ANYONE FOR COWBOYS AND INDIANS

Some of the 5th Georgetown B Pack, Gerald Anson, Douglas Coleen, Michael Magdy, and David Nemith, representing the early days of the Province of Saskatchewan, pose for the Herald photographer at their display at the annual Cuboree at the Georgetown Park, Saturday.

There was a good turnout of the annual Cuboree at the Georgetown Park, Saturday. The theme of the year has been "Get to Know Canada" and in keeping with this theme, the Cuboree was called "Canada 1907" and was a display of Canada, her past, present, products and people.

Provincial Customs, Costumes Depict Canada At Cuboree

by David Livingston

On Saturday, June 8th, 1965, the Georgetown District Wolf Cubs held their annual Cuboree in the Georgetown Park. The theme of the year has been "Get to Know Canada" and in keeping with this theme, the Cuboree was called "Canada 1907" and was a display of Canada, her past, present, products and people.

The Georgetown District is made up of thirteen Cub Packs from Georgetown, Acton, Norval, Glen Williams, Ballinfaed, Miramichi and Scotch Block. This represents a total of approximately 300 boys, and 25 leaders. Of this number, only 4 packs, 2nd and 8th Georgetown, Ballinfaed and Scotch Block did not participate. Earlier this year, each Pack drew from a hat the name of a province or area of Canada that they would represent, learn about, and display at the Cuboree. The boys, as well as the leaders, got well into the swing of things, learning about the province, the people and their dress, traditional customs and folk songs, and the products and resources of the area. Several packs were visited by "natives" of their province, who told them about the districts and showed coloured slides or movies. All in all, a great deal of effort was put forth by the Cubs and leaders who had been studying Canada for approximately two months.

Provinces East to West

On Saturday, June 8th, each Pack set up its display in the allotted area inside the race track at the Park. Most provinces erected a gateway to their area, and in each, the boys were dressed in costume. The provinces were arranged from East, starting with Newfoundland, to West, ending with British Columbia.

The afternoon actually got underway at 1 p.m., when registration of all the groups was due in. This registration provided each boy with a Canada 1907 crest, milk for supper, an afternoon treat, and a souvenir crest for the Pack. At 1:30 the opening Grand Howl and Flag Break was taken by Akela, and Cuboree Chairman, Ross Colter. This was followed at 2 by a Grand March of

The Province, with the boys arrayed in their costumes, ranging from the Fathers of Confederation to Indians and Vikings. During the remainder of the afternoon, the boys, along with the public, had the opportunity to tour Canada, and to take in a film, Canada's Heritage, showing a cross section of Canada, and her way of life.

Alberta Pony Strayed

Some excitement was generated for a while when a pony from Alberta decided to do some sightseeing and took off for the main street, where he was "rounded up" by a Georgetown cowboy. At 5 p.m., a second Grand March took place for the benefit of those visitors who missed the first.

To a great many of the boys, one of the main highlights of the day appeared to be supper, which was supplied, in most cases by the Mothers' Auxiliary of the Pack. The smell of barbecued hamburgers and hot dogs lingered for miles around the Georgetown Park. After a good filling, the boys were ready to change back to Cub uniform, and settle down for the fellowship of a rousing campfire. However, as the campfire drew to a close shortly after 8 p.m., the boys were rather glad of the many parents and cars available to provide the transportation for many a tired Cub. All in all, the boys appeared to have had a wonderful day, despite the fact that many leaders were very disappointed at the lack of parents and public participation and reception of the invitation issued to them to tour Canada, as guests of the Georgetown District Cub.

Members of the St. Stephen's Anglican Church Guild met at the home of Mrs. John Bussell for their final meeting of the summer, on Tuesday night, June 8. Mrs. Arthur Plant, the president, welcomed the ladies. The roll call was answered by all members attending. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Pat Fitzgibbon in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Craig Royce. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Geoffrey Drew-Brook. During the business period the correspondence was read which included two thank you notes which were from Mrs. Frank Chisholm and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Plant. A request from the Sidesmen, asking for help in their booth at the annual Steam Show in Milton in September, and it was decided that the ladies would oblige the men by helping them out as in previous years. Catering for two weddings was discussed and the conveners and their committees picked.

A cook book is being prepared and will be on sale in the near future. Each member was asked to donate a recipe, plus restaurant in Streetsville where everyone enjoyed Chinese Food. Following dinner they all returned to Mrs. Bousfield's where a short business meeting was held. Mrs. Barbara Snow, the president, presided for the meeting. The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Barbara Snow. A penny sale followed and a delicious dessert lunch was served by Mrs. Donalds Neelands and Mrs. Olive Wallace. Due to the summer vacation period, meetings are discontinued until September.

Decoration Day was held at St. Stephen's Anglican Church on Sunday with a good attendance. Following the service a cup of tea and cookies was served by the Ladies.

The Georgetown Gardener

Don't Water Garden at Night, Expert's Advice

By Gordon Lindsay Smith
R. R. 1, Georgetown

Best insurance against bugs and diseases is a thriving and healthy garden. Keep all weeds eliminated as they often provide home and food for pests. Flowers and vegetables should be cultivated regularly and thinned out where necessary to promote vigorous growth. Sometimes, however, in spite of our best efforts the garden is attacked. On the first sign of a wilted or eaten leaf, or of cut worms, tomato worms, aphids or slugs or other enemies one should lose no time in getting out the duster, sprayer or bait.

It's a lot easier and cheaper to check one of these attacks before they really get underway. And it is not difficult with all the modern materials available.

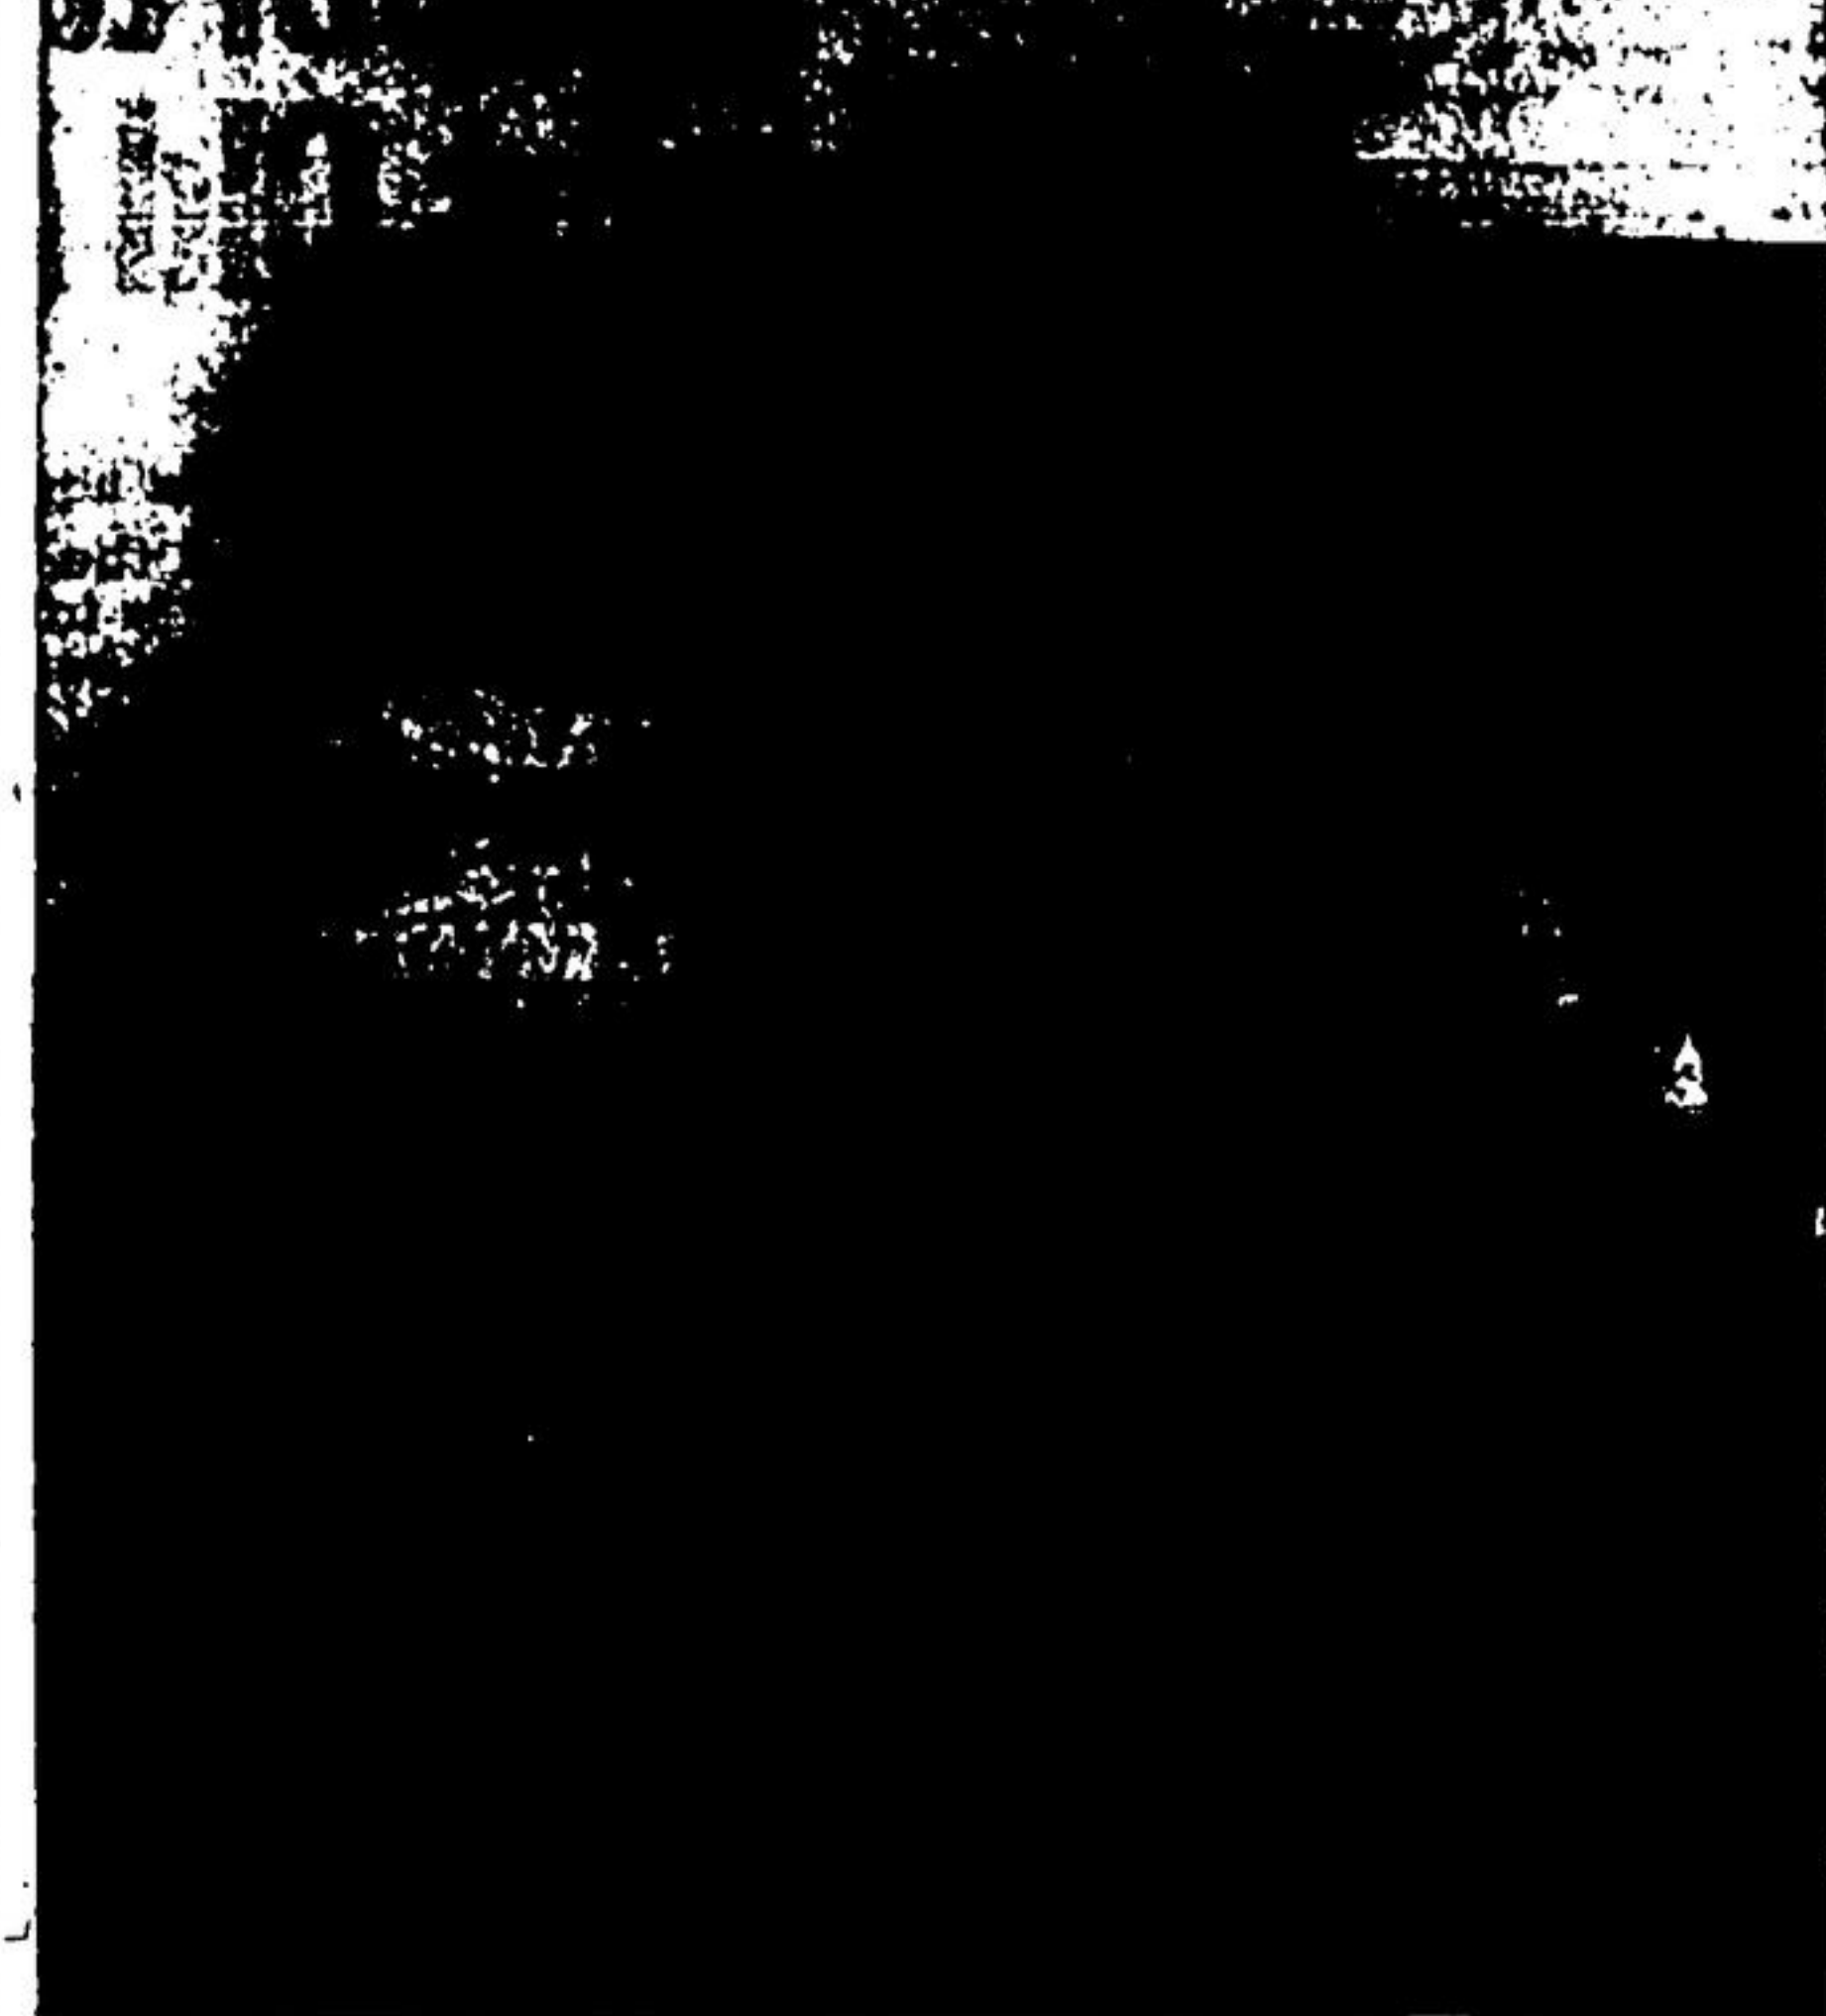

Every seed house is well stocked with sprays, dusts, and other controls. Very often there is a combination of chemicals, ready packaged, which will handle any bug or garden pest; those that eat holes in foliage, those that suck the juices of those that attack fruit or roots. Remember that in this as in other types of warfare, the best defense is to attack, don't wait until the bugs are in complete control before starting the offensive.

Watering
"Never water anything in the evening and you will save yourself a lot of trouble". That advice comes from a professional gardener. And this applies to all types of gardens, lawns, flowers and especially roses. The only time to use the hose or watering can safely, he says, is in the morning or early afternoon, so that all surplus water on foliage will have evaporated before night and thus there is no encouragement for fungus diseases to develop. And there are some other good general rules too. The first of these is to remember when we water that it is best to soak well, so that the moisture will really penetrate the soil several inches, and then leave alone for several days or a week. This encourages deep root development in grass or other plants thus protecting against drought and sun damage. If possible it is better to let the water run directly on the soil, through some special equipment for this purpose, rather than spraying over a foliage. Cold water is always a shock for plants and humans. To avoid that in some rose and flower gardens, tile are placed vertically here and there and in dry weather these are frequently filled with water which soaks directly into the soil.

The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about home heating.

Are you confused about home heating fuels? What with everybody and his brother telling you how economical, convenient, quiet and automatic his particular system is, you must feel like flying south for the winter. But if you have to stay and face a cold, hard winter (like most of us) better read these cold, hard facts.

Wood and coal are probably the most economical fuels to buy—but they're also the least efficient. And sooner or later you'll get tired of slaving over a dirty furnace—then what?

You can choose between a liquid fuel or so-called "flameless" heating. Or natural gas. All of them claim to be the best. Who should you believe?

Initial installation costs are higher for liquid fuel equipment than for gas. A gas unit has fewer moving parts, needs less maintenance and therefore lasts longer. In order for "flameless" heating to compete in operating cost, it requires extra-thick insulation throughout the home.

If your home had extra-thick insulation, no matter what kind of heating system you use, you'd naturally cut fuel costs. With extra insulation or normal insulation, a gas heating system means lower fuel costs by far.

fashioned Canadian snowstorm can't stop natural gas from heating your home. Storms can stop trucks. They can also knock out power lines—and very often do. Unless you have your own generator, "flameless" heating can give you the cold shoulder, just when you need a warm house. Let's face it—nothing is as dependable as natural gas.

With modern gas heating there are no hot and cold "layers" of stale air. Dust and dirt particles can be filtered from the air and humidity controlled. Wouldn't you rather have a heating system that took care of these vital functions?

When you get right down to it, modern automatic gas heating has the edge in just about every department. But if you're still not convinced, maybe this will help; if you install a gas conversion burner in your existing furnace now, or even install a brand-new gas design furnace—you pay absolutely nothing until next October.

What's more, we'll spread out the cost of the installation in easy monthly payments—over 5 years if need be. Unless you know someone who'll chop your wood for free, you won't get a better deal than this—anywhere! Why not make the switch to natural gas heating right now.
