

NEWCOMERS GET A WARM WELCOME - AND GIFTS

MRS. KATHERINE CORDARO says 'welcome' to Georgetown to another new resident in her capacity as greeter of Georgetown's newcomers. Mrs. Cordaro is the Georgetown agent for Hi Neighbour Welcome Service, and as well as making the new families feel at home conveys the greetings of the merchants she represents with gift certificates. The Herald is one of the businesses on whose behalf Mrs. Cordaro says hello.

Hi, Neighbour
WELCOME TO OUR TOWN

People continue to move into Georgetown, and Hi Neighbour hostess has been busy on her rounds, greeting them on behalf of a group of local businessmen, which includes the Herald.

Among the newcomers are

• MR. AND MRS. RONALD SCONDO and children Karen 3, and Lisa, 30 months have moved to 33 George St. from Norval. He is a machine operator with Standard Products.

• Also from Norval, MR. AND MRS. BARRY TIMLECK have moved back to town and are living at 15 Rexway Drive. She is the former Sandra Bradley and they have two children Marci, age 19 months and John Andrew, 1 month. He is a student accountant with Walter Pope.

• MR. AND MRS. ROY AVERY came from Bristol, England. In July, lived in Streetsville and are now residing at 12 Gower Court. He is a mechanic with American Motors in Brampton. Their children are Lee, 5 and Ross, 3.

• Another American Motors employee, VINCE MAHON EY, his wife and children Linda 5, Derrick, 4, Laura 22 months and baby Brenda are living at 21 Temple Road.

YOUR CHRISTMAS TREE IS A 'PERSONAL' THING

The style of Christmas tree selected and the manner in which it is to be lighted and trimmed is as personal as the clothes one wears.

Through the years, numerous ways of decorating and lighting the indoor Christmas Tree have been tried as well as a variety of colours and materials for trees.

Aluminum trees, that may be used year after year have been around for several years. Yet, the traditional natural evergreen continues to be the favorite.

Even in these modern times, favourite decorations are those so popular in the old days - multi-colored lights, colored ornaments, icicles, drapes of tinsel and scenes under the tree.

GIDDYAP . . . Old Blaz, the talking horse, is operated by child-power. He also snorts and whinnies at the pull of the magic string.

WELL, DOG-GONE . . . Fun for the family dog as well as the kids, a variety of toys this year are based upon characters familiar from children's books. "The Dowdy Grackle," above is typical.

SUGAR and SPICE
By Bill Smiley

Wading through the snow and blue sky and golden sand climbing the snowbank thrown up by the plow, and picking up my shovel to commence a typical Canadian winter day, I couldn't help feeling sorry for poor old George Cadogan and wife, Eida, who are wintering in Spain. The coward!

Newspaper people who are taking a year to write, they are settled on the island of Mallorca in the Mediterranean with two cats, a dog and daughter Kathie, 14.

Anyway, as I took a deep breath of that crunchy polar air, and started coughing, my heart went out to them. Here I was, a virile man of the true north, red blood pumping in practically every vein, nose running freely, heart thumping sporadically, battling the elements to begin another day's hunt for meat for my little family.

And where was George? At that very moment, he was strolling indolently down the hill in Palma de Mallorca, on his way to the bakery to buy some of those crusty little rolls, hot from the oven, and take them back to the apartment where he and Eida would sit on their balcony, in their shorts and have breakfast, looking at the same old monotonous scene the Mediterranean sparkling in the sun.

And as I thought of this, I was so overcome by pity for them that I started to cry. At least, I think that's what made me commence weeping. At any rate, I was still sobbing when I got into the car and found it wouldn't start.

Think of what they miss! There's the happy family jaunt to the Christmas tree lot, and the delightful democratic choosing of the tree.

"That one's scraggly. This one's bushy at the bottom but skinny at the top. I like spruce. No, we're getting a Scotch pine. Too big, too small. Too much money."

And who'd want to be in Mallorca on Christmas Day? Nothing to look at but palm trees

Ohio Firm Would Help Town Make Centennial Plans

News of Georgetown's birth day next year has reached as far as Fostoria, Ohio. A letter read at Wednesday's Council meeting from W. Leemon, of Rodgers Co. in Fostoria, to the mayor began with 'Happy Birth Day,' then went on to offer their services to help plan the celebrations.

The letter claimed they could conduct a proper historical celebration, as testified by fifty name satisfied communities in the States. They, at least, expressed no doubts as to the fact 1964 was Georgetown's centennial.

Mayor W. Smith reported that one of their representatives had called him.

"Did this letter come unsolicited?" queried Council member "As far as we know no one ever heard of them," replied the Mayor.

"No, I wouldn't mind seeing the Ohioans in Paris in the spring or Rome in the fall. But nothing could force me to miss the joys of winter and the holiday season in the north - strong and freezing. Nothing that is, except enough money to get out of it!"
