

Four to be Elected for Public School Board

Nomination Meeting

of perhaps $42,000 and an overhead water tower "which could cost $100,000 to $200,000."

He had helped bring Standard Products, American Marietta and a new bowling alley to town, he said — and just today a commercial transaction on the highway was closed. "These are what subsidizes houses," he said.

Q Did a businessman who supported you and Mr. Hyde in the last election leave town owing $400 in water bills?

A Yes. A lawyer is in process of issuing a writ.

High Road Budget

FRED HARRISON, presently Ward 1 councillor, is running for deputy reeve. As road chairman, he reviewed a budget which he said was the highest in history and quoted figures which showed that $14,600 tax money was spent on Ward 1 roads, $26,250 on Ward 3 and $25,025 on Ward 3.

New railway bridges on Main St. N. and Mountainview and a better 401 connecting link are projects he hopes to complete next year as a council member.

All recreation facilities are in one end of town, and he would like to see more in other areas, he said.

It is a disgrace to see so many nominees for council, he remarked, and if more good people had offered their services he felt there would not be need for an election, and he for one would support a good candidate.

Q How many names should be up for election?

A Two good people in each ward.

Q Are you the only honest man on the board?

A If elected I'd be honest. We had some honest councillors but they weren't given the right chance.

Another Ward 2 nominee, E. R. FRANCIS, did not state his intentions at the meeting, but urged electors to treat the election seriously and get out and vote.

Scores Leadership

Ward 2 candidate JIM YOUNG scored what he said was lack of "a vigorous, unbiased mayor, a co-operative group of councillors who never had the understanding of ratepayers" in past councils.

"I stand for new industry," he continued, saying the town needs roads, sewers, a new arena and other things which it can only get with more industry to help pay for these.

"You need a council which isn't afraid of stepping on toes or losing business and that's the kind of man I am," he said.

Undecided whether to seek election to Ward 2, ROY WAR WICK said that in his eight years' residence the only change in town he can see is a double population, so he must attribute a tax rise to this.

"I'm concerned with stopping higher taxes," he said, "and I oppose more land release at this time."

He also urged more recreation facilities in town.

Clean Water

Nominated in Ward 1 and 2, ROBERT LETTS is choosing the latter and said he can save the town money and give clean water for an expenditure of $250,000 over a 10-year period.

"I'm sick and tired of councillors filibustering for three or four years to satisfy their egos and not giving a damn about the taxpayers," he said.

"Vote for Letts and I'll clean up your water" is his slogan.

Q Do you favour clean government?

A I wouldn't be running if I didn't.

Q Are you for or against land release?

A With the DMA about to give its opinion I'll keep mine to myself at present.

(Because Mr. Letts was nominated first for Ward 1 and did not officially decline this, he was declared ineligible in Ward 2 and is now running in Ward 1.)

Housecleaning Needs

LEONARD BURNS, a Ward 2 candidate, said the town is on the verge of bankruptcy and needs a thorough municipal housecleaning.

"I'd like to see town and developer get together in a public hearing without audience interference," he said. No one in Georgetown has the answer to land release, he feels, and it is time the town matured into an honest, united, progressive community.

Two public schools are crowded to capacity and another six empty rooms are pointed out, and unless more houses are built, children will be forced to travel long distances to school as another school room be allowed until present rooms are filled.

"I must have more information before I can give an opinion on land release," he said.

Q Do you agree with the school board that if the current development hadn't been extended, we wouldn't have vacant schoolrooms?

A That was up to council that day to decide.

The United Church, Young People accompanied by the In-C-Group of Norval notored to Toronto and visited the Fred Victor Mission where Rev. Humnisset took them on a tour. They took a box lunch with them and then at 7 p.m. attended the evening service of worship in the new sanctuary which was built on the old site about two years ago. They were given a glimpse into the work of a city mission and so appreciate a little more fully the home mission task of the United Church.

On Dec. 9th the White Gift Service will be held at the morning worship service at 10 a.m. in the United Church.

Juan is enjoying the diversity of subjects a great deal, and is most enthusiastic about the instruction, particularly because of a small enrolment which allows a very close relationship between professors and students.
