Giants Take To Practice Field Sunday Morning

These kinks and sagging muscles produced by the off-season inactivity will be attacked with vigor by the Georgetown baseball Giants this Sunday morning. Club officials met last week and set Sunday May 2, as the first practice date, weather permitting. Working out will start at 10 o'clock in the Georgetown park.

"Nobody's sure of their job," Giants president Stu Congdon told the Herald. "We're throwing the practice open to anybody who wants to take a shot at making the club."

Two players not with last year's team have already indicated they'll be going for positions with the team. Charlie Mitchener, who moved here from Simco, recently, and Bill Anderson, a minor league last season, will be among the practice squad, and team brass have their fingers crossed that the first session will produce at least one of those "real finds" that managers always hope for when they issue a general invitation to ball players.

Last year's manager, Duda Lindsay, of Acton, was absent from the most recent meeting, the second he's missed in as many meetings, but his sons Jim and Don attended and dispelled doubts that he might not be available to handle the team.

The Duda has missed either playing or coaching in baseball just one season in the past twenty.

Lady Curlers Get Awards Choose Season's Officers

Jean Ruddlell was returned as president of the Ladies' Curling Club at the annual meeting recently held at the club house. Other officers of the Curling Club for the next season will be:

First vice president: Helen Bassett; second vice president, Alice Minton; treasurer, Myrt Scott; secretary, Jean MacKenzie; games committee, Maddie Howell; bonspiel committee — Irene Curry; social Marie Paris; house Helen Archer; business girls Bunny Moore; press Mary Hiehn; tankard convener, Prudis Bessie; junior tankard convener, Verna Schack.

During the supper hour, Paul Barber supplied music at the organ and for a sing-song.

Dorothy Young conducted the election of officers.

The tankard competitions trophy was presented by Irene Curry to the rink of Dorothy Young, B. Broomhead, J. MacKinnon and P. Monckton. They were the winners in 'A' Group. Runners-up were the teams of Irene Farnell, Shirley Crichton, Claire Miller and Joan Costigan.

In the 'B' group the top team was Marg Mackenzie, Gladys Gillon, Edna Murray and Jennie MacKenzie. Runners-up to that group were the team of Annie Bingham, Myrt Scott, Mabel Sanderson, Anna Ewen. The Curling award was presented to Irene Curry, Ruth Barber and Marie Paris.

Heppburn trophy winners were Irene Curry and Alice Savage. MacCormack trophy winners were Jean Chappel and Phyl Monckton. Langdon trophy winners were Doris Binkley and Joan Costigan. In the Friday night mixed curling the O'Keefe award was picked up by the team of Irene Farnell and Joan Costigan.

Bike Racing Scheduled For Maple Leaf Gardens

There's an old axiom in sports that they never come back, but from time to time some ancient pop up to knock this theory for a loop. Like hockey's Ted Lindsay, boxing Sugar Ray Robinson, baseball's Warren Spahn, for instance.

So it is with six day bike racing which will make a comeback in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens May 23. Bike racing which was a casualty of World War II, returns to Toronto after an absence of 27 years, making the greatest of all sports comebacks.

Co-incidentally, adding a sentimental note to the return of this spectacular and dangerous sport, will be the appearance of Gustav Killian Jr., who will team with Toronto racer Heinz Reinhold, a youngster of German extraction. It was 27 years ago this month that Killian's illustrious father rode in the last Toronto race, partnered with Heinz Vopel.

Twenty-two bike riders from nine countries will mount their bikes Sunday night, May 2, at 7 o'clock for the official opening and for six days after that they will pedal around the board saucer at Maple Leaf Gardens in a dizzy, daring and dangerous ride to fame. Not all will finish the race, Promoter Rene Cyr fears because the competition is so intense and injuries so frequent in the jams and sprints that only the good and the good and lucky make it to the finale.

Teams in the race will be from France, Denmark, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland, United States, Canada, Ontario and a Toronto team composed of Giacomo Segal and Giuseppe Ogna.

By the time the six-day race is completed the riders will have pedalled an exhausting 1,700 miles and will have been on the track for about 144 hours. Bike racing's comeback will be watched with interest, the greatest comeback in modern sports history. War could not destroy the spirit of the rugged individualists who are the backbone of professional bicycle racing.

Levack Says Thanks Enjoyed The Tourney

Mr. Editor:

The boys on the Levack team would like to thank everyone in Georgetown for the wonderful good time they had this past week.

Mr. Asseltine, Mrs. Alcorn, and Mrs. Hayes have done so much to make their visit so enjoyable.

All the people associated with the tournament have done a marvelous job, especially the referees who have handled the games perfectly.

The boys say a special 'thank you' to all the host mothers and fathers who so kindly billeted them.

Georgetown will always be a place to remember. Thanks a million, folks.

Little Brother with a Big Heart
Fish with the new Merc 39. This is the light, good little single-cylinder outboard that goes where other motors fear to go. It's got the full weight of Merc's new Merc 39 in its hull, but you'll like the way Merc 39 lets you get out there. Merc 39 is a real outboard, it's got the same kind of backbone that's in every Merc outboard. It's the toughest little outboard on the dock.
