HIGH JINKS FOR THE FROSH

GRADE NINE students have that feeling of "belonging" this week—but they earned it last week during Initiation Day. Above are some of the grade niners who went through the treatment as prescribed by the senior students. From left are Maureen Higgs and Judy Asseltine dressed as boys, and Clive Warwick, Barry Ferguson and Ross Evans in feminine finery.

Council Chooses Grader Over Town Garage

Council were faced with a choice between a grader or a garage, Monday night when they were told that the Ontario Municipal Board advised them to pay over six thousand dollars of the $19,879 purchase price for the grader, out of this year's current revenue, with the remaining similar payments made in '65 and '66. They chose the grader.

Last week Council voted six thousand dollars for the town garage, but this week Coun. R. Francis made a motion rescinding the motion to construct the garage. "Rather than cause a deficit of six thousand dollars", he explained.

In defence of the Municipal Board's stand that one third be paid this year, Coun. Don Powers stated, "It is only normal to pay one third now, we can't commit other councils three years ahead if we are not willing to pay something down."

Mayor J. Gibbons commended Coun. Francis for his "commonsense attitude."

Family Party Held For Mrs. John Scott

MRS. JOHN SCOTT

A family party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jackson, Glen Williams, marked the recent 88th birthday of Mrs. John R. Scott, 15 Emery St.

Mrs. Scott, who was born at Tullamore, has lived all her life in this district, at Acton and later at Limehouse where her husband farmed for many years. She has been a town resident for fifteen years.

All the family were present for a turkey supper. Mrs. Harriet Norrie, Thornhill, Mr. and Mrs. Art Scott, Mrs. William Shelbourne, Limehouse, Harold Scott and Edna, Rockwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson.

IT'S OUR TURN

Georgetown's Buildings To Get The Once Over

October 4 to 10 is "Fire Prevention Week" in Halton County this year, and members of Halton Fire Prevention Bureau are launching a concentrated drive on fire prevention publicity for the week.

Home and commercial inspections, fire hall open houses, a church parade, distribution of literature and special films will help the firefighters in their never-ending battle to prevent fire, before it starts.

At the September meeting of the county Bureau, Chiefs M. Holmes of Acton and Erwin Lewis, Georgetown, reported plans had been finalized for one-day blitz of all commercial and industrial buildings in Acton and Georgetown, on Wednesday, October 7. The Bureau sponsors this blitz in one or two Halton towns each year. This year 10 insurance inspectors will assist Acton and Georgetown Fire Department members as they root out fire hazards in the stores and factories within their coverage area.

Each year the Bureau provides restaurants in Halton with free place mats bearing a fire prevention message, and 30,000 are to be distributed prior to Fire Prevention Week. The group has also purchased 23,000 booklets for public school children, and each booklet urges the children to watch for and correct fire hazards in the home. Posters and billboards will blanket the county with more fire prevention messages.

A fire prevention poster competition is being held in the Grade 5 level, and the boy and girl who are judged Halton winners will be honored at a banquet in late November, in Milton. Trophies are awarded to the top boy and girl, and their posters will also be entered in an Ontario-wide competition, sponsored by the Ontario Fire Chiefs' Association. Entry forms are to be distributed soon and all posters are to be completed by October 9.

Besides the county-sponsored program, each individual fire department will be observing Fire Prevention Week with special programs, such as school fire drills, open houses at the fire halls, and film nights.

"Think About Fire—Wherever You Are" is the appropriate slogan for the 1964 Fire Prevention Week program.

SUGAR AND SPICE

Mainly The Money?

Hoosy to you Mrs. F. J. Glaubits, president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Glaubits was widely quoted recently as "expressing concern that some persons are attracted to the teaching profession because of high salaries rather than a genuine interest in teaching."

Bill Smiley

The lady is reported to have said that persons in the past have been drawn to teaching because of a sincere interest in human beings, but the higher salaries of recent years have brought an increasing number who consider it "just another job."

Dear Mrs. Glaubits, you're all well. Where are all these people who are flocking into teaching for the big salaries. Every spring, principals do everything but turn over stones to see what they can find under them, in the search for teachers.

Where are these big salaries, Mrs. Glaubits? Now, I'm not going to get personal, and ask how much Mr. Glaubits is making these days. But if there is a Mr. Glaubits, I'll bet he's making a whole lot more than this teacher.

Teachers' salaries are reasonable after years of shabby gentility. But they're a long way from being opulent. They make less money than engineers, dentists or home-benders. They're not even within sight of doctors and lawyers. They're about one jump ahead of the preachers, about on a par with the skilled craftsmen.

Anybody who has a wild idea about getting into the high-salaried profession of teaching should immediately take a tranquillizer, followed by a short course in hotel management, hair-dressing, or something in which he can make real money.

The story continued: "Mrs. Glaubits emphasized that the association does not oppose high salaries for teachers because the whole future of the country rests in their hands." Well, bully for Mrs. Glaubits and the association. But isn't that taking a very dim view of the church, the government, and the parents of all those who will make up the future? It's a bit much to saddle the teachers with, isn't it? Frankly, if the whole future of the country rests in my hands, I'm going to put my hands in my pockets and stroll quietly away.

Mrs. G., in the same story, suggested that greater care be taken in choosing candidates for teaching training using such means as aptitude tests to weed out unsuitable persons. Now, I realize that teachers have not the pristine purity of medical or law societies, where there is never a bad apple in the barrel, but I'm afraid aptitude tests are not the answer.

Here's the type of test Mrs. Glaubits might approve, with the answers that would be given by one of the best teachers I know, a mature experienced man whose students worship him, whose colleagues respect him, and whose results are excellent.

Q. Do you have a sincere interest in human beings? A. Well, not really. I like dogs, though.

Q. Do you smoke? A. Sure. Q. Do you indulge in alcohol? A. Just beer, except on the weekends.

Q. Do you enjoy helping people? A. Hall, no. I only do it because I have to.

Q. Are you interested in a higher salary? A. Are you kidding?

Q. What cultural interests do you have, aside from your profession? A. Watching football on TV.

Q. What sort of home life do you have? A. Well, the kids drive me crazy and I fight a lot with my wife. About average, I guess.

And so it would go, the aptitude test. This chap should be buried out of the profession, by rights. He's not dedicated or anything. He's just a crackling good teacher.
