COUNTY OF HALTON WEED CONTROL NEWS BY V. E. MCARTHUR WEED INSPECTOR

June A Good Time To Check Crabgrass

Just in case you did not remember to apply the early pre-emergence chemicals, June is the time to be on the lookout for Crabgrass in your lawn. Although at this time of year it may look much like ordinary grass to those unfamiliar with it, it is actually the most troublesome weed the home owner has to deal with in his lawn.

In its early stages Crabgrass is lighter in color than lawn grass, has branching, smooth stems which may be either erect or prostrate and forms roots from the joints in the stems that come in contact with the earth. The leaves are short and broad, have rough margins and are hairy. By August, long finger-like seed stems appear, many of which grow so close to the ground that they are missed by the lawn mower. These stems then turn purplish-brown in color, and being so annual, Crabgrass eventually dies leaving bare spots - but not before millions of seeds have been shed to insure another crop the following year.

The summer treatment of the best time to attack it is June, just as soon as new growth is detected. One of the most common chemicals used to kill Crabgrass is potassium cyanide at the rate of one ounce to 3 gallons of water per 100 square feet. It is advisable to apply a second spray in two weeks. Potassium cyanide is highly toxic and should be used according to the manufacturer's directions.

Other methods of control include hand weeding, mowing, plenty of fertilizer and lawn grass seed well watered in to encourage growth of suitable grasses which will tend to choke out Crabgrass. Several fertilizers containing iron have been found to be quite effective. Water thoroughly only when the lawn really needs it. Do not chop the lawn too closely. When Crabgrass seed stems appear, pull them upright with a rake and chop them off with the mower; then collect the clippings

Plan Planting Campaign To Beautify Centennial

Mr. J. P. Duffield and Mrs. W. E. Norton, R.R.1, Georgetown, will represent the Georgetown Horticultural Society at an Ontario Horticultural Association meeting today and tomorrow at the University of Guelph. Centennial Planning will be the theme.

About a thousand horticultural association people will hear a panel of speakers tell how members, along with other public spirited citizens may enhance the beauty of the setting in which this and other communities will hold their celebration in 1967.

"Plant now and reap a harvest of beauty in the Centennial and destroy them. It takes persistent effort to keep Crabgrass under control, but the appearance of well kept, velvet-smooth lawn is worth the labour involved.

NDP May Feature Slate Again in Town Elections

The New Democratic Party may make another attempt to have a slate of candidates elected in the next Georgetown general election in December. That's the indication from action taken by the Georgetown NDP party members at a recent meeting.

The group has formed a Municipal Affairs Committee "to create interest in town affairs among members", according to a news release to The Herald. The release says the aim of the committee is to follow the new concept that the New Democratic Party has started in other areas across the country, which is active participation in community affairs.

A boat bottom is said to have a 'hook' if it is concave in the fore-and-aft direction when viewed from below. When the boat is planing, this causes more lift and allows the bottom to drop.
