

Restrict Township Fireworks Harley to Switzerland Allow Only on Victoria Day World Health Conference

Restrictive immediately, fireworks may only be sold in Esqueving township, during the seven days prior to Victoria Day. They may only be sold to persons over sixteen, and they may only be set off on Victoria Day. These regulations are contained in a by-law given third reading by the council, Tuesday night.

Councillor R. Lawson pointed out that a notice to this effect should be put in the newspapers so that storekeepers would not be breaking the law unwittingly.

Council agreed to insert notices in the three local papers.

"Esqueving is one of the worst townships in which to get anything done," charged Alvin Thorne, of No. 5 side-road, at Esqueving Council meeting Tuesday night. "In addition it is one of the untidiest," he told the councillors.

Mr. Thorne was protesting the condition of the road as it approached his driveway. He explained that the water had gouged out a deep hole in the road just at the beginning of his driveway.

"My mother fell in it and hurt her leg," said Mr. Thorne, "and I would like to submit a claim for her coat, and stockings."

The Reeve explained that he had to submit it within ten days, which in this case left him a week to get it in.

"We'll try to fix the road as soon as possible," the Reeve promised, adding that weather conditions this spring had not been conducive to road work.

"All I want is a reasonable entrance to my driveway," concluded Mr. Thorne. "Every year I have the same problem and nothing is done," he said as he left.

Under a new agreement with Acton Fire Area No. 2, Esqueving, Nassagaweya, and Erin will pay a combined total of $7,600 a year for fire protection.

The amounts the individual municipalities will pay, will be based on their assessment in the Acton Fire Area, with the charges in direct ratio to that assessment.

There will be no charges per fire call as there has been in the past. In addition the three townships will pay the maintenance costs of the truck.

Confusion surrounded the application for a building permit by Robco Developments, who intend to build an eleven thousand square foot steel building on the Third Line below Highway 401, for the manufacture of prefabricated steel buildings, because they do not own the land.

"How do you get a building permit if you don't own the land," wondered Clerk K. C. Lindsay.

More confusion was added when a copy of a letter from Robco Developments to Milton made "an irrevocable request that Milton annex the land".

Curmudgeoning the confusion was a resolution from Milton Council agreeing to supply Robco Developments with water.

"They want to be annexed by Milton before they even buy the land in Esqueving," commented Clerk K. C. Lindsay.

"And they want a building permit before they own land to get a building on," added Com. George Currie.

Dangers of Alcohol Stressed by Toc Alpha

Three of the four Georgetown members of The Alpha spent Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the Easter holidays at the Timothy Eaton Memorial, United Church in Toronto to plan for the next year, and also for a Centennial project.

Out-of-town delegates were assigned billets at homes of members in Toronto.

The Convention convened with the key note speaker the Rev. Douglas Moffat. The balance of the day was spent in Christmas Conference Evaluation, Nominating Committee report and Constitution changes. The buffet supper was followed by a hootenanny with music by Ian Rankin of "The Common Folk".

On Tuesday a field trip to the Liquor Control Board of Ontario kept Toc Alpha delegates busy until noon.

After lunch plans were made for 1967-68 with emphasis on Youth Education week. The banquet speaker was Mr. Wm. A. McLaughlin, Principal of Castle Frank High School.

Wednesday morning was spent in discussing the Nominating Committee's report. Major MacQuodall of the House of Concord and his boys gave a talk outlining to our teens what hard alcohol can do. An invitation was given to all Toc Alpha members to come to the House of Concord to try to help and show the boys, the purpose of Toc Alpha.

The Georgetown Gardener
Tips for Beating the Short Growing Season
By Gordon Lindsay Smith, R.R. 1, Georgetown
Sure the growing season is short in most parts of Canada with less than 100 days between latest and earliest frost. But that doesn't mean we can't have a garden, and a mighty productive one, too, from April to October. By taking full advantage of the newer and hardier varieties it is astonishing what a display of flowers we can have anywhere in Canada and what an array of vegetables we can grow. With planting it is quite possible to have melons, cucumbers, tomatoes, garden beans and all sorts of the less hardy flowers almost anywhere in the country. There are several ways of doing this.

First we must select the earliest varieties possible corn that will mature in well under 60 days; melons, in 60 days; the number of days to maturity is usually listed in the seed catalogue — and so on. Every year the plant breeders seem to be turning out something that will mature earlier than the one before. In flowers, too, we must use those varieties and strains that will bloom quickly.

Next point to bear in mind is that in climates where the season is very short, we can start in from two to four weeks by starting seeds indoors. We use trays made of peat moss or clay, those special plastic trays, available with soil and seeds already planted.

With things that do not take long to transplanting such as melons, the first cucumbers or beans a few hills of corn, we sow in special fibre pots in a sunny window. A few weeks these will be ready for outside and we simply plant pot and all, as the seeds will grow right through.

A third way to extend the season is to plant in the regular way, but extra-early, perhaps a few weeks ahead of last frost, and protect with a sheet of glass, or waxed paper, or even with a flower pot light, for the first few weeks.
