FOR YOUNG READERS

$6,000 JUNIOR LIBRARY OPENS

LIBRARIAN'S ASSISTANT Mary Jean Tucker talks with junior library members Deborah Gummerson and Kathryn King at a reading desk in the newly opened Junior Library located in the basement of the Georgetown Public Library on Church Street. The library Board began renovating the basement three years ago when they installed a new floor. They concentrated their efforts on the project this year, and with the installation of shelves last week the long sought Junior Library was completed. The job of moving the books started at 2:45 Friday and by 4 o'clock the library was ready for business. During the remainder of the summer holidays the Junior Library will operate on the same hours as the adult library, but when school commences the hours will not open until 4 o'clock. Koehler Construction did the renovating and redecorating. The opening of a Junior Library will make available more shelf space in the adult section for new books.

Would Have Sidewalks Paid from General Tax

Opposite views are shared by Mayor Hyde and Cr. Don Powers on installation of new sidewalks in subdivisions. The mayor said that sidewalks can be made available under a local improvement application, with cost shared by householder and town. Cr. Powers thinks many residents believe they have to pay the entire cost for sidewalks which is not so. However, Mayor Hyde said the council should have a policy of installing them at town expense where most needed, and gradually have sidewalks everywhere. "It isn't fair that some pay face treatment and there will be some don't," he said. Cr. Jim Emmerson is concerned that 65 per cent of residents on a street can dictate what their neighbours should pay for sidewalks.

Thrown From Bicycle Youngster Breaks Jaw

A young cyclist in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, with a fractured jaw and other injuries, was carried around a stretcher in his arm as the result of an accident on a bicycle. The boy, 11 years old, was riding on a bicycle on Mountain Road South. A car was driving past when the boy fell from his bicycle. He was taken to the hospital where he was treated for his injuries. The boy's mother said she was with him when he fell from the bicycle. She said she was carrying him around a stretcher in his arm as the result of an accident on a bicycle. Reeve Pushes Planning Widening of Highway

While no action is financially possible this year, Cr. Reeve is casting an eye on improvements to the eastern section of No. 7. A narrow, bumpy roadway creates a bottleneck between a good highway through the older part of town, and a brand new stretch from Norfolk to Brampton. Cr. Reeve said he would like to see the highway widened to 100 feet. He said he would like to see the highway widened to 100 feet. He said he would like to see the highway widened to 100 feet.

Pseudo Twosome Wins Father and Son Golf

CNR Plans Combining of Express, Station Office

For the first time since it was built the CNR station at Georgetown is undergoing major changes. When work in progress now is completed the telegraph office station office, freight and express headquarters will be combined in one area adjoining the passenger waiting room. The former station master's office is being extended some eight feet into the waiting area to accommodate the extra desks. A counter and L-shaped glass will replace the old brass bar wicket giving the new quarters a bank effect.
