

WHEN THE LITTLE HOMEMAKER DONS THE CLEATS, WATCH!

No league in ten counties has more heated rivalry, keen competition, or broken finger-nails than the Halton County Rural Girls circuit currently in full swing (and we mean swings) here's one loop where a team's genuine desire to win is never in doubt and though the intensity once in a while results in frayed tempers, the diamond damozels always re- pose themselves to give their opposition three cheers and a "tiger" while the dust settles. Approximately half the rural ball girls are married and if there happens to be a glaring absence of husbands in the stands, it's only because baby-sitting holds priority over watching wife-pick 'em up and lay 'em down around the league paths. The local area teams in the league are: Elgin, Williams, presently setting the pace and Horby. They get their competition from Lowville, Simach A and B and Palerona. The Glen and Horby culled last week with an 8.5 result for the Glen. At left the Glen's catcher Marg Burlington rounds third en route to home while 3rd sacker Marlene Cunningham watches the relay in from the outfield. At right Horby's catcher Linda Wilson heads home after slugging a round tripper, while the Horby bench hoops it up in the background.

are 18 years old, while Marion Hunter is 19. Marion won the competition last year. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunter of Walkers Line, R.R. 1, Burlington. She is a clerk-stenographer.

She is president of the Palerona Junior Farmer's Institute and secretary of the West Holstein Calf Club. Experienced around the farm, she helps with 50 head of Holsteins. Marion has a good chance of being the winner for 1963. Mary Lou Taylor of Appleby Line, Burlington set the precedent. She won the Halton County Dairy Princess title three years in a row before Marion won it last year. Miss Taylor is now a Burlington public school teacher.

Marion says she has still competition. Janette Finnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Finnie, R.R. 1, Horby, A, is also well versed on the care of Holsteins and assists the family with their herd.

Janette is a stenographer, president of the Milton Junior Farmer's. She has already won one competition this year. She is the 1963 Halton County Dairy Princess.

Adrienne Nurse is the third contestant. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nurse, Seventh Line, Esquesing, Adrienne has just completed Grade 13 at the Georgetown District High School. She helps her father milk the Jersey herd.

Last year she was Miss Georgetown High School and vice-president of the Student Council. Winner of Halton County Dairy Princess in 1963 and some- one. She also gets a red sash.
