Norval Girls Roughed Up

The members of a 12-girl gang have admitted roughing up two Norval girls, while they were out for a walk Sunday afternoon.

According to a report from the Herald's Norval correspondent, the two Norval girls were walking on the outskirts of the village when the gang, all out-of-town girls, started harassing the pair by using foul language.

When that didn't draw a response the gang started pelting them with stones. Allegedly they then approached them, scratched them and pulled their hair.

The Norval girls ran to a farm house and phoned their parents, while the gang milled around the gate waiting for them to come out. When the father of one of the girls arrived the little mob turned on him with more cursing.

The man called in the police who apprehended three of the gang. Under questioning they admitted their parts in the affair.

The Norval girls did not press charges. Police, however, had their harassers who gave Brampton addresses, apologize to them. Police also stated they would notify the parents of those apprehended.

"We read of this sort of thing happening in other places, but this is the first time it has involved local girls," one Norval resident said.

"We hope it doesn't occur again. It's a regrettable situation when girls go for a short walk."

Decide Solicitor, Auditor Must Talk to Councillors

Lines of communication between the town council and the auditor were established Monday when a council motion authorized the solicitor and auditor to provide any and all information which might affect a council case.

A brief discussion took place in a letter from the auditor to the council, asking for information in the matter.

Late in the evening, the council was informed that the auditor had requested the council to provide any and all information which might affect a council case.

When asked by Councillor Hantel, the auditor was rather evasive. He said he would provide an answer, but he would not say what it was.

Ambulance Would Add World's Most Modern 2-Way Radio Service Assembly Line Set Up

A two-way radio for the town's volunteer ambulance service is being considered by council, following a recommendation for this by the GAVAS.

The ambulance fund then service could be speeded in some emergencies if the vehicles were equipped with radios which would tie into the police radio system.

Also on council's agenda Monday was a recommendation for a change from the present system which requires the police or a doctor to officially certify an ambulance call. The GAVAS would have the ambulance summoned whenever an emergency arises.

We feel it better to have an occasional false alarm than the death of more serious cases by any delay occasioned by the present system, said a letter from secretary, Joe Doreau.

Mr. Doreau's letter also mentioned that GAVAS would like to have a two-way radio for the ambulance service.
