Changes Coming in Halton Voting Power

While Oakville and Burlington seek a radical change in county council voting strength through a private member's bill in parliament, the five northern municipalities are preparing a counter-proposal which would be more equitable for the two large towns, while not giving them the vote they ask.

Reeve John Elliott and Deputy Reeve Wm. F. Hunter were authorized by town council Monday to support an amending resolution at the county level.

This would grade votes on a sliding scale based on municipal electors, starting at one vote for less than 100 with a maximum of 6 votes for 2001 voters or over.

If carried the vote would be as follows (present vote in brackets): Burlington 6 (4), Oakville 6 (4), Georgetown 5 (4), Esqueping 4 (4), Milton 4 (4), Acton 3 (3) and Nassagaweya 2 (2).

Reeve Elliott explained that the south is asking for votes based on population, and with no limit set the two towns would soon outvote a combination of the other five and could completely control county policy.

It is his wish that the residents of the County consider all the plans available and choose the plan that best suits their medical needs.

"We didn't ask them to annex Trafalgar and Nelson" was Cr. Walter Gray's comment. "Now they want to control the whole county."

Council also agreed to foot one-fifth of the legal costs involved in protesting the Oakville-Burlington plan at Queen's Park.

Wood Harvest of the Future

By 1970, the forests of the world will not be ready for the harvest until after the year 2000 A.D. Yet the world represents Canada's woodlands with its timber, and the speed and manner of its development are important to all Canadians. Today through such methods as soil analysis (right), harvests are being more than ever before about five growth, and their studies are constantly being tried.

To remind Canadians of their dependence on these woodlands and of the efforts made to manage them effectively, National Forest Products Week is currently being held. From the forest agency for example, the raw material of the pulp and paper industry, Canada's leading products, wage forest, and exports.
