

International Night For 5th Guide Coy.

The regular meeting of the 5th Georgetown Girl Guide Co. took place at Holy Cross school on Monday, Feb. 17 in the form of an International Night with parents attending. Each Guide dressed in a costume representing a different country and brought a dish native to that country.

After dinner Capt. K. Freeman welcomed the parents and explained about the celebration of Lord and Lady Baden Powell's birthdays and Thinking Day. A box was then passed around in which each parent was asked to put in a penny for the size of their waist. This money is donated to the International Guide Fund.

The Guides entertained by playing games of different countries and with dances including the Virginia Reel and folk dances.

The meeting closed with Capt. Freeman thanking the parents for attending and inviting them for next year.

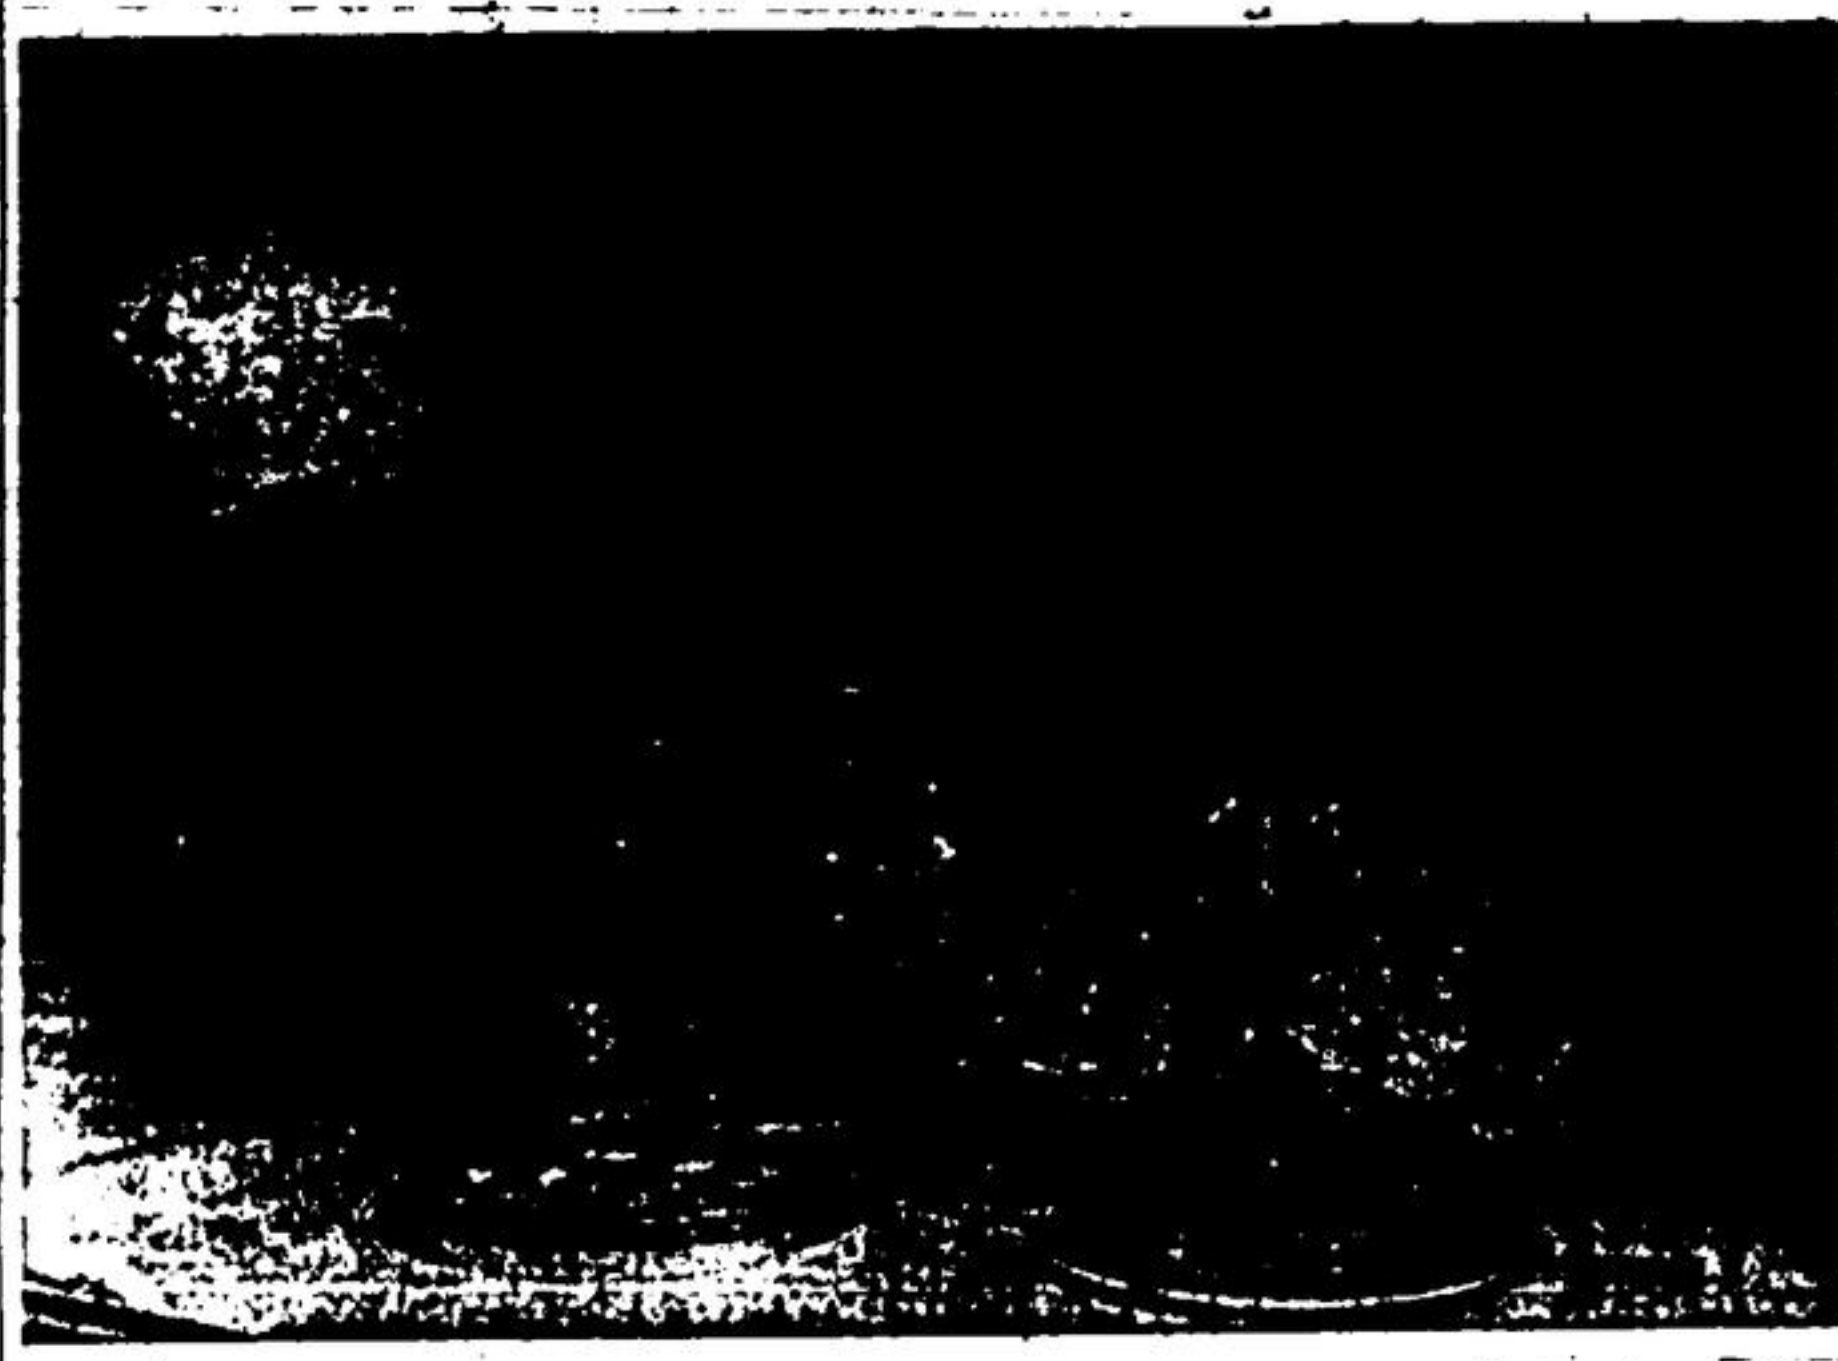

FLY-UP

On Tues. Feb. 11 at the home of their Brown Owl, Mrs. E. White, the 5th Georgetown Brownie Pack held their regular meeting. Debbie Strife flew up to Guides. She has her Golden Bar and Golden Hand and has passed all of her tests.

The Brownies formed a tunnel and Debbie wore golden wings and golden slippers and "flew" through the tunnel. The 5th Girl Guide Company were there to receive her into Guides and she was met by Guide Susan Shull and introduced to Capt. K. Freeman and Lt. L. Schattl. She was sent on her way with the Brownie Grand Howl.

The Guides and Brownies formed a campfire and sang songs. Brown Owl presented Debbie with her Brownie record and certificate and a gift.

LET'S PLAY BRIDGE

By Bill Coats

One of the reasons for playing a hand in a trump suit rather than in no trumps is so that you may ruff your losers with dummy's trump. The defense should keep this in mind. Any time it appears that declarer wants to ruff in dummy, then the defense should lead trump.

A good example of this occurred last week at the Acton Bridge Club. Here is the hand with positions changed so that declarer is South.

Dealer — East.
Neither side vulnerable.

North
S—D 8
H—6 6
D—Q 8 5
C—A 9 8 7 4

West East
S—A K J 10 7 4 S 6 3
H—4 3 H—7 5
D—J 8 7 D—K 10 4 3 2
C—10 2 C—K Q 8 J

South
S—Q 8 4
H—A K Q J 10 8 3
D—A
C—J 3

The bidding:

| | | | |
|------|-------|------|-------|
| West | South | West | North |
| Pass | 1H | IS | Pass |
| Pass | —3H | Pass | 4H |
| Pass | —Pass | Pass | — |

South's jump to three hearts indicates a hand that is just short of an opening two bid. If North had a sure trick and a little extra, he should bid four. When the board played, every South got to four hearts. From there on, the results were different. One made five, one made four and one went down one.

West leads the spade. King and East should not, in fact must not, signal with the six. A high low signal is used only when you want a suit continued. Since East cannot over-ruff dummy, he should not signal for a spade continuation.

When West sees dummy, he should realize that declarer may want to ruff a spade loser. Therefore, he should lead a trump at the second trick. If South wins and leads a spade, West can win and lead a second trump.

Now there are no more hearts in dummy as South ends up with three spade losers in all. Since he must lose a club as well, the contract would be set one trick.

If you are wondering how one declarer made five hearts, so was I. It appears that West led two rounds of spades and continued spades in reply to partner's high low signal.

The third spade was ruffed with dummy's trump nine and the trumps were led. After seven rounds of trump, East decided to guard diamonds instead of clubs. Thus declarer loses only two spade tricks.

Here is another defensive tip. When declarer runs a long suit, trying to make your partner discard incorrectly, you should help your partner by discarding all you have in one side. On this hand, if West discards the second 10 of clubs, then East can count on declarer having two clubs. East should then guard clubs rather than diamonds.

Three way tie: Tom Warnes, Dick Anderson; Mrs. Grace Reed, Bill Coats; Mike Larusso Duke Wilson.
