion At Holy Cross Wedding

A double ring ceremony in Holy Cross R.C. Church on September 8th united in marriage Margaret Rose Melanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Melanson, R.R. 3 and Victor Joseph Chasson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Chasson, 20 Mackenzie Drive.

Father Zeno officiated at the 10 a.m. ceremony.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white lace and net over satin. The skirt was fashioned with a tier of chantilly lace over four skirts of net and the bodice featured a scalloped neckline covered with iridescent sequins. With this she wore three-quarter length gloves of chantilly lace. A fingertip veil was held by a tiara of pearls and sequins and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and lily-of-the-valley.

with white hat and accessories and a white corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Chasson travelled to Amos, Quebec for their honeymoon where they visited with a number of the groom's friends. The bride's travelling costume was a short-sleeved checked suit of light brown and white with white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations. They are living in town at 3 Elgin Street. The groom is employed in Brampton as a glazer with K. Faber.

FESTIVAL OF COLOUR' OVER THIS WEEK-END

The annual pilgrimage to Ontario's northland, as well as the Caledon Hills, is concluded this week-end, ending a month of riotous colour.
