

Government Swoop Removes Ammunition at Armoury

A shroud of secrecy covered an official swoop on more than 100 Ontario armouries — including Lorne Scots C. Coy's on Park St., Georgetown, which has left all militia units without ammunition, it was revealed this week.

Acting on orders from the higher military echelon, trucks and troops, have secretly carried off all ammunition stocked by the militia.

It was taken to a 'central point' — no one is saying where — and stock piled.

The move followed instructions from Ottawa where defence minister Melnyk had earlier called an emergency meeting with top level army staff to discuss militia small arms protection.

A veil of secrecy covered the army 'swoop' which left the militia responsible only for their weapons. Additional security precautions to cover these have also been decreed.

A spokesman said yesterday that the militia units had previously held ammunition for target practice and range shooting.

When kibitzing subsided the chairman was presented with a proper gavel, engraved with his name, by the business administrator, Jim Evans.

Stockpiled at the 'central point' — speculation is Camp Borden — are all 303 ammunition for the army's Bren guns and remaining Lee Enfield rifles and 7.62 ammunition for the Belgian V.N. semi-automatic, now Canada's front line infantry weapon and the major weapon at the Lorne Scots Georgetown armoury.

Also taken were mortar and bazooka shells.

HEAVY HANDED

If Stan Finlay, newly elected chairman of the Georgetown Public School Board ruled his first business meeting with a heavy hand, he couldn't be faulted. Prior to the meeting retiring chairman Ed Wilson presented his fellow trustees with a gaudy, gold-painted wreathy mallet.

When kibitzing subsided the chairman was presented with a proper gavel, engraved with his name, by the business administrator, Jim Evans.
