Raider Rooters Waiting For Outcome Jr. 'B' Talks

Will Georgetown hockey followers be watching a watered down edition of the Raiders this winter or the mystery shrouded Junior B club that the Minor Hockey Support Group conceals earlier this year... That question will be answered this week when the local Junior B reps talk turkey with Montreal Canadian brass in Montreal... The Junior B exec announced that Georgetown would definitely have a Junior team this hockey season but recent developments in the Montreal Canadiens who offered sponsorship have the local pushers breaking in cold sweats... Raider backers have insisted that they could see a team only in intermetropolitan competition should the Junior B's fail to materialize.

Montreal broke their silence this week when they repeated their promise to sponsor a Georgetown Junior B club and invited the president, Syd Alcorn and coach, Del Beaumont, to discuss the subject with Ken Reardon, Scotty Bowman and companies in Montreal... Alcorn and Beaumont flew to Montreal Tuesday morning for the meeting. One thing they will be discussing is the difference between sponsorship and affiliation. The Canadiens have offered them the choice of the two... When they failed to grant the meeting Montreal's assumption that they would be playing in the Metro Junior B league in Lakeshore, Dixie, etc... A spokesman for the Canadiens said the club had a number of promising youngsters, in this part of the country whom they intend to mould into the Georgetown entry.
