

County Council at Stalemate On Regional Jail Opinion

A stalemate on the question of the proposed 2 million dollar Hamilton-Westworth-Halton regional jail was the net result of an hour's discussion at Halton County Council, Tuesday afternoon.

The regional jail in question will be raised again next month, however, Hamilton had asked for an immediate answer, and claimed without it, they would go ahead without Halton.

The stalemate arose when a motion to accept the Property Committee report, containing the paragraph urging the "go ahead" on the jail was presented.

However, before the vote on this one, Reeve C. A. Martin put forward an amendment to the motion, deleting that paragraph which urged the "go ahead," until the Plunkett needs study recommendations were heard.

The amendment, voted on first, was defeated, despite the 15 to 13 vote in favour, since according to the voting procedure, there has to be a plurality of three.

However, when the vote to accept the report which included the recommendation of the jail, was taken, it too was defeated, in exactly the same manner and number as the amendment. The members simply all reversed their vote on the two motions, thus producing the unusual situation and the stalemate.

The absence of Reeve W. Coulter, and Reeve C. Gallagher had a profound effect, since they have both endorsed the regional jail.

"In nine years of County Council work, I never saw anything like this," commented Warden Merry, explaining that the whole report would have to go back to the property committee, because of the rejection of the paragraph.

Prior to the vote, an eloquent plea both on humanitarian grounds, and economic reasons was made by Deputy Reeve R. Goodwin of Acton, who contended the present jail is outmoded, and more concerned with punishment than rehabilitation.

Three speakers, two from the Department of Reform Institutions, and one from the John Howard Society, supported the joint regional jail, Mr. J. Pennfold, Assistant to the Deputy Minister of Reform Institutions, pointed out that large jails tend to cost less, and make better use of less staff. He also explained the difficulty of getting close to a hostile prisoner, if the surroundings themselves create more hostility. "In the old buildings there is no space for modern day needs, such as space for lawyers, counsellors, probation officers and psychiatrists," he added.

Mr. A. Dougal, also from the Department of Reform Institutions, explained that in twenty nine years in this work he had seen young boys come into reform schools, next to Kingston Penitentiary, and two condemed to death. With more modern jails and outlook, he felt some of this human waste could have been avoided.

Mr. L. Glynnford of the John Howard Society emphasized that his organization was faced with the end product of a penal system, and advanced a new concept. "Everyone was a first offender once," he concluded.

Both Reeve H. Hinton of Acton and Reeve C. Martin of Milton pointed out that it was just a year ago government was recommending a joint jail with Peel and Dufferin for Halton, which they felt might be more reasonable, especially on transportation costs. Both felt that a decision should not be made until the current needs study is completed.

Following this the aforementioned voting took place.

Brown-Brooks Wedding in St. Alban's Church, Acton

MR. AND MRS. DON BROWN

A salesman with CAV Motors Georgetown, Donald James Brown and Joan Grace Brooks were married on Sept. 4th in St. Alban's Anglican Church, Acton.

The church was decorated with white and pink gladioli for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. R. McMurray. Mrs. F. Oakes was organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brooks, R. R. 2, Acton, and is employed in the office of Avian Aircraft, Georgetown. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brown, 27 Victoria St.

The bride wore a white brocade wedding gown with detachable train, edged with appliqued roses. There was a charming lace over-bow and lily-point sleeves. She wore a lace pillbox hat with black veil and carried a bouquet of red bud roses.

Miss Rosemary Brooks was her sister's maid of honour wearing deep rose peau de soie with matching headdress. Misses Roma and Susan Brooks, as bridesmaids, wore gold peau de soie. They carried bouquets of white carnations. Cathy Duffy, Ottawa, was flower girl and wore a white nylon gown and matching headdress, and carried a basket of red rosebuds.

Douglas Mills, Brampton, was groomsmen and ushers were the bride's brother Roy Brooks and the groom's nephew, James Campbell. Mr. Brooks gave his daughter in marriage in the double ring ceremony.

A reception for 75 guests was held at Hilltop Lodge, Exton. The bride's mother received wearing pale yellow chiffon over taffeta, white accessories and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother also received, wearing a pink lace two piece ensemble and orchid corsage.

For a honeymoon trip to Old Orchard Beach, Maine, and the New England States, the bride wore a deep pink wool crepe suit, beige accessories and corsage.

Guests attended the wedding from Ottawa, Perth, Toronto, Weston, Lanark, Fallbrook, Malton, Limehouse, Acton and Georgetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are living at R. R. 1, Limehouse.

Tells Council Women of Work at School for Deaf

An address by a Georgetown teacher at the School for the Deaf at Milton highlighted a meeting of the Georgetown Local Council of Women at the home of Mrs. R. H. Jones, 8 Orchard Blvd., Friday.

Her talk was followed by a question period during which the Local Council Members indicated their interest in the topic by querying the speaker about the various facets of the school.

Mrs. F. W. Johnson conveyed the members' appreciation, to Miss Lois Niven for her talk.

Mrs. R. T. Paul, president of the Local Council of Women, chaired the meeting.

Mrs. D. W. Baxter reported for Home Economics and Canadian Association of Consumers drawing attention to the newly adopted trade mark selected by leading manufacturers of woolen clothing and textiles all over the world to indicate a pure virgin wool content.

Another article dealt with the new maple leaf symbol, which it is hoped will be a hallmark and the means of identification for many centennial projects.

Correspondence, mainly from provincial and national headquarters, was given by Mrs. Jones in bulletin form. Mrs. Paul urged further cooperation for the Freedom from Hunger Campaign and the Mysore Project, and it was decided by the Local Council to support this cause as in previous years.

Mrs. A. Reeve reported briefly for the National Committee on Health.

Tea hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. A. Matthews, and Mrs. A. M. Nielsen.

Explains Need for "Y" Campaign to Kinsmen

Mr. Ed Wilson was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Kinsmen Club of Georgetown held at Stan's Restaurant this week. He was speaking on behalf of the "Y" in Georgetown and told of the history of this organization in Georgetown.

He advised the club that the "Y" would be seeking $60,000 from the public in the campaign that is coming up. He outlined how this money would be spent and requested the club to consider the needs of the "Y" for money when the campaign begins.

He was introduced by President Bob Collett and thanked on behalf of the club by Ken Milne.

President Bob Collett presented attendance tabs to the following members who attended:
