CHANNEL DEFENCE $$$ INTO TOWN PLANT

THIS RARE SHOT of two 2-180 Avian prototypes at their hangar door accompanied last week's new release announcing the Dept. of Defense Production's $540,000 cost-sharing development program on the Georgetown aircraft. The grant will complete a 1 1/2 million dollar program to make the Avian gyroplane available to the military and civil market.

Seek Seven Extra Lots For Public School Site

The Georgetown public school board are more than satisfied with the recent transaction with council that land them the deed to the site they preferred for Georgetown's sixth public school - but the parcel isn't big enough. Planning chairman Reg. Mooney said at a meeting Wednesday that the board will need to acquire more land to make the site large enough for the proposed school and grounds.

Another 7 lots is the size of the additional land the board will seek to purchase from the developer - who ever that is.

Hex Heslop recently made it public that he is selling out his company, Delrex Developments, to unidentified finance houses, and at the time of the board meeting the name of the buyer was still unknown. The trustees decided to try a letter to the last known owner, Delrex Developments, anyway to start the ball rolling toward buying the necessary property.

Discussion on making a phone available at the Howard Wrigglesworth public school which includes an auditorium that frequently houses public functions concluded Wednesday when the trustees voted unanimously to have a pay phone installed in the corridor. The matter was tabled originally at the board's April meeting, when trustee G. Sigurdson proposed access by the caretaker to the principal's phone in case of an emergency.

The ideas met opposition from Trustee Harry Shorill who stressed the office and its contents should be available to no one but the principal. After three or four alternative suggestions the board decided to try a pay phone.

Doctors, Hospital Board Hold Dinner Meeting

Last Thursday evening the members of Georgetown Medical Association and members of the Board of Governors of the Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital met at a dinner meeting. This was the first of this type of meeting held by doctors and board members. At the conclusion of dinner, chairman John T. Armstrong made a few remarks, and called on the Hospital administrator, H. Graham Gilhooly, to say a few words. A member of the Board, Mayor Joseph Gibbons also spoke briefly. The evening was brought to a close by a film shown by the administrator.

KERR'S COLUMN
M.P.P. REPORTS TO GEORGETOWN FROM QUEEN'S PARK
by GEORGE KERR

The Legislature wound up its sittings last week. It has been generally conceded by the members from all parties that the session was lively and productive. The Leader of the New Democratic Party remarked that a surprising amount had been accomplished, particularly for the first year in the life of a Government having a large majority. It was not a routine sort of sitting as expected and the House sat longer this year than it has for the past forty years.

The Legislature passed 143 Bills, providing new and amending legislation dealing with every department. There were also 34 Private Bills from municipalities and educational institutions, dealing with everything from fixed assessment for industry to setting up co-operative college residences on various camps.

Lost in the controversy and furor of Bill 60 (an act to amend the Police Act) was legislation implemented to protect the rights of consumers, borrowers, investors, used car buyers, teachers, farmers, the aged, labour, mothers, students, apprentices, etc. As a new member I was surprised how much the Provincial Government affects the day to day lives of the people of Ontario. There is no question but the spheres of influence are greater than any other level of government in Canada and are becoming greater. An illustration is the fact that Ontario plans to spend about 1 1/2 billion dollars during the current fiscal year and about 6 billion is budgeted for all of Canada.

riding basic civil rights and liberties. I hope the Chief Justice will decide that many of the boards and commissions now in existence should be eliminated or at least the trend towards more stopped. On the last day of the session, the Prime Minister set up and re-constituted five select committees which will meet from now until the Fall. These committees will deal with consumer credit, municipal law, youth, mining and resources and the aged. I have been appointed to the committee dealing with consumer credit and this committee will hold public hearings, interview witnesses and generally make findings regarding the cost and methods of borrowing, retail credit and time payment plans. During the last week of the Session two Acts were passed which will particularly interest the people of Halton. One authorizes municipalities to require people in the home repair business to obtain a license for their trade. In this way there is some control over those persons or firms which have been conducting home repair rackets in our area, doing poor work and charging high prices, sometimes under false pretences. This will assist the honest contractor as well as the home owner. Another bill provides that in future a Committee of Adjustments of a municipality rather than the Planning Board will handle applications for land separation. Many municipalities have requested this change and the main reason is to permit a council to impose certain conditions in respect to services and buildings when granting separations. There will be a right of appeal to the Committee's decisions. This will mean a great deal more work for this Committee of Council but it will also allow Planning Boards to deal more thoroughly with matters of overall planning and not an administrative function.

GEORGETOWN GARDENER
The Richer The Greener
by Gordon Lindsay Smith
R. R. 1, Georgetown
If one remembers that grass is a plant like any flower or vegetable and treats it that way, then half the battle is won. Like all plants, grass will do a lot better if it is given an occasional feeding of fertilizer, preferably one high in nitrogen, as that is the element that makes green growth. Lawn grass, too, likes to be thoroughly soaked, not just sprinkled, with water once a week during dry, hot weather, and of course, the real secret of a beautiful dry green, thick and fine stemmed turf is the proper seed, not some bargain, but a mixture blended by expert seedsmen, that contains only high quality grasses, and in the proper proportions. Only with such seed can one hope to have a lawn that will stay green all summer long and will actually improve rather than deteriorate as the years go by. Weeds, of course, are a bit of a problem but not too big a one in a lawn well fed and well
