EDITORIAL COMMENT

Doing Their Bit ...

Often we are too prone to criticize reeners, to label them thoughtless, irresponsible, scatter-brained.

. To cite only one example, take the ked Cross blood donor clinic Where a good percentage of the 300 prople who volunteered blead were these same feen agers.

Others, many of them, served as canvassers for the blitz fund drive.

And, a large group took advantage of the offer to visit the Princess Margaret hospital, when an open-house was held to

Far From Godliness....

If cleanliness is next to godliness, then Canadians have a long way to go before they approach an exalted state.

We're a bit of a bug on-the litterbug point. And our slovenly ways seem more apparent in these first days of spring when the winter's trash collection is much in evidence on our streets.

In the downtown area, the Chamber of Commerce has provided waste receptacles. They are used by many, but ignored by many more. We see children discard chocolate bar wrappers on the pavement beside a receptacle, while their elders tost an empty packet carelessly in the street. Our Inghways are littered with trash thrown from car windows. And public buildings like the arena can be spanking clean one minute and a mass of garbage the next.

Some Action Necessary...

Proposed legislation to counteract organized crime in Ontario has raised a protest seldom equalled.

Yet we wonder if sometimes the end doesn't justify the means, for we cannot condone the infiltration of American gangsterism into our country and must' seek some legal protection against it.

The States have had little luck. Known killers have been jailed for income tax invasion, the only law, apparently, which has enough teeth to register convictions. Unless we can come up with laws which can penalize flagrant breaches of our ethics, perhaps we must have a shade of dictatorship to keep our country pure.

Meanwhile the public outcry is good, as long as it does not discourage the government from taking any action at all.

acquaint people with what is being done to combat cancer.

Yake the Interest in perliamentary of fairs at high school when delegates attended a model parliament, conducted brisk elections and revealed an interest in senior povernment which their elders gould envy.

We need not go on. We have ample proof already that our young Georgetown people will turn into sensible senior citizens in their turn, perhaps even better acquainted with world affairs than their elders who are often too fast to criticize.

What is the solution?

Only a realization of how much nicer our streets and countryside would be withoul trash and a determination in every adult to dispose of his own garbage and teach his children to do likewise.

The arena management were happy recently, we are told, when a visiting metro MAIL BAG group departed from the building leaving dressing rooms spanking clean, not even a match stick for attendants to clean up.

Let's all resolve to emulate this. Put Not Always Impartial rubbish in a proper receptacle, and if none is available, stick it in your pocket until you find one.

Nature wasn't created for humans to defile. Cleanliness costs nothing and pays Dear Mr. Editor; enormous dividends in beauty.

We wonder, though, why there isn't ment has subsided, let us look as much fuss when political figures are calmly at the causes. caught in stock scandals, when police and private citizens are beaten by hoodlums, when impaired drivers get minor sentences, when murder is too often reduced to a dispensed a different type manslaughter charge.

Perhaps our government could spend some time putting teeth into laws which has been established in are too easy to break.

Sometimes we think the only good legislation is that which imposes a penalty for bank robbery. When one robs a bank and is caught, it's a certainty that a long prison sentence awaits you.
